PREFACE

The longer we worked at writing this book, the more aware we became of the impossibility of making it complete and accurate. The search to fill in the cracks of unknown generations has been arduous. We have strained our eyes over microfilm, paged through dusty volumes in courthouses and libraries, searched old Bible records, engaged of genealogists, written hundreds of letters, made untold phone calls, traveled extensively and visited pioneer cemeteries searching for information.

At the outset, we apologize if our findings do not agree with what your family tradition has told you or information from other sources. Perhaps in the future more branches will be properly connected to this amazing Peckham tree.

We can say for certain that Peckhams come in many guises. There were (are) doctors, engineers, lawyers, judges, senators, homemakers, teachers, preachers, farmers, soldiers and everything in between. Though the first Peckhams in America with whom we claim kinship were Anglican and Baptist, they have since been related to myriad religious persuasions. Some have had towns or streets named for them. We have uncovered no skeletons in the closet, but then again, no one would admit it if such existed!

Many family members have been generous in submitting genealogical information about their own family. In some cases, our research and their research did not always agree. If you disagree with the conclusions we have made, please feel free to make your own adjustments in your copy of the genealogy.

We urge you to continue research on your family tree, to correct or to add to this volume. Happy searching!!

Note: To make the reading of the volume easier to follow, you will want to know that family information is written following the birth order of each generation. The asterisks in front of a child's name indicate that he/she will appear in the material in the following generation (chapter).

SOURCES OF INFORMATION

An attempt has been made throughout the preparation of this manuscript to secure permission to use current copyright material. When the source of the information is known, appropriate references are made at the end of the material. Bibliography references are made throughout the text. However, much of the information has come from family records, secondary sources and oral family history.

The authors have attempted to make this volume as accurate and informative as possible within the designed limits. However, the information and data are undoubtedly erroneous at points. We have mailed over 1400 letters informing persons of this project and inviting their input. To the many who have responded we are grateful. If information on your direct family line has not been included we are sorry, but the information was not sent to us.

This information will need to be verified to meet the Later Day Saints Standards. However, the material can be considered a road map that gives family members clues as places and sources to search.

We will leave to others and future generations the task of making corrections and additions.

Great care has been exercised in the preparation and editing of this manuscript. In the preparation for printing of the PDF file, it is not uncommon for mistakes and errors in the data and personal information to occur. The author apologizes for such errors and offers the following as some of the reasons for such to happen:

1. Different sources presented different information, i.e. November 17, 1815 in one case may read November 27, 1825 in another.
2. Sometimes the hand writing or faded printing was incorrectly interpreted.
3. Occasionally the computer erred in storing and reproducing the correct information.
4. Perhaps the typist inadvertently touched the wrong key.
5. At times the census taker made an error or was given different information in a subsequent census, i.e. different names for children using the middle name or nickname rather than the first name.

It is suggested that each family make appropriate changes and share the changes with others who record the family history in the future.

Introduction

The Ancient History of the Distinguished Surname Peckham

Author unknown
Submitted by Charles A. Peckham

The ancient chronicles of England reveal the early records of the name Peckham as a Norman surname which ranks as one of the oldest. The history of the name is closely interwoven within the majestic tapestry as an intrinsic part of the history of Britain.

In-depth research by skilled analysts into ancient manuscripts such as the Domesday Book[1] (Complied in 1086 by William the Conqueror), the Ragman Rolls, the Wace poem, the Honour Roll of the Battle Abbey, The Curia Regis, Pipe Rolls, the Falaise Roll, tax records, baptismals, family genealogies, local parish and church records, show the first record of the name Peckham was found in Kent where they were seated from very early times and were granted lands by Duke William of Normandy, their liege lord, for their distinguished assistance at the battle of Hastings in 1066 A.D.

Many alternate spellings were found in the archives researched, typically linked to a common root, usually one of the Norman nobles at the Battle of Hastings. Although your name, Peckham, appeared in many references, from time to time the surname included Peckham, Pecham, Peckem, Packam, Packham, and these changes in spelling frequently occurred, even between father and son. Scribes recorded and spelled the name as it sounded. Typically a person would be born with one spelling, married with another, and buried with a headstone which showed another. All three spellings related to the same person, Sometimes preferences for different spelling variations either resulted from a branch preference, religious affiliation, or sometimes nationalistic statements.

Duke William took a census of most of England in 1086, and recorded it in the Domesday Book. A family name capable of being traced back to this manuscript, or to Hastings, was a signal honour for most families during the Middle Ages and even to this day.

The surname Peckham emerged as a notable family name in the county of Kent where they were recorded as a family of great antiquity seated as lords of the manor and estates in that shire. They are originally from St. Nickolas in Normandy, through the distinguished family of De Sayes. Perhaps one of the most distinguished personalities was Archbishop Peckham, in 1272. James Peckham succeeded him and the family held numerous branches in Kent and Sussex. The family seat was at Beaksbourne House at Bridge in Kent where R. Peckham was seated in the 19th century. Prominent amongst the family at this time was Archbishop Peckham of Kent.

The democratic attitudes of the New World spread like wildfire. Many migrated aboard the fleet of sailing ships know as the "White Sails." The stormy Atlantic, small pox, dysentery, cholera and typhoid took its toll on the settlers and many of these tiny, overcrowded ships arrived with only 60 or 70% of their passenger list. The migration or banishment to the New World continued, some voluntarily from Ireland, but mostly directly from England or Scotland, their home territories. Some clans and families even moved to the European continent.

Ancient History of the Distinguished Surname

Author Unknown

Few amongst the ancient surnames of England are so highly regarded as Peckham. This surname is one of the oldest Norman surnames and its history is closely interwoven into the prosaic tapestry which is reflected in the ancient chronicles of all England. Professional research into ancient manuscripts such as: the Doomsday Book (complied in 1086 by William the Conqueror), the Ragman Rolls, the Wace poem, the Honour Roll of the Battel Abbey, The Curia Regis, Pipe Rolls, the Falaise Roll, tax records, baptismals, family genealogies, local parish and church records reveals the first record of the name Peckham was found in Kent where they were seated from very early times and were granted lands by Duke William of Normandy, their liege lord, for their distinguished assistance at the Battle of Hastings in 1066 A. D.

'The early and middle development phase of the name found many different spellings in the archives researched, typically linked to a common root, usually one of the Norman nobles at the Battle of Hastings. Although your name, Peckham, occurred in many references, from time to time, the surname included the spellings: Peckham, Pecham, Peckem, Peckam, Packham, and these changes in spelling frequently occurred, even between father and son. Scribes and church officials recorded and spelled the name as it was told to them, frequently spelling it different ways on each occasion. it was not unusual that a person would be born with one spelling, married with another, and buried with a headstone which showed another. All three spellings related to the same person. Sometimes preferences for spelling variations either came from a division of the family, or had religious reasons, or sometimes reflected nationalistic concerns.

The family name Peckham is believed to be descended originally from the Norman race, frequently but mistakenly assumed to be of French origin. They were more accurately of Viking origin. The Vikings landed in the Orkneys and Northern Scotland about the year 870 A.D., under their king, Stirgud the Scout. Thorflnn Rollo, his descendant, scion of explorer clans who may well have visited North America, landed in northern France about the year 940 A.D. The French king, Charles the Simple, after Polio laid siege to Paris, finally conceded defeat and granted northern France to Rollo. Rollo became the first Duke of Normandy, the territory of north men. Rollo married Charles' daughter and became a convert to Christianity. Descended from Rollo was Duke William of Normandy who invaded England in 1066 and was victorious of the Saxon King Harold at Hastings in 1066 A.D.

Duke William granted his Norman nobles much of the land of England for their assistance at the Battle of Hastings. Amongst these Normans a noble is believed to have been your ancestor. After careful analysis the researchers found that the first evidence of your surname was found in Kent where they were recorded as a family of great antiquity seated as lords of the manor and estates in that shire. They were originally from St. Nicholas in Normandy, through the distinguished family of De Sayes. Perhaps one of the most distinguished personalities was Archbishop Peckham, in 1272. James Peckham succeeded him and the family held numerous branches in Kent and Sussex more specifically in Little Green, Upmarden, and Lordington, also at Nyton also in Sussex. The family seat was in Beaksbourne House at Bridge in Kent where R. Peckham was seated in the 19” century. Notable amongst the family at this time was Archbishop Peckham of Kent.

During the 15th, 16’x’, and l7’x’ centuries, England and Scotland were ravaged by religious and political conflicts as first one element, then another, fought for control. (This created the unrest that was to produce a great exodus, either voluntary, or by banishment as first one side acquired control, then another. The tyranny almost assumed the profile of an inquisition, and many innocent men were condemned either to colonies, or to prison, or to be hanged, drawn and quartered. Alliances were all important. Arranged marriages assured families of protection and influence in the right quarter. Family names became extinct if they chose the wrong alliances. Loyalty to the wrong power could bring disastrous results to the future of a whole family name.

The result was the manipulation of families known to be loyal to the cause. Subjugation of Ireland became the objective of a succession of monarchs. Many families were freely “encouraged” to migrate to Ireland, or to the “colonies”. Lands were granted free, or at nominal payments. Some families were rewarded with these grants of lands. Others were banished.

In Ireland, settlers became known as the “Adventurers for land in Ireland”. Settlers undertook to maintain the Protestant faith within their families and all those who worked for them. ‘There is no evidence that the family name migrated to Ireland, but this does not preclude the possibility of their scattered migration to that country.

But the New World beckoned and migration continued, some voluntarily from Ireland, but mostly directly from England or Scotland, their home territories. Some clans and families even moved to the European continent.

Kinsmen of the family name Peckham were amongst the many who sailed aboard the armada of small sailing ships, tiny, overcrowded vessels known as the “White Sails” which plied the stormy Atlantic during the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries. These overcrowded ships were pestilence ridden sometimes 30% to 40% of the passenger list never reaching their destination, their numbers reduced by dysentery, cholera, small pox, and typhoid.

Principal amongst the settlers which could be considered a kinsman of the surname Peckham, or a variable spelling of that family name was settled in Newport in Rhode Island in 1430; J. and N. A. Peckham arrived in San Francisco in 1852. The trek from the port of entry was also hazardous and many joined the wagon trains to the prairies or over the Rockies to the west coast. During the War of Independence, many loyalists made their way north to Canada about 1 790, and became known as the United Empire loyalists.

20th century notables of this surname, Peckham, include many distinguished persons. The family name continued to make an important contribution to the political and cultural life of the societies on both sides of the Atlantic.

During the course of our research we also determined the many Coats Of Arms granted to different branches of the family name. The most ancient grant of a Coat of Arms found was:

Ermine with a gold and red quarterly stripe at the top.

The crest was:

An ostrich.

The ancient family Motto for this distinguished name was:

Tentanda Via Est"

Background of a Family Name

Primitive personal names doubtless originated soon after the invention of spoken language although the date of their first use is lost in the darkness of ages preceding recorded history.

For thousands of years, persons lived in families, clans or tribes. In the dawn of historic times, when the world was less crowded than it is today and every man knew his neighbor, one title of address was sufficient. Only gradually, with the passing centuries and the increasing complexity of civilized society, did a need arise for more specific designations. While the roots of our system of family names may be traced back to early civilized times, actually the hereditary surname as we know it today dates from a time scarcely earlier than nine hundred years ago.

A surname is a name added to a baptismal or Christian name for the purposes of making it more specific and of indicating family relationship or descent. Classified according to origin, most surnames fall into six general categories:

1. Those with the given name of the father, i.e., John's son is Johnson.
2. Those names derived from rank or occupation, i.e., Sergeant, Miller.
3. Those names that describe bodily or personal characteristics or attributes, i.e., Smart, Short, Little.
4. Those names that are descriptive of the place where the family lived, i.e., ham – meaning house, hill – peck.
5. Those names which are formed from animals, vegetables, fruits, minerals, directions and colors, i.e., Lyon, Bean, Lemon, Stone, West, Brown.
6. Those of other surnames, i.e., surname of the mother.

As early as biblical times certain distinguishing appellations were occasionally employed in addition to the given names, as, for instance, Joshua the son of Nun, Simon the son of Jonas, Judas of Galilee, and Simon the Zealot. In ancient Greece daughters were named after their fathers as Chryseis, the daughter of Chryses; and sons' names were usually an enlarged form of the father's name, as Hieronymus, son of Hiero. The Romans, with the rise of their civilization, met the need for hereditary designations by inventing a complex system whereby every patrician traced his descent by taking several names. None of them, however, exactly corresponded to surnames, as we know them, for the "clan name," although hereditary, was given also to slaves and other dependents. This system proved to be but a temporary innovation; the overthrow of the Western Empire by barbarian invaders brought about its end and a reversion to the primitive custom of a single name.

The ancient Scandinavians and, for the most part, the Germans had only individual names; and there were no family names, strictly speaking, among the Celts. But as family and tribal groups grew in size, individual names became inadequate and the need for supplementary appellations began to be felt. Among the first employed were such terms as "the Strong," "the Hardy," "the Stern," "the Dreadful-in-battle." The nations of northern Europe soon adopted the practice of adding the father's name to the son's, as Oscar, son of Carnuth, and Dermid, son of Duthno.

The surnames, in the sense of hereditary designation, in England date from about the year 1000. Largely they were introduced from Normandy, although there are records of Saxon surnames prior to the Norman Conquest.

Perhaps the oldest known surname in England is that of Hwita Hatte, a keeper of bees whose daughter was Tate Hatte. During the reign of Edward the Confessor (1041-1066) there were Saxon tenants in Suffolk bearing such names as Suert Magno, Stigand Soror, Siuward Rufus, and Leuric Hobbesune (Hobson); and the Domesday record of 1085–1086, which exhibits some curious combinations of Saxon forenames with Norman family names, shows surnames in still more general use.

By the end of the twelfth century hereditary names had become common in England. But even by 1465 they were not universal. During the reign of Edward V a law was passed to compel certain Irish outlaws to adopt surnames. "They shall take unto them a Surname, either of some Town, or some Colour, as Blacke or Brown, or some Art or Science, as Smith or Carpenter, or some Office, as Cooke or Butler." And as late as the beginning of the nineteenth century a similar decree compelled Jews in Germany and Austria to add a German surname to the single names which they had previously used.

As stated above, family names may be divided into six general classes. One of the largest of these classes is that comprising surnames derived from the given name of the father. Such names were formed by means of an added prefix or suffix denoting either "son of" or a diminutive. English names terminating in son, ing and kin are of this type as are also the innumerable names prefixed with the Gaelic Mac, the Norman Fitz, the Welsh ap, and the Irish O'. Thus John's sons became Johnsons; William's sons became Williamsons or Wilsons; Richard's sons became Richardsons or Richardses (the final "s" of "Richards" being a contraction of "son"); Neill's sons, MacNeills; Herbert's sons, FitzHerberts; Thomas's sons, ap Thomases (ap has been dropped from many names of which it was formerly a part) and Reilly's sons, O'Reilly.

Another class of surnames, those arising from some bodily or personal characteristic of their first bearer, apparently grew out of what were in the first instance nicknames. Thus, Peter the strong became Peter Strong; Roger of small stature became Roger Little or Roger Small; and black-haired William or blond Alfred became William Black or Alfred White. From among the many names of this type, only a few need be mentioned: Long, Short, Hardy, Wise, Good, Gladman, Lover and Youngman.

A third class of family names, and perhaps the largest of all, is that comprising local surnames, names derived from and originally designating the place of residence of the bearer. Such names were popular in France at an early date and were introduced into England by the Normans, many of whom were known by the titles of their estates. The surnames adopted by the nobility were mainly of this type, being used with the particles de, de la, or del (meaning "of" or "of the"). The Saxon equivalent was the word atte ("at the"), employed in such names as John atte Brooks, Edmund atte Lane, Godwin atte Brigg, and William atte Bourne. A vestige of this usage survives in the names Atwell, Atwood, and Atwater; in other cases the Norman de was substituted; and in still others, such as Wood, Briggs, and Lane, the particle was dropped. The surnames of some of the Pilgrim Fathers illustrate place designations; for instance, Winthrop means "from the friendly village"; Endicott, "an end cottage"; Bradford, "at the broad ford"; and Standish, "a stony park." The suffixes "ford", "ham", "ley" and "ton", denoting locality, are of frequent occurrence in such names as Ashford, Bingham, Burley and Norton.

While England enjoyed a period of comparative peace under Edward the Confessor, a fourth class of surnames arose—names derived from occupation. The earliest of these seem to have been official names, such as Bishop, Mayor, Fawcett (judge), Alderman, Reeve, Sheriff, Chamberlain, Chancillor, Chaplain, Deacon, Latimer (interpreter), Marshall Summer (summoner), and Parker (park keeper). Trade and craft names, although of the same general type, were of somewhat later origin. Currier was a dresser of skins, Webster a weaver, Wainwright a wagon builder, and Baxter a baker. Such names as Smith, Taylor, Barber, Shepherd, Carter, Mason, and Miller are self-explanatory.

The other classifications of names are derived from common things such as animals, vegetables, fruits, minerals, directions and colors; and those names taken from other surnames such as the mother's name need no further explanation.

Many surnames of today which seem to defy classification or explanation are corruptions of ancient forms, which have become disguised almost beyond recognition. Longfellow, for instance, was originally Longueville; Longshanks was Longchamps; Troublefield was Tuberville; Wrinch was Renshaw; Diggles was Douglas; and Snooks was Sevenoaks. Such corruptions of family names, resulting from ignorance of spelling, variations in pronunciation, or merely from the preference of the bearer, tend to baffle both the genealogist and the etymologist. Shakespeare's name is found in some twenty-seven different forms, and the majority of English and Anglo-American surnames have, in their history, appeared in four to a dozen or more variant spellings.

The Peckham Family Ancestry

"The ancestors of our Thomas and John (Peckham) while they were a race of country squires were a race of scholars. They were not men who wobbled. They were not men who were obscure."

"To my mind there is nothing partaking of the historical novel in the conjecture that Henry Peckham was involved in Wyatt's Rebellion, when we have record evidence to prove that every drop of Peckham blood in southwest Kent that could get into it was into it."

"They (Peckhams) have by common consent, strongly marked family traits. Whether by accident or design, the motto of their Arms is extremely characteristic of their race, from the Archbishop down. When they determine on a way, they hold it! —When men withstood each other on matters of theology and politics—unto death—and hold the way—whether it leads to Tyburn, or a Peerage."

Tomb of Archbishop John Peckham in Canterbury Cathedral

The Peckham Genealogy which was compiled and prepared for publication by Stephen Farnum Peckham, and Byron Judson Peckham, assisted as to the English ancestry by Rev. Harry John Peckham, Victor of Nutley, Sussex, England, and his son, Arthur Nyton Peckham, an architect of London. It was completed about 1911. This family history gives us a detailed and comprehensive report as to the historical data of the original people who first carried the name of Peckham, and the colorful Coat-of-Arms, from almost pre-historic times in England, to the New England Colonies in America and the United States of today.

From this record we have this early information of the past, which is quoted from the records of the Archbishop John Peckham: "In a dim and unremembered past—and form which no record remains—an Anglo-Saxon reared his dwelling on the crest of a hill on the north Downs, in southwest Kent, and called it 'Peac Ham', for which the English equivalent is 'Peak House', or 'House on the Peak."

"This remote period was before the Norman Conquest, and before families or persons had surnames. John, or James, or Reginald were born to him who dwelt in the 'Peac Ham,' and were known as—John, or James, or Reginald de Peac Ham—and after a time—de Peckham. But there is no reason to doubt that the family had not been permanently seated and prosperous for centuries before anything had been recorded of them."

By Stephen Farnum Peckham

Early Peckhams

Under the Roman Kings, Robert de Peckham was Chaplain to Henry I. Hugo de Peckham who was constable of Turnbridge Castle. His sons, Peter and John de Peckham went on the 3rd Crusade, and came home with Richard Cour de Leon, (the Lion Hearted), from the Seige of Acre, in 1191. It was there that the two brothers won their Coat-of-Arms by their valor and bravery. The families of the two brothers have bourne Arms since that date. Peter de Peckham is regarded to have been the ancestor of the Denham Peckhams, while John de Peckham is considered the ancestor of the Yaldham Peckham branch.

By the middle of the 13th century the Peckhams had become numerous and powerful. Besides occupying the primal manors of East and West Peckham in the Parish of Wrotham, in Kent, and the Manor of Peckham, and the Manor of Hadlow, nearby, they had extended into Suffolk, and also into Sussex, around the Lewes and Chichester.

Archbishop John Peckham was born at Lewes, England, in 1210. In his youth he went to Paris, and studied at the University there under St. Bonaventura, and later returned to Oxford and joined the Order of St. Francis. Returning again to Paris he lectured on Theology and Ecclesiastics, and among the publications on these subjects, are others on Perspective and Mathematics.

"John Peckham, Archbishop of Canterbury, was admired by Leonardo Da Vinci," states John Marc Peckham

The fame of his learning spread over the continent, and he was invited to come to Rome, by the Pope, and he became the first Theological lecturer in the newly founded Papal School in the Papal Palace. His lectures were attended by large audiences, including Bishops and Cardinals.

While thus occupied, the then Archbishop of Canterbury resigned, and John Peckham was appointed by the Pope to fill the vacancy. He was consecrated, and assumed the duties of that exalted position on March 12, 1279. His numerous activities are recorded in the Dictionary of National Biography. He was of an independent and democratic nature, acting as right and justice dictated, regardless of influences of wealth or high position, not hesitating to criticize the acts of the King. His death occurred on December 8, 1292, and he was buried in the Canterbury Cathedral.

Another Peckham who appeared prominent in early English history was Sir Edmund Peckham. He was born in 1495, and at an early age entered the King's service, and was almost continuously occupied with public matters until his death in 1564. He was knighted on May 8, 1542. In 1546 he was made Treasurer of the Mint. In 1547 he was assistant executor of the Will of Henry III. In 1549, under Henry VI's reign, he was directed to restore the Gold Standard. In 1551 he coined the pound weight of silver, and in 1557, he was executor for Anne of Cleves. His son, Henry Peckham, was a member-of-parliament from 1552 to 1556. He was four times re-elected. In 1556 he (Henry), and many others, were charged with treason to the crown, and some of them, including Henry, were tried, convicted, and executed. Sir Edmund Peckham's 3rd son, George, succeeded to the paternal estate of Henham and was knighted in 1570. In 1572 he was High Sheriff of Buckinghamshire, and from 1574 to 1582 he was associated with Sir Richard Granville, Sir Humphrey Gilbert, and others in the discovery "of sundry riche and unknown landes."

Sir Edmund Peckham's political life ended with the death of Queen Mary, other than he remained as Treasurer of the Mint. Sir Edmund Peckham was the representative of the Denham Peckham branch of the family, while the representative of the Yaldham branch was Sir James Peckham of Yaldham. He, also, had a son, Henry, who was several times re-elected as a member-of-parliament. He, too, was implicated, tried, convicted, and executed at Tyburn in 1556 for treason against the Crown.

Ightham Moat, Wrotham Hundred, County Kent

This Manor House, built by Sir Thomas Cawne in 1350, was owned by the Peckhams of Kent from the fourteenth to the eighteenth century, having passed to Sir James Peckham after his marriage with Sir Thomas Cawne's widow, Lora de Moraunt, daughter and heiress of Sir Thomas de Moraunt of Chevening.

The Denham Peckhams were ardent Catholics, while the Yaldham Peckhams seem to have been reformers, and were mixed up in one-way or another with all the rebellious fomentation of southwest England. In 1556 the two Henry Peckhams became involved in some conspiracy against the Queen of England, and with others were tried, convicted, and executed, at Tyburn. This act was considered to be a sort of Church affair, whereby one faction considered it a felon, and by the other faction, a martyr, and neither sacrificed their friends. Tories, in the United American Colonies, were considered a burning disgrace, but none met death because of this.

At the death of Queen Mary, a new queen, Queen Elizabeth came to the throne of England, and through her influence the name of Henry Peckham, son of Henry Peckham, who was executed, and the grandson of Sir James Peckham of Yaldham, was changed to Edward Peckham, and much of the traditional property was restored to the family. This Henry Peckham, alias Edward Peckham, was the great-grandfather of our American ancestor, John Peckham who was an admitted inhabitant of Newport, Rhode Island in 1638. Our ancestor, John Peckham, was born on April 8, 1595 on the old Peckham Manor of Hadlow, East Hamptnett, and was baptized and christened in the Parish Church of Boxgrove, county of Sussex, England. The next record we have of John Peckham, he is Chaplain to the Earl of Hertford in 1634.

According to English tradition and custom in the old Shakesperian days, the title of "Sir" was conferred on the members of the Clergy. However, there is no mention in our history as to this title having been conferred on our John Peckham, contrary to our introduction and belief, although he was a minister of the Church of England prior to his coming to the American Colonies. From all probability he became estranged from his patron, the Earl of Hertford and his family, on matters of religion, went to London and immigrated to America.

John Peckham was a minister of the Church of England, and was the Chaplain to the Earl of Hertford, who later was the Duke of Somerset, in 1634. Becoming estranged from his Church and his people on religious differences, he left his church, and became a Baptist. It will be supposed that through his relations with the Earl of Hertford, that he became acquainted with Sir Henry Vane, imbibed the latter extreme religious ideas and came to Boston with him in 1634. They came over on the "Griffin", a sailing ship that could carry as many as 200 passengers.

The Peckham Family

The following sketch of the Peckham family was compiled from Stephen Farnum Peckham's Peckham Genealogy, 1922, as corrected and amended by my own researches into the history of Kent County, England, and other sources. I have restricted myself to an account of our direct lineal ancestors, without digressing on to those collateral ancestors who may or may not have achieved fame. I have tried to indicate the occupations of our ancestors as a means of identification, but whether those persons were popular, honorable, or thoroughly hated did not interest me. I am only amused by genealogies (and genealogists) which assume such a faith in the inheritance of acquired characteristics that purpose of the book is to imply that a distinguished ancestry presupposes some distinction in the present generation.

In England during Anglo-Saxon times, long before the Norman Conquest of 1066, there were two parishes in southwest Kent called East or Great Peckham and West or Little Peckham. Both derived their name from their situation "peac" in Saxon meaning peak or summit of a hill, and "ham"—a village or dwelling place. It was given in 961 by Queen Ediva to Christ Church in Canterbury, and was held by the priory of that church until the dissolution of the monasteries in the reign of Henry VIII. It was never held by our family.

West Peckham, adjoining it and also in Littlefield Hundred, was held in the reign of King John (1199–1216) by a family named Bendeville, but it soon passed into the possession of a family that reputedly had taken its name from it sometime before. This family of Peckham was our antecedents.

The identity of the first man who added the place name of Peacham to his given name in order to distinguish himself from others of the same given name and also indicate his address or origin is not known. There were families by the name of Peacham or Peckham in Kent at the time of King Harold, 1065. They were reputed to be Lords on their manors under the Earl Leofwine, brother of King Harold. In the Battle of Hastings, 1066, both Harold and Leofwine were killed. The county of Kent surrendered to William of Normandy, and the conqueror made his half-brother Otho, Bishop of Bayeux, the Earl of Kent. Otho was disgraced in 1084, and Kent was taken over by the Crown.

With the introduction of French as the official language of England, the old Saxon form of Peacham was replaced by "de Peckham". A particular member of the family now looms out of obscurity. Robert de Pekham was chaplain to Henry I (1100–1135). Hugo de Pekham was constable of Tunbridge Castle in Kent in the first year of King John, 1199. In the next century the Peckhams not only were occupying West Peckham and the manor of Peckham in the parish of Hadlow nearby, but had spread into Suffolk and Sussex counties. It was in Lewes, Sussex, about 1210 that John Peckham was born who became Archbishop of Canterbury in 1279 and died in 1292.

The Yaldham Family

To return now to the first of our line of whom we have record: John de Pekham and his brother Peter may have been sons of Hugo de Pekham, mentioned above. The two brothers went on the Third Crusade with Richard I (the Lion-Hearted) and participated in the siege of Acre in Palestine in 1191. On their return from this expedition, John$^{1}$ settled in West Peckham and was granted the manor house, doubtless for his military services. He still held it in the early part of the reign of Henry III (1216–1272). His son John$^{2}$ died still in possession of it. His grandson John$^{3}$ held West Peckham and bought another manor in neighboring Hadlow which became known as Peckham manor. After his death in 1293, the manor in West Peckham passed into the hands of Robert Scarlet (d. 1305). Peckham manor in Hadlow was held for several generations longer; it was sold in the sixteenth century to the Vanes.

John's son, Martin$^{4}$, acquired other real estate, however, by marrying Margery, daughter of Sir Thomas de Aldham, who inherited Yaldham manor in the parish of Wrotham from her father. This estate became the seat of our family and remained in the Peckham family until 1718. Martin de Peckham also inherited or acquired a coat of arms which survives today: ermine, a chief quarterly or and gules; the crest an ostrich proper passant; and the motto Tentanda via est. See crest.

Martin de Pekham was sheriff of Kent county at the time of his death in 1311. His son John$^{5}$, who was living in 1347, was also sheriff. He married Elen Bokeland and died probably before 1363.

James de Pekham$^{6}$ (1340–1400) probably was their son, although he may have been the nephew of John$^{5}$ and the son of Alexander or William. James was sheriff of the county from 1380 to 1390 and a member of Parliament in various years from 1373 to 1389. He was also knighted. He knew Geoffrey Chaucer and may have been the prototype of the Franklyn described in the prologue to the Canterbury Tales. For his second wife, Sir James married Lora de Moraunt Cawne daughter and heiress of Sir Thomas de Mourant of Chevening and widow of Thomas Cawne. By this marriage the Peckhams acquired the manor house of Ightham, built about 1350 in the parish of Wrotham, and held it until the eighteenth century.

Sir James' son, Reginald$^{7}$, was born about 1360 and married Alice Wykham, a widow. Both died in 1407. Their son Reynold$^{8}$ was a member of Parliament in 1435 and died about 1445. His son James$^{9}$ (1435–1500) was also a member of Parliament and married Margaret Burgoine. He is buried at Wrotham. Their son James$^{10}$ (1485–1532) married secondly Anne Isley (d. 1567), daughter of Sir Thomas Isley and sister of Sir Henry Isley. Their son, Henry$^{11}$, born in the first part of sixteenth century, is supposed to have assisted his maternal uncle in joining with Sir Thomas Wyatt in "Wyatt's Rebellion," a brief uprising against Queen Mary in 1554. For his trouble young Henry was executed in 1556. He had been married, however, to one Anne, and they had a son Henry$^{12}$ and two daughters. Yaldham manor descended to a daughter and was sold in 1713.

Henry$^{12}$ changed his name to Edward and was married in 1570 to Grace Sambourne. He removed to Sussex and purchased two manors: Kneighton or Nyton in the parish Aldingbourne, and East Hampnett in the parish of Boxgrove. The latter was sold in 1674. Edward may have been the first Peckham to break from the Roman Catholic Church and became a Protestant, although his ill-fated father, who had supported Elizabeth as against Mary, must have had Protestant sympathies. Edward's two sisters, Mary and Elizabeth, had their portraits painted in 1570 (George Romney), which survive.

Edward and Grace Peckham had seven children, the oldest being named Henry$^{13}$. This Henry (d.1616) married Elizabeth Badger, daughter of Robert Badger of Winchester, and they had five sons. One of them, Thomas, and his descendants continued to occupy Nyton until it was sold in 1873. The second son was John Peckham (14) (1595–1681), who migrated to America and established the American branch of the family. Before we turn to him, however, mention should be made of the other main branch of the English family.

The Denham Family

The crusader Peter, brother of John[1], married Christiana, but his descendants are not known. A Peter Peckham appears in Buckinghamshire about 1350 and fades out again. But in 1496 a Piers of Peter Peckham[4] of London purchased an extensive estate in Denham, Buckinghamshire. This Peter's ancestors can be traced back to a Richard Pekham[1], who must have lived in the latter half of the fourteenth century. He might have been a son of the crusader Peter Pekham. By his second wife, Elizabeth Eburton, Peter[4] had a son Sir Edmund Peckham[5] (1495–1564). He was appointed treasurer or master of the mint in 1546 by Henry VIII and he became a privy councillor under Queen Mary. Although a Catholic he was continued in his mint office by Queen Elizabeth I. He helped to put into effect her measures for restoration of the coinage.

> Sir Humphrey Gilbert, for better encouragement of Sir Thomas Girard and Sir George Peckham, and in consideration that they have adventured various sums of money with the said Sir Humphrey, towards the intended voyage of discovery of certain parts of America, doth covenant with Sir Thomas Girard, and Sir George Peckham, that they shall have full power to discover all lands and isles between Cape Florida and Cape Briton, to occupy and enjoy the same for their own use, forever, as well as land on the Continent, amounting to 1,500,000 acres.

Sir Edmund married Cheyney (d.1570), daughter of John Cheyney of Chesham-Bois, Buckinghamshire, and had four sons and at least two daughters. The eldest son, Robert[6] (1515–1569), was knighted by Queen Mary and died in Rome. The second son, Henry[6], was a member of Parliament, but was executed in 1556 for conspiracy to rob the exchequer—a few weeks before his distant cousin was likewise executed for his part in the Wyatt Rebellion against Mary. The third son was Sir George Peckham[6] (d.1608), a merchant adventurer, who succeeded to the paternal estate in 1507. In partnership with Sir Humphrey Gilbert, Sir Richard Grenville and Christopher Carleill, he petitioned the queen in 1574 for permission to discover new lands for England. Gilbert's explorations resulted in large grants of land in the New World and trade privileges being assigned to Peckham. In 1583 he published A True Report of the Late Discoveries and Possession Taken... of the Newfound-landes... This volume is today a rare piece of Americana, sought after by collectors. A copy was sold in 1932 for $3250. Not long after its publication, however, Sir George incurred heavy debts, and in 1595 the Denham estate was taken from him by the Crown for debt. He had a son George[7] who was his heir, but the American branch of the family having been established at this time, the English line will not be traced further.

THE EARLY STORY OF PECKHAM—A Suburb of 18th Century London

Fish swam where Peckham High Street now stands! Millions of years ago, the land where Peckham was later built was in a large bay or lake. When wells were dug in South Street (now called Rye Lane) towards the end of the 18th century, oyster and cockle shells were found. These showed that the land was once covered by water.

About 2,000 years ago the Romans invaded England, and we know that they came to where Peckham is today because various remains have been found. A glass urn made by the Romans was dug up in the middle of Peckham High Street nearly 300 years ago, and two Roman roads passed through the district.

One of these old roads was Watling Street, which ran almost where the Old Kent Road is today. The Romans also built a road from London to what is now Lewes in East Sussex. When the Roman road was discovered it was found to be made of gravel on top of large pebbles, with a layer of white sand underneath.

We do not know when Peckham was first called by that name, or for certain what it means. Experts suggest that it came from two Old English words "peat", meaning hill, and "ham" meaning village, so probably the name means "village by a hill." There are hills nearby at Honor Oak, Forest Hill and Telegraph Hill. Rye, as in Peckham Rye, comes from an Old English word meaning brook. The bed of the little River Peck, the brook that flowed across the Rye, can still be seen on the west side of Peckham Rye Park.

Peckham was mentioned in Domesday Book, which was written between 1085 and 1087. William the Conqueror ordered his men to compile this book, and they had to visit almost every place in England to find out who owned all the land. Peckham was called Pecheha in Domesday book. We know that it was a small place nine hundred years ago; there were two acres of meadow, and these were valued at thirty shillings (£1.50)!

Peckham Rye 1771

During the reign of Henry I (1100-1135), Peckham belonged to the King. Henry I then gave it to his son, Robert Earl of Gloucester, who became Lord of the Manor.

The Pallant House Gallery

Pallant House is now an art museum. They do have a "Friends of Pallant House Program" membership drive that goes to funding their museum projects. They also have an excellent book about the house, it's buildings, and a not so flattering account of Henry "Lisbon" Peckham.

Our family crest is in the main entrance to the house.

From the Pallant House Gallery –Chichester brochure

In spite of the fact that Pallant House now fits very well into its surroundings, this extraordinary building must have looked positively outlandish to the inhabitants of the Pallant when it was originally completed in 1713, the year in which the Treaty of Utrecht was signed, and the last full year of Queen Anne's reign.

The Pallant (within the 'pale' or authority of the Archbishop of Canterbury) was in those days distinctly less salubrious than present appearances would suggest; this quadrant of the City of Chichester had for many years been the preserve of the leatherworkers and tanners; the unsavoury evidence of their craft would have been very evident in the air surrounding Pallant House. It would not have been considered a select residential area by any stretch of the imagination, and it is clear that the immediate neighbourhood was mostly made up of brewhouses, malthouses and washrooms. Indeed, Pallant House itself, was built on the foundation of an old malthouse, a relic of the declining brewing industry in the City; any dwellings that did exist there would have been low thatched and timber framed buildings, their projecting first floor overhanging the unpaved streets down which herdsmen still drove sheep and cattle to the pasture within the walls before taking them to market.

That part of East Pallant nearest the crossroads follows a Roman trackway to the buildings of Roman origin whose foundations have been recently uncovered next to East Pallant House. This road continues on up towards the site of the old prison which stood menacingly by the East Gate, until its demolition in 1783.

Chichester itself at this time was dominated by the Cathedral and the ecclesiastical establishments, so it is very difficult to get any clear idea of the secular city before the mid-18th Century. John Macky visited the City in 1714 and describes it in his Journey through England as "a pretty little City," whose four main streets were "neater than most of the country towns I have seen."

The other side of the coin is given by James Spershott, a local man, whose familiarity with the city as a whole gives us a far better insight into it. His memoirs of 1783 tell us that in his youth "the city had a very mean appearance in comparison of what it has since arrived to. The buildings were in general very low, very cold, and their fronts fram'd with timber which lay bare to the weather, and had a step down to the a round floor... There were very few houses even in the main street that had solid brick fronts."

Alexander Hay's History of Chichester, dealing with the early 18th Century, gives a fairly grim picture of the city, which was at that time made up, apparently, of poor thatched dwellings "except a few belonging to the dignitaries of the church, and the most opulent of the gentlemen of the corporation, and a very few independent gentlemen who resided here." The family, descended from John of Peckham, Archbishop of Canterbury in the thirteenth Century, could lay claim to all three of these qualifications. The Chichester branch of the Peckham family were deeply involved in the political and ecclesiastical government of the town, and were also landowners of some importance.

Henry Peckham, the builder of Pallant House, was born in 1683, the eldest son of "Captain" John Peckham of Crocker Hill, Boxgrove, and grandson of Sir Henry, Chichester's Member of Parliament in 1647–8. There is a strong and entirely credible tradition that Henry was a wine merchant; connected with this tradition is his nickname 'Lisbon', said to derive from his own particular specialisation which was in imports from Portugal. Indeed, he may have been one of the earliest provincial merchants to take advantage of the new trade agreement with Portugal, concluded in 1703.

Very little is known about him personally; there is a record of his marriage to Elizabeth Cutter, but the marriage never produced any offspring. Henry's will (proved in July 1764) mentions various "kinsmen," the most important of whom was the Reverend Henry Peckham, rector of Tangmere, and later Minister of Amberley, the principal legatee, and father of Harry Peckham, a distinguished barrister who was painted by George Romney and by Joseph Wright of Derby. The will also mentions two of Henry's servants, Mary Hammond receiving fifty pounds "on account of her long and faithful service and the great care she has taken of me particularly during illness", and Sarah Catchlove four pounds, probably the equivalent of a whole year's wages.

We probably learn more about Peckham's character from the house he built than from any amount of documentary evidence, but before moving on to that subject, it would be worth mentioning a couple of stories about him that fit in very well with what we can already deduce about his own personality.

Descendants of the Peckham family owned, until quite recently two portraits of Elizabethan ladies which were said to be family portraits once owned by Henry. It is clear from the photographs of these pictures that they originated not in the Elizabethan era, but at a time much closer to our own; the inference is that Henry had them painted to hang on his walls at Pallant House in order to impress visitors to the house with his noble lineage. The other very telling fact about him is that, as soon as Pallant House was completed, he was granted a request to demolish the historic wooden market cross at the centre of the Pallant used by the tanners for stamping and selling their products; this was ostensibly to allow easier passage for laden wagons, amongst which would have been his own wine carts, but it is by far more likely that the old crow impinged on the best view of his new house, so it had to be sacrificed.

The Interior

Climbing the steps and entering the front door, the visitor today as in the 18th Century comes straight into the main hall of the house. Here, the campaign to overawe and impress is remorselessly continued; the room occupies the entire depth of the house, and almost one-third of its width—a very prodigy use of space in view of its minimal practical purpose, and considering the already restricted space available for the main reception rooms. In the entrance hall it is once again the subtle combination of well calculated details that forms the overall impression. The proportions of the panelling have a tromrpe l'oeil effect of extending the spatial dimensions; the small archway under the first landing does the same, giving the impression of a further room beyond; facing this, the windows either side of the front door take up all the available wall space, giving a strong vertical emphasis to the whole wall, and creating the same illusion of grandiosity as would a classical portico; but the most spectacular feature of the hall is the massive carved oak staircase, rising in a leisurely and gracious ascent to the first floor. The overlarge hall and oak staircase are both features held in common with the group of houses in Kent mentioned earlier.

Compared to the grandeur of the hall, the rooms leading from it are of more modest proportions. On the left of the main entrance is the dining room, with its original panelling still mostly intact. By any standards this is not a large room, and it would seem more likely that it was used by Henry Peckham as a baroness office rather than any sort of reception room. Indeed, during restoration work, a very tantalising fragment of newspaper was found here which includes as advertisement announcing that "a little parcel of the best French Clarets, Obrion and Medoc, lately come from Guernsey, are to be sold by Hogsheads at 30 guineas, by dozens at 33s....”; this fragment is dateable, from internal evidence, between 1711 and 1717. The two alcoves in this room are the only part of the panelling that is not original, but it is possible that they replaced something similar from an earlier period. The type of decoration used, the absence of curtains and carpet, and the classical simplicity of the furniture place this room firmly in the early 18th Century, making it the only room in the present house, apart from the hallway and stain, in which the Peckhams might still feel at home.

Peckham's own dining room would most likely have been one half of the large room as the other side of the entrance hall, but no trace now remains of the original character or purpose of these two rooms.

Pallant House

The name Pallant seems to derive from Palenta, an enclosed or paled space, or more particularly perhaps ‘within the pale or boundary of the Archbishops of Canterbury.’

The Roman pattern of Chichester, with the four main streets, North, South, East and West, meeting at the Butter Cross, is echoed in the four Pallants. They, too, make for the points of the compass, and until 1714 met at a medieval wooden cross. Here, more than anywhere else in the city, the dignity and charm of the eighteenth century town building has been undisturbed.

For many years the leather workers made the crossing of the ways the centre for stamping and selling their goods, gathering there at the wooden cross. But in 1712 or a little earlier, a prosperous wine merchant called Henry Peckham built Pallant House at the southern end of North Pallant, and in 1713 obtained permission to pull down the old cross, probably to allow his laden wine-carts, coming from the docks, to turn more easily into what is now East Pallant.

There was to be no doubt about his importance as a citizen. The later eighteenth-century and early nineteenth century houses near-by are modest by comparison with Pallant House, their doors opening directly onto the pavement, but Henry Peckham gave his house an iron entrance gate (the gate itself no longer there) capped by his monogram, HP, facing both ways, while two brick piers on stone plinths carry, on either side, the crest of the Peckham family coat-of-arms, an ostrich proper, in stone.

Now a great part of the inside of the house from the Queen Anne dining-room to the Victorian kitchen has been returned, as nearly as we can guess, to its appearance in the days of Henry Peckham and his descendants. In the gallery room leading off the entrance hall, and in the room known as ‘the Cabinet’ at the head of the line staircase, are the pictures and sculpture from the Walter Hussey collection, as well as paintings on loan from the Wirral collection; and at the back of the main building is an extension where visiting exhibitions can be shown, and the old mansion give houseroom to the 20th century.

Lineage—This branch of the Peckhams, settled at Nyton since ca. 1680, descends from Thomas Peckham, of Rumbolds- weeke, adjoining Chichester, 4th son of Henry Peckham, Lord of the Manor of East Hampnett, Sussex, who was son and heir of Edward Peckham, Lord of East Hampnett, grandson of John Peckham, whom Henry Peckham claimed to derive from a branch of the Peckhams of Yaldham in Kent.

Charles Hewitt Smith, of Ashling Meadows (son of Rev. Charles Smith, of West Stoke, by Kitty his wife, dau. of Sir John Bull of Chipping Ongar, Essex, anal grandson of John Smith, of Chichester, who died in 1749), married 1800, Mary, only daughter and heir of John Peckham, of Nyton, Sussex, and niece of William Peckham, of Chichester, who succeeded to the estates of his kinsman, Sir Thomas Peckham, of Nyton, High Sheriff 1722 (ktd. 31 Aug.). ## Coat of Arms

Many Coats of Arms have been granted to different branches of the family named Peckham. The Coat of Arms is a pictorial history of family, started centuries ago and before the printed page, when knights emblazoned their emblems on armour and shields for identification. Each tells a story of the family, with new signs and symbols added as a notable deed was performed be some member of the family before it was passed on to the next generation.

All the Coat-of-Arms are still registered in the College of Arms (Heralds College) in London, England. The colors are of prime importance. Each color signifies something different in the family history just as do the crest and shield, and which together make up the Coat-of-Arms. Even the colors speak a language all their own, with gold described as "or"; Silver as "argent," green as "vert," etc.

The Peckham Coat-of-Arms, which may be traced from the Archbishop, John Peckham's tomb in Canterbury Cathedral, and down through the years, to Rev. Henry John Peckham, and for a period of seven hundred years, is described as:

> Ermine—a chief—quarterly—gules, red for courage or gold for character—et or/.—emblem of purity—with gold and red quarterly stripe at the top.
> The crest was: An ostrich; proper; passant...

We do not know any reason as to why the ostrich was selected for the crest of the Peckham Coat-of-Arms—this is not given. We must only conjecture—it might be—it was a symbol of swiftness and speed—swiftness in getting to the aid of a friend—or ally.

The old traditional Peckham house still stands in Chichester, England. It has ostriches on the gate posts. It was built by Sir Christopher Wren and was owned by Sir Henry Peckham.

The ancient family Motto for this distinguished name was "Tentanda Via Est": – "The way is to be held."

J. P. Brook-Little, EVO, MA, FAS, FHS, ETC., retired president of the Heraldry Society in England has written this report on "The Arms of Families of Peckham."

> Books on surnames seem to agree that families named Peckham originated in Kent, a county in south east England. Two such families bore arms and are found in various printed books and manuscript records.
> A grant of arms was made to piers Peckham, of the city of London, but whose ancestors probably came from Kent, which is close to London, on 30th June, 1494 (the ninth year of the reign of King Henry VII). The grant was to piers and his descendants, which means descendants in the male line. It was granted by the then Clarenceux King of Arms.
> The arms are officially described or blazoned as being; sable a chevron gold between three crosses Bottoney Fitshey silver. The crest is: a leopard's head sables perthed through his head and ears with three such crosses as is aforesaid, set in a wreath silver and sable. Mantlelled gules lined silver. In modern blazon this would be blazoned thus: sable a chevron or between three crosses bottany fitched argent. Crest: on a wreath argent and sable a leopard's face sable pierced through the head and ears with three crosses bottany fitched or. The mantling guled doubled argent.
> The second family was Peckham of Youldham in the parish of Wrotham, Kent. This family recorded a pedigree in the 1663 herald's visitation of Co. Kent and arms were allowed, although there is no record showing to whom they were granted. The arms may be blazoned: ermine a chief quarterly or and gules. There is no crest, consequently no helm nor mantling.
> The pedigreee begins with Reginald Peckham of Youldham. He married Mary daughter of one short and had a son James of Youldram, who married Anne, daughter of Sir Henry Iseley, Knight of Sandwich, Co. Kent. Their son Reginald of Ash in Kent was living in 1663 and was married to Elizabeth Cartwright. Their son and heir was Reginald.
> A descendant of this family was Mary, only daughter and heir of John Peckham of Nyton, Sussex, who married Charles Hewitt Smith. They had an only son and heir, Charles Peckham Smith who eventually succeeded to the Peckham estates at Nyton and obtained a royal licence, dated 25th January 1820 to take the name of Peckham in lieu of his patronym and for him and his issue to bear the Arms of Peckham. As far as can be ascertained descendants of Charles Smith Peckham, formerly Smith, still exist.

A book known as Burke's General Armory (1884; the last edition) is a collection of arms used before that time, but many of the arms cited are unauthoritative or wrongly applied. Under the name Peckham, various coats are given but these are nearly all those I have detailed, with minor unauthorized variations. Only one is quite different, but I believe it to be bogus. For the record it is a cross each arm thereof ending in a leopard's head all gold on a blue shield. The family is not given a territorial designation, which usually indicates that the coat has been wrongly attributed.

Dear Mr and Mrs Peckham

Thank you so much for your letter of 27th September. Although I retired from the Office of Clarenceux King of Arms in 1997 on attaining the age of 70, as is required by the Queen, I still have a private practice in heraldry and geology and shall be glad to make preliminary searches into the arms used legitimately by families of Beeson (or variants) of Lincolnshire and specifically to try and discover a specific family in Lincolnshire in the 18th century. The same applies to Peckhams of Kent (it is not Kentshire – a typical English inconsistency!).

This will involve quite a lot of research and I would have to charge a fee of $100 for each family. If this is agreeable please send me a cheque or draft for the fee and I shall aim to send you a report in early December.

A brief search suggests that there are arms for Beeson of Cheshire and Peckham of Kent but I have only consulted printed books.

I look forward to hearing from you and, if you wish, assisting you.

Yours sincerely
John Brooke-Little

P.S. A dollar cheque is acceptable as I have an account in Virginia.

Dear Mr Peckham

Arms and Pedigrees of Peckham

I refer to your visit to the College and to our subsequent correspondence. I am sorry that this report has been somewhat delayed due to the absence from the office of my Research Assistant but I write now to give you a report of that research and to send you a copy of other material relating to Peckham (spelled variously) which I have found in our printed volumes.

I began my research by reviewing the information already given by an erstwhile colleague some years ago and include a report of the pedigree records. I have marked the names on the pedigree that you sent to me that also occur in our own official records.

1. Pedigrees recorded between 1687 and the present day:

I began my research by consulting our Indices of officially recorded pedigrees and found the following references to the name of Peckham (spelled variously) :-

1.1 Baronets 5/88: A pedigree of Micklethwait, attested in 1839. The first generation records the marriage between John Micklethwait of Beeston, Norfolk and Marshfield, Sussex to "Elizabeth daur of WILLIAM PECKHAM of Iridge Co: Sussex. Married at Salehurst Church Co: Sussex 24 February 1756*". There is an exemplification of quartered Arms of Micklethwait and Peckham, Crest and Motto (see Grants 43/95) below.

1.2 13.D14/296-8: A very extensive pedigree over several pages following two descents of Peckham, as follows:-

1.2.1 Folio 296: A nine-generation pedigree headed by "John Peckham". This pedigree ends with the daughter (Mary, who married Charles Hewitt Smith (who subsequently changed his name to Peckham by Royal Licence dated 3 January 1920)) of "WILLIAM PECKHAM OF Nyton in par: of Aldingbourne Co: Sussex 1742: Died 1770: bur$^{d}$ at Chichester" and his wife, "Barbara daur & coheir of William Mill of Greatham Co: Sx. Living 1770*". There is an exemplification of the Arms only, the blazons of which I would read as: Ermine a Chief quartered Or and Gules.

There are several names which appear on the pedigree that you sent to me and I have marked these with a '*' where they appear, together with any other relevant facts.

1.2.2 Folio 297-8: A five-generation pedigree headed by "RICHARD PECKHAM of Upmarden Co: Sussex Gent: Named in the Will of his Cousin ROBERT PECKHAM 1629. Will dat: 10 March 1647. ... proved 20 November 1649 by his son RICHARD" and his wife, Anne who was living in 1647. The pedigree ends with one son (RICHARD PECKHAM. Baptised at Compton 16 May 1716, died 6 April 1734 aged 18) and one daughter, Sarah, of RICHARD PECKHAM of Little Green, Compton, Sussex (baptised 8 May 1683, died 14 January 1721, aged 31) and his wife, Sarah. Their grand-daughter, also named Sarah, married Thomas Phipps of Heywood House, Westbury, Wiltshire (died 1776) and had four daughters and one son, Thomas Phipps of Heywood House, Wiltshire, as well as of Little Green and also of Lordington, Sussex. He changed his name by Royal Licence (reference I.34/197, dated 25 April 1793) to Peckham-Phipps and, at the same time, had the Arms confirmed to him (see paragraph 3.2 below) but died unmarried. His sister, Susannah, married Thomas Kelsall of Greenwich in April 1780 and died on 11 May 1831. Their only daughter, Sarah Kelsall, assumed the surname of Peckham-Phipps by Royal Licence (I.51/114) and was authorised to bear the quartered Arms of Peckham and Phipps quartered with those of Kelsall (see Grants 42/207 and 215 below).

1.3 Irish Recorded Pedigrees 6/22 (&.47): A very extensive descent of the Mores of More Place, Kent headed by Sir Thomas de la More[also spelled Moor] and his brother, Sir Edward More [also sometimes spelled Moor] of the Manor of Relniden (spelled several different ways in the text but the photographic copy of this pedigree in the College's possession makes the work almost illegible). The two brothers settled in Ireland during the reign of Queen Elizabeth I and it is from them that the house of Drogheda is descended. This pedigree records the marriage of Ann, daughter of W$^{m}$ Ney[also spelled Mey] of Sandwich, Kent to JAMES PECHAM of Yaldham in Kent. There is a blazon of the Arms of Pecham/Peckham ("Ermine a Chief gu. O & G") but no children are recorded of this union

2. The Visitations:

The Heralds' Visitations were then examined. These records cover the period between 1530 and 1689 and were compiled by the Heralds as they visited each county checking that the Arms being used were correct and also recording pedigrees. In addition, they checked the unlawful assumption and display of Arms and the unlawful use of the titles of "Esquire" and "Gentleman". There were the following references to the family of Peckham:-

2.1 G.18/39: A Visitation of Sussex in 1570 and also of Cambridgeshire in 1575, made by Robert Cooke (Clarenceux King of Arms) and records the following:-

2.1.1 Folio 39: The Visitation of Cambridgeshire in 1575 records an extensive eleven-generation pedigree of Burgoyne. The sixth generation records that "Anne [Burgoyne] mar REYNOLD PECHAM of Kent".

2.1.2 Folio 117: The Visitation of Sussex in 1570 includes a pedigree of Hensley and, in the fifth generation, records the marriage between Richard Hensley of Linveld and "Jeane d. of ... PECKHAM*".

2.1.3 Folio 119: The same Visitation of Sussex includes a pedigree of Chatfield and, in the third generation records the marriage between "Richard Chatfeld of Bedyles in Dycheryng, Sx. gent*" and "Elizabeth d. of John Brane of Hove in com Sussex & widow of JOHN PECKHAM*". Their son, Francis Chatfeld, married "Anne d. of JOHN PECKHAM*". There is a tricked depiction of the Arms of Chatfeld.

2.2 E.18/16$^{b}$: In a volume of Church notes made during the Visitation of Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire in about 1590, is recorded a crude depiction of the Arms of "... PECKHAM SON OF [PETER] PECKHAM ...". I would read the untricked blazon of the Arms as: ? a Chevron ? between three Crosses crosslet ?. There is also a depiction of a quartered Coat with these Arms at Quarters 1st and 4th although the name of the Arms in Quarters 2nd and 3rd is illegible.

2.3 C.15/13: A Visitation of Essex by John Raven (Richmond Herald) in 1614 records a seven-generation of pedigree of Hall or Hawle. The third generation records the marriage between William Hawle of Ore in Essex and "Allic d. of JAMES PECKHAM*". It would appear that this record is an error as there is no place called "Ore" in Essex; it is now considered that this record should be Hall of Sussex rather than Essex and it is a mystery as to how this mistake occurred.

2.4 C.27/59: A Visitation of Sussex by John Philipott (Somerset Herald) and George Owen (York Herald) in 1634 record a six-generation pedigree headed by, "JOHN PECKHAM". The pedigree ends with the two daughters of "HEN: PECKHAM now in possession of y$^{e}$ sayd Mannor [Manor of East Hampnett, Sussex]" and his wife, "Elizab: daur of Ric$^{d}$ Grenfeild of Chichester*". There is a tricked depiction of Arms, the blazons of which I would read as: Ermine a Chief per Cross Or and Gules a Crescent for difference. Above this is written, "These Peckhams claymed to branch out of the Peckhams of Yaldham in Kent". There are several names which appear on the pedigree that you sent to me and I have marked these with a '●' where they appear.

2.5 D.18/105: A Visitation of Kent by Sir Edward Bysshe (Clarenceux King of Arms) in 1668 records a four generation pedigree headed by, "REGINALD PECKHAM of Yaldham in y$^{e}$ Pish of Wrotham in Com: Kent Ar:" and his wife, "Margaret da: of ... Short of Thordon in Com: Suff*". The pedigree ends with the only son recorded (REGINALD, son and heir) of "REGINALD PECKHAM of Ash in Com: Kent: Ar 1663" and his wife, "Eliz: da: of ... Cartwright of Man: linge Ar:*". There is a tricked depiction of Arms, the blazons of which I would read as: Ermine a Chief quarterly Or and Gules.

3. Grants recorded between 1530 and the present day:

I then made a search of the Indices of Grants made by the English and Ulster Kings of Arms between 1474 and the present day and found the following references to Peckham (spelled variously) as follows:-

3.1 Miscellaneous Grants 3/14: The "Miscellaneous Grants" volumes contain the Arms of the nobility for which no certificate from a 'lawfully constituted office' can be produced. This particular reference records a Grant of Armorial Bearings, dated 30 June 1494 (and re-examined on 4 December 1793, presumably on behalf of Thomas Phipps when changing his name to Peckham-Phipps) and granted to "Piers Pecham of the Citie of London ..." and to his descendants. There is a tricked depiction of Arms and Crest, the blazons of which I would read as follows:-

Arms: “Sable a cheveron gold Betweene 3 crosses bottony fitshey silver”
Crest: On a wreath (Argent and Sable) “… a Leopard head sable perched[sic] through his head and eares w$^{th}$ such 3 crosses as is aforesaid”

3.1.1 Miscellaneous Grants 5/71 records the same Arms and Crest but the Grant is purported to be dated January, 1404 and examined with the original on 24 October, 1639.

3.1.2 Vincent 169/171 also records a copy of the Grant which clearly shows Crosses Crosslet fitchy but marks them as “Botony”.

3.1.3 Grants 2/535: A further copy of the original made for the College of Arms on 24 October 1639 by Le Neve (Clarenceux King of Arms) and bound into the series of Grant volumes which is still used today.

3.2 I.34/197: A Royal Licence was issued on 25 April 1793 to Thomas Phipps Esq. of Little Green and Lordington, Sussex, authorising him to assume the surname of Peckham in addition to Phipps and to bear the Arms of Peckham quartered with Phipps. These Arms were not re-exemplified in the official records in 1793 (see paragraph 3.1 above); he appears on the pedigree that you sent to me and I have marked it with a ‘·I·’.

3.3 Grants 32/22: Grant of Arms dated 25 January 1820 by Warrant under Royal Signet and Sign Manual (reference I.43/11, dated 21 January 1820) authorising Charles Peckham Smith (then a minor) to assume the surname and Arms of Peckham instead of those of Smith in compliance with the Will of Sarah Farhill (néePeckham). The Arms granted were to be born by him and his descendants; he appears on the pedigree that you sent to me and I have marked it with a ‘▲’. There is an exemplification of the Arms only, the blazons of which read as follows:-

Arms: “Ermine a Chief Quarterly Or and Gules ”

3.4 Grants 42/207: A Grant of Arms dated 22 September 1837 and made to “SARAH KELSALL of Little Green in the Parish of Compton in the County of Sussex Spinster …”. As her family’s Arms did not appear to be on record at the College of Arms she was granted Arms to be born by her and her descendants and by the descendants of her grandfather, John Kelsall, sometime of Greenwich, Kent (deceased); She appears on the pedigree that you sent to me and I have marked it with a ‘ ’. There is an exemplification of Arms only, the blazons of which read as follows:-

Arms: “Ermine a Chief per pale Or and Gules over all a Bend engrailed Sable”

3.5 Grants 42/215: A Grant of Quartered Arms dated 28 October 1837 by Warrant under Royal Signet and Sign Manual (reference I.51/114, dated 28 September 1837) authorising Sarah Kelsall of Little Green, Compton, Sussex to take the surname of Peckham-Phipps and to quarter the Arms of Peckham and Phipps with those of her own family in compliance with the Will of Thomas Peckham Phipps of Little Green (deceased). The clause granting these Arms to Sarah Kelsall and to her descendants has been omitted; this has also been marked on the pedigree with a ‘ ’. There is an exemplification of the quartered Arms of Peckham and Phipps and of Kelsall, the blazons of the first and fourth quarters reading as follows:-

Arms: (Quarterly 1st and 4th) "In the First Quarter quarterly First and Fourth Per Pale Argent and Sable a Cinquefoil within an Orle of 8 Mullets counterchanged (Phipps) Second and third Peckham viz' Ermine a Chief Quarterly Or and Gules" (Quarterly 2nd and 3rd) Kelsall

3.6 Grants 43/95: A Grant of Quartered Armorial Bearings dated 12 July 1838 by Warrant under Royal Signet and Sign Manual (reference I.45/54, dated 17 July 1824) and made to "… SOTHERTON BRANTHWAYTE PECKHAM-MICKLETHWAIT of Iridge Place in the Parish of Salehurst in the County of Sussex Esquire … [grandson of] … Elizabeth Micklethwait … daughter and coheir of WILLIAM PECKHAM late of Iridge Place afsd. …" Mr S. B. Peckham-Micklethwait was authorised to take the surname of Peckham in addition to and before Micklethwait and to bear the Arms of Peckham quarterly with those of Micklethwait. The Arms granted were to be born by him and his descendants and there is an exemplification of the quartered Arms and Crest, the blazons of which read as follows:-

Arms: (Quarterly 1st and 4th) Micklethwait
(Quarterly 2nd and 3rd) "Ermine a Chief Potent quarterly Or and Gules (Peckham)
Crest: On a wreath (Argent and Gules "… upon a Mount between two Palm branches Vert an Ostrich Or in the beak a Horseshoe Sable"

4. Printed Sources:

I include information found in the following volumes which may be of interest. Neither are official records as such but the volumes of the "Dictionary of British Arms", in particular, are considered to be authoritative.

4.1 W. de Gray Birch's "British Museum Seals" (published by the British Museum, London 1887-60): I thought you might be interested to see this photocopy extract which includes six Seals belonging to various families of Peckham including James and Lora de Pecham (or Peckham) of Kent.

4.2 Woodcock & Chesshyre's "Dictionary of British Arms" (published by the Society of Antiquaries in 1992) - Volume I: There are three references to Pecham/Peckham giving blazons as follows:-

4.2.1 Arms for Johannes de Pecham found in the 15th Century Fitzwilliam version of the Herald's Roll blazoned as: Azure 6 Annulets Or.

4.2.2 Arms for Jon de Pecham found in the Dering Roll (approximately 1275) blazoned as in 4.2.1 above.

4.2.3 Arms on a Seal (described above in 4.1) for Lora Pecham.

4.2.4 Volume II: There is a reference to a Brass found in Denham Church, Buckinghamshire mentioned in the Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries of London and giving the blazon: A Chevron between three Crosslets fitchy.

Turning to the various papers, a copy of which you sent to me, there are one or two things which have occurred to me when reading them, as follows:

Account of the Peckham family by Howard H. Peckham

a) I note that you mention 'surnames' of Peacham being used as far back as 1065 although it is extremely unlikely that this was actually so. Hereditary surnames were first introduced into England by some of the leading followers of William the Conqueror and these were usually derived from the name of their estates and inherited only by the eldest son. The custom of applying a man's name to all his children began in the late 12th Century and spread slowly, with the manorial classes and the south of England leading the way. By 1400, three-quarters of the population are likely to have borne hereditary family names and the process was complete in England by about 1450 although it was not until much later in Wales.

b) In the section about the Yaldham family it mentions James de Pekham and his second wife, Lora Cawn (née de Moraunt) whose Seal can be found in the British Museum.

c) I was able to find a reference to a Reynold [later written Reginald] Peckham who married an Anne Burgoyne but not a James Peckham who married an Alice Burgoine.

Pedigree of Peckham

c) This pedigree is headed by John Peckham, OSB, said to be Vicar of Dennington in 1511 and Prior of Boxgrove in 1515. It should be noted that if he did, indeed, have two sons (and/or any other children) they must have been illegitimate as he would have taken vows of celibacy when he was originally ordained.

b) As you can see from my comment, the link between Robert Peckham (who married Joan Salter) was not proved to the satisfaction of the Heralds who examined the evidences shown to them in about 1837, before officially recording 13/D.14/296-298.

I hope that this report has been of assistance to you and that it contains some information that is new to you. If you would like a transcript of any of the records mentioned above, please do not hesitate to contact me and I will let you have a quotation for the work involved, dependant upon the length and complexity of the record involved.

Yours sincerely

The Peckham Family in America

The first Peckham to migrate to America, and the ancestor of most of the Peckhams in this country was John Peckham (1595–1681), of the fourth generation in the Yaldham family we have traced. He was born in the manor house of East Hampnett, Sussex, and was christened at Boxgrove church on April 8. It is not known how he was educated; but he became a minister of the Anglican Church. He was chaplain to William Seymour, second Earl and First Marquess of Hertford and Second Duke of Somerset (1588–1660). John could not have attained this position before 1632 because Lord Hertford was traveling on the Continent until then. Hertford has a county seat at Petworth, near Chichester in Kent. While acting as chaplain, John may have met Sir Henry Vane (1612–1662), whose father lived in the old Peckham manor at Hadlow and whose great grandfather had married Alice Peckham. John Peckham and Sir Henry Vane were fourth cousins. Young Sir Henry Vane had turned away from the Church of England and embraced the views of the Puritans. He may have influenced John in the same direction.

In 1635, Sir Henry sailed for Boston to join the Puritans there. John may have accompanied him, although the passenger list of the Abigail, which reached Boston on October 6, does not mention him. This is inconclusive, however, as it lists only 180 out of the 220 passengers. The next month Sir Henry saw Roger Williams expelled from the colony for his religious views, which intolerance must have disappointed him. In March 1636; Vane was elected governor of the colony. When Mrs. Anne Hutchinson developed religious views at variance with those of the Puritans, he sided with her, as John Peckham did also if he was there. As a result Vane was not reelected governor the following year and returned to England in the summer of 1637. Anne Hutchinson was brought to trial, convicted, and sentenced to banishment, but winter was coming on and she was permitted to remain in custody. Some of her followers were expelled, however, and they moved to the Isle of Rhodes to form a new settlement. She joined them in the spring of 1638.

In November 1637, Dr. John Clarke (1609–1676) arrived in Boston with his wife and sister, Mary. They were the children of Thomas and Kerrich Clarke of Bedfordshire, who had both died in 1627. Mary was born in 1607. Dr. Clarke was a physician and preacher with strong liberal views, and he promptly allied himself with Anne Hutchinson's followers. He left the Massachusetts Bay Colony that winter, went up to Exeter, New Hampshire, then moved down to Rhode Island early in 1638. Shortly he removed to the southern edge of the island and helped form the settlement of Newport. There on May 20,1638, appears also the name of John Peckham, Jr., who lived on the Peckham farm at Little Compton, R.I. He was also the original proprietor of East Greenwich, although there is no evidence that he lived there. His wife belonged to a distinguished English family. They had eleven children: Elizabeth, John, Mary, Rueben, Peleg, Joseph, Sarah, Timothy, Benjamin, Isaac, and Sarah.

In America a greater variety of family names exists than anywhere else in the world. Surnames of every race and nation are represented. While the greater number are of English, Scotch, Irish, or Welsh origin, brought to this country by scions of families which had borne these names for generations prior to emigration, many others, from central and southern Europe and from the Slavic countries, where the use of surnames is generally a more recently established practice, present considerable difficulty to the student of etymology and family history.

Those Americans who possess old and honored names—who trace the history of their surnames back to sturdy immigrant ancestors, or even beyond, across the seas, and into the dim mists of antiquity—may be rightfully proud of their heritage. While the name, in its origin may seem ingenious, humble, surprising, or matter-of-fact, its significance today lies not in a literal interpretation of its original meaning but in the many things that have happened to it since it first came into use. In the beginning it was only a word, a convenient label to distinguish one John from his neighbor John who lived across the field. But soon it established itself as a part of the bearer's individuality; and as it passed to his children, his children's children, and their children, it became the symbol not of one man but of a family and all that that family stood for. Handed down from generation to generation, it grew inseparably associated with the achievement, the tradition, and the prestige of the family. Like the coat of arms—that vivid symbolization of the name which warrior ancestors bore in battle—the name itself, borne through every event of a man's life and through the lives of scores of his descendents, became the badge of family honor: the "good name" to be proud of, to protect, and to fight for if need be. As the worthy deeds of the marching generations have given it dignity and splendor, it has become an institution, a family rallying cry, and the most treasured possession of those who bear it.

John Peckham and the Colonization of Rhode Island

John Peckham was a minister of the Church of England, and was Chaplain to the Earl of Hertford, who was afterward the Duke of Somerset, in 1634. But he became estranged from his church and his people through religious differences, left his Church, and became a Baptist. It will be supposed that through his relations with the Earl of Hertford, that he became acquainted with Sir Henry Vane, imbibed the latter's extreme religious ideas, and came to Boston with him in 1634. They came over on the "Griffin", a sailing ship that could carry as many as 200 passengers.

Our records of the family in American begins in 1638 although John Peckham may have been in the Massachusetts Colony for from one to four years. In the History of Rhode Island is found this interesting information: "The first settlement on the island of Aquidneck was made at Pocasett, near Portsmouth, in April of 1638, by a group of colonists who had been exiled from the Massachusetts Colony because of their liberal religious sympathies. The name of the Island was changed to the Isle of Rhodes in 1644."

As to the identity of this Sir Henry Vane, of whom we will refer to as the younger, it will be well at this time to go back and to pick up a little of the historical setting in the family genealogy. Sir Henry Vane was the son of Sir Henry Vane the elder, who was the Comptroller of the Household of King Charles I, and in consequence was the kings trusted counsellor. The name was originally, Fane, and the family were residents of the old Peckham Manor, which his great grandfather had purchased, or inherited, from the heirs of William Peckham, who was Cupbearer to the Archbishop Thomas Bourchier. Sir Henry Vane the younger, was born and reared there, which manor was the Manor of Hadlow, in Kent. Sir Henry Vane the younger, later, became Governor of the Massachusetts Colony.

It was Alice Peckham who married Sir Henry Vane the elder. She was the daughter of William Peckham, who was Cupbearer to Archbishop Thomas Bourchier. The name—Fane—somewhere, and sometime during the 16th century, was changed to Vane—and made illustrious in English history.

In the mean time, Dr. John Clarke, who had been pastor of the Coleman Street Baptist Church in London, and his sister, Mary Clarke, came over to the American Colonies, from England. The Clarkes came from Westhrope, small town near Bury-St. Edmonds, in Suffolk County, England. Dr. John Clarke later became the first elder of the Seventh Day Baptist Church in America, at Newport, Rhode Island.

John Peckham settled, with others, about mid-way of the island of Aquidneck, or Isle of Rhodes. On May 20, 1638 his name appears on a list of those who were admitted as inhabitants of Newport, Rhode Island. On March 16, 1641, he was admitted a freeman. In 1648 he was one of the ten male members of the First Baptist Church in full communion. His residence was in that part of Newport that finally became Middletown, and a stone marked "JP" is supposed to mark his grave. A reference to his will is found in a list of 17 wills that were presented to the Court in 1790, by the parties interested.

It will be interesting here to show how Rhode Island was first colonized, to show the character of the men and women who first settled there, a point of which every descendant of that colony can always be proud. This fact can no better be proven than by the following quote from Ridpath's History of the World: (the celebrated Roger Williams, a young minister of Salem) "The founding of Rhode Island was the work of Roger Williams. To him belongs the imperishable honor of being the first in America, or in Europe, to proclaim the full gospel of religious toleration.

"He declared to his people that the conscious of man may in no wise be bound by the authority of the Magistrate, that civil government has only to do with civil matters, such as the collection of taxes, the restraint and punishment of crime, and the protection of all men in the enjoyment of equal rights.

"And for these noble utterances he was obliged to quit the ministry of the Church of Salem, and retire to Plymouth."

Finally in 1634 he wrote a paper in which the declaration was made that the Grants of Land, though given by the King of England, were invalid until the Natives were justly recompensed. This was the equivalent to saying that the Colonial Charter itself was void, and that the people were living upon the land of the Indians.

Great excitement was occasioned by this publication, and Williams consented that for the sake of public peace, the paper should be burned. But he continued to teach his doctrines, saying that compulsory attendance at religious worship, as well as taxation for the support of the ministry was contrary to the teaching of the gospel.

"When arraigned for these doctrines, he crowned his offences by telling the court that a test of church membership in a voter, or any public officer, was as ridiculous as the selection of a doctor of physics for a pilot of a ship, on account of his skill in theology. These assertions raised such a storm in Court that Williams was condemned for heresy, and banished from the Colony.

"In the dead of winter he left his home and became an exile in the desolate forest. For fourteen weeks he wandered on through the snow, sleeping at night on the ground or in hollow trees, and living on parched corn, acorns, and roots. He carried with him one precious treasure, a private letter from Governor Winthrop, giving him words of cheer and encouragement.

"Nor did the Indians fail to show their gratitude to the man who did so nobly defend their rights. In the country of the Waupanaugs, he was kindly entertained. The Indian Chief Massasoit, invited him to his cabin at Pokanoket, and Canonicus, Chief of the Narrigansetts, received him as a friend and brother.

"On the left bank of the Blackstone River, near the head of Narrigansett Bay, a nesting place was at last found, and the exile pitched his tent, and with the opening of spring, he planted a field, and built the first house in the village of Seebonk.

"Soon the information came to him that he still was within the territory of the Plymouth Colony, and another removal became necessary. With the five companions who had joined him in banishment he embarked in a canoe, passed down the river and crossed to the west side of the bay. Here he was safe. His enemies could hunt him no more.

"A tract of land was honorably purchased from Canonicus, and in June of 1636, the illustrious founder of Rhode Island laid out the City of Providence. The leader of the new colony was a native of Wales, England. He was born in 1606, and was liberally educated at Cambridge. He was a pupil of Sir Edward Coke, the friend of Milton, a dissenter, a hater of ceremonies, a disciple of truth in its truest forms, and an uncompromising advocate of freedom. Exiled by the Massachusetts Colony, he brought to the banks of the Narrigansetts the great doctrine of perfect religious liberty and equal rights to all men.

"If the area of Rhode Island had adhered and co-responded with the grandeur of the principals on which she was founded, who could have foretold her destiny? It was among men and women of this character that our American ancestors mingled and sought a home. It is well to note here that while other New England colonies were at warfare with the Indians for years the Rhode Islanders lived in peace and harmony with them.

"Like Roger Williams, John Peckham was driven from the Massachusetts Colony, and by the formers advice and invitation he settled about mid-way of the Island of Aquidneck. Without doubt, he met and married Mary Clarke in Boston. In Rhode Island, John Peckham, his sons, and grandsons, appear to have become large land-holders in the colony, having received a large grant of and about the middle of the Island of Aquidneck, and later acquiring other tracts, at Little Compton, at Westerly, and at Greenwich, all in Rhode Island, until, at one time their holding extended all the way from Stonington, Connecticut to New Bedford, Massachusetts.

Roger Williams And The Charter Of 1644*

A Life of Dr. John Clarke

By: Wilbur Nelson, D. D.
Pastor Emeritus of the United Baptist
John Clarke Memorial Church
Of Newport, Rhode Island

September 17, 1644, is a memorable date in the history of Rhode Island, for it marked the return of Roger Williams from England with a charter for a new colony. This was not the charter for which the inhabitants of Aquidneck through a special committee had been negotiating for their island colony. It was one that would include the towns on Aquidneck with Providence and Warwick in a larger colony under the name of "the Charter of Incorporation for Providence Plantations in the Narragansett Bay in New England."

Williams' return was welcomed with enthusiasm by the people of Providence. His entry was like a triumphal march. Fourteen canoe loads of people met him at Seeconk and escorted him across the river, while the air was rent with shouts of welcome.

But the news of Williams' arrival with his charter was not so well received in Portsmouth and Newport. It was nearly three years before these towns voted to accept it. This was probably due in large part to a general reluctance to give up the idea of having their Island colony. Then there was strong opposition by an influential group headed by William Coddington. Perhaps the name Providence Plantations, under which the charter was granted, had something to do with it. Rhode Island at that time was much larger in population than Providence Plantations, with more wealth and a much more advanced civil government. The islanders possibly felt that their community was the more important and that the name they had chosen should be retained. Moreover, the charter, in the form in which it was delivered, included no laws, but granted the right to make laws that were in keeping with its general provisions. It was necessary that a code of laws should be prepared before the charter could become effective. This took time.

There is reason to believe that Williams, in soliciting this charter, acted with a deeper understanding of the common needs of the towns it included than those who opposed him. It was a time when unity among all the communities of that region was greatly needed to "strengthen their position at home, to fortify themselves against encroachments from abroad, and above all to secure the enjoyment of that liberty of conscience for which they had suffered so much and were destined to endure still more."

The inhabitants of Providence, Warwick, Portsmouth and Newport had many interests in common. Many of them suffered persecution, and all were actuated by a purpose to obtain for themselves and others civil and religious liberty.

The experiences of Roger Williams, who was banished from Massachusetts in 1636, being compelled in midwinter to flee into the Wilderness, and who found refuge with the Indians at a place he named Providence, are well known.

Warwick was founded by Samuel Gorton. Various opinions have been written about Mr. Gorton and his peculiar views, but he was like Roger Williams and others in the fact that he suffered for what he believed. Samuel Gorton was born in Manchester, England, in 1592. He was a highly educated man, being well versed in the languages and in English law. For a number of years, he carried on a clothing business in London and was quite well-to-do. At the age of 25, he came to New England, where he hoped "to enjoy liberty of conscience in respect to faith toward God and for no other end."

With his family he landed in Boston in 1636, the year of Williams' banishment from Massachusetts. He met the same disappointment Williams, Clarke, and others experienced, when he found in Massachusetts a church-affiliated government as austere and strict as the older government in England from which they had departed. After a few weeks in Boston, Gorton moved to Plymouth, where he found a more liberal atmosphere. But he became involved in controversy there with Governor Prence, who found occasion to order him out of the colony. Bidding farewell to his family, he left Plymouth, on December 4, 1638, like Roger Williams, and plunged into the wilderness in the midst of extremely bitter winter weather. Two weeks, later he arrived at Pocasset on the Island of Aquidneck, joining the settlers who had come there only a few months before. His relations with the islanders became strained, and he left. He moved about for a few years from place to place. Finally, in 1642, he located at Shawomet and commenced the settlement of Warwick.

His religious views are hard to define, but like those of Anne Hutchinson in the vigorous manner in which they were debated, his opinions were the subject of much debate, his opinions were the subject of much dispute. Roger Williams said of him: "Master Gorton, having abused high and low at Aquidneck, is now bewitching and bemadding poor Providence, both with his unclean and foul censures of all the ministers of this country and also denying all visible and external ordinances in the depths of familism." Yet other writers express a high opinion of his character and ability, and hold him up as an illustrious example of "the noble spirits who esteemed liberty more than life, and counting no sacrifice too great for the maintenance of principle, could not dwell at ease in a land where the inalienable rights of humanity were not acknowledged or were mocked at."

Whatever his personal views, his fundamental right to hold them was a principle that the people of Providence, Warwick, Portsmouth and Newport held in common. And his right that they granted to every man was the foundation principle on which these towns were united under the charter obtained by Roger Williams. There was too much at stake in the defense of this principle for differences of belief to keep these towns apart. United action was needed if they would preserve this fundamental right. Dr. John Clarke agreed with Roger Williams on this point, and he used his influence to conciliate those who were opposed to the idea and to bring about their consent to an adoption of the charter. This was finally done at a General Court of Election held at Portsmouth, May 19–21, 1647. "It was agreed that all should set their hands to an engagement to the charter." It was also voted that Newport would pay 50 pounds and Portsmouth 30 pounds towards the 100 pounds charged to the colony for Mr. Williams' expense in obtaining the charter.

The charter granted the people "permission to make laws for themselves, so far as the nature and constitution of the place would admit, subject to the laws of England." A code of laws was accordingly drawn up and adopted. It is supposed that Dr. Clarke was the author of this remarkable code, assisted by William Dyer.

The preamble declares the inviolability of liberty of conscience, and that the government is democratical; and the code concludes with these words: "and otherwise than thus what is herein forbidden, all men may walk as their conscience persuades them, every one in the name of his God. And let the saints of the Most High walk in this colony without molestation, in the name of Jehovah, their God, forever and ever."

Concerning this code, the historian Arnold says: "We hazard little in saying that the digest of 1647, for simplicity of diction, unencumbered as it is by the superfluous verbiage that clothes our modern statutes in learned obscurity; for breadth of comprehension, embracing as it does the foundation of the whole body of law, on every subject, which has since been adopted; and for vigor, and originality of thought and boldness of expression, as well as for the vast significance and the brilliant triumph of the principles it embodies, presents a model of legislation which has never been surpassed."

One item in the code opened the doors of the colony to the Quakers, who were a particularly despised people in other New England colonies, "Forasmuch as the consciences of Sunday men, truly conscionable, may scruple the giving or taking an oath, and it would be noways suitable to the nature and constitution of our place (who professeth ourselves to be men on different consciences, and not one willing to enforce another) to debar such as cannot do so, eyther from bearing office amongst us, or from giving in testimony in a case pending," it was enacted that an affirmation before a Judge of Record should be accounted of as full force as an oath.

The sincerity of the Rhode Island founders in contending for the principle of religious freedom was tested and proved by their attitude toward the Quakers. So despised were these people in Massachusetts that some of them were put to death. Among them was Mary Dyre, wife of William Dyre, who was hanged on Boston common for her "pernicious and dangerous doctrine." The Quakers were cordially welcomed in Rhode Island and some of the most influential, intelligent and wealthy people of the colony became Quakers. Governor Coddington, his son William, William Brenton, Nicholas Easton, John Cranston, Henry Bull, Walter Clarke, John Easton, Caleb Carr, William Wanton, and John Wanton, all of whom were governors of Rhode Island, were members of that faith. When George Fox came to New England in 1671, he made Newport his headquarters and the first Friends' Meeting in New England ,was established by him in Portsmouth.

The first officers elected by the Colony of Providence Plantations after the adoption of its code of laws were President, John Coggeshall; Assistants, Roger Williams, John Stanford, William Coddington, Randall Holden; General Recorder, William Dyre; treasurer, Jeremy Clarke.

The figure of an anchor was adopted as the seal of the colony.

"A Lively Experiment" – The Charter Of 1663

On Capitol Hill in the City of Providence, overlooking the business center of the city, stands the Rhode Island State House. Built of white Georgian marble, at a cost of more than $3,000,000, it is one of the most beautiful state capitols in America. Its dome is one of the four marble domes in the world, the others being the Taj Mahal at Agra in India, St. Peter's in Rome, and the Capitol of Minnesota in St. Paul.

Above the main or south entrance of this building is an inscription; cut deeply in marble, which reads as follows:

TO—HOLD—FORTH—A—LIVELY—EXPERIMENT
THAT—A—MOST –FLOURISHING—CIVIL—STATE

MAY—STAND

FULL—LIBERTY
IN—RELIGIOUS—CONCERNMENTS

This concise statement of the purpose of the founders of Rhode Island in the form of government which they established, and of the fact that such a civil state, guaranteeing "a full liberty in religious concernments," was "a lively experiment" in civil government, has been quoted many times.

The authorship of these words has been mistakenly attributed to Roger Williams and their origin associated with the charter obtained by Williams in 1644. But one has only to visit the office of the Secretary of State in the Rhode Island State House to learn that Dr. John Clarke was their author.

On request, the visitor will be shown the charter of 1663, which King Charles II gave to Dr. John Clarke, who received it as the agent of his colony. This ancient document, the original of which is displayed, is beautifully written on parchment. It is carefully kept in a fireproof safe. When the doors of the safe are opened, it is seen hanging at full length and can he read with little difficulty. The box in which it was brought from England and the large seal, now broken, which came with it in a separate container, also are shown.

The opening lines of this charter read as follows:

> "Charles the Second, by the grace of God, King of England, Scotland, etc... .... to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting: Whereas, we have been informed By The Humble Petition Of Our Trusty And Well Beloved Subject John Clarke, on the behalf of Richard Arnold, William Brenton, William Coddington, Nicholas Easton, William Boulston, John Porter, John Smith, Samuel Gorton, John Weeks, Roger Williams, Thomas Olney, Gregory Dexter, John Coggeshall, Joseph Clarke, Randall Holden, John Greene, John Roome, Samuel Wildbore, William Field, lames Barker, Richard Tew, Thomas Harris, and William Dyre, and the rest of the purchasers and free inhabitants of our island, called Rhode Island, and the rest of the colony of Providence Plantations in the Narragansett Bay, in America."

Here we find that in the opening sentence of the charter itself Dr. John Clarke is named as the "trusty and well beloved subject" on whose petition to the king the charter was granted. And a few lines further on is given a quotation from his petition, which includes the words over the entrance to the State House:

> "They have freely declared that it is much on their hearts (if they may be permitted) to hold forth a lively experiment that a most flourishing civil state may stand and best be maintained, and that among our English subjects, with a full liberty in religious concernments; and that true piety, rightly grounded upon gospel principles, will give the best and greatest security to sovereignty, and will lay in the hearts of men the strongest obligations to true loyalty."

Two petitions were presented to Charles II by Dr. Clarke, on behalf of his colony, and the words above quoted were written in one of them.

In his fine volume entitled Fighters for Freedom, A. K. de Blois includes a chapter, "John Clarke, Statesman," in which he calls him "the foremost American diplomat Of his age." Such a high estimate of his character and ability is well founded, as the story of his success in obtaining this charter, to which Bancroft assigns "the first position as a state paper among the records of civilized man" clearly proves.

In the year 1649, the execution of Charles I took place in England, which marked the overthrow of the monarchy and the setting up of a form of government known as "The Commonwealth" under Oliver Cromwell as head of the Council of State. This radical change in government affected the American colonies. William Coddington saw an opportunity to bring about some radical changes in his colony.

From the beginning, Coddington was opposed to the union of the towns on Aquidneck with Providence Plantations in one colonial government. He now proposed to bring about a dissolution of that union. Making a trip to England, the object of which he did not disclose at the time, he secured for himself a commission as governor of the islands of Aquidneck and Conanicut. This commission, obtained from the Council of State and signed by John Bradshaw, authorized him to govern these islands during his lifetime, with a council of six men to be named by the people and approved by him.

By what representations or influences he succeeded in his design no one knew. But as soon as he returned home and proceeded to exercise his authority, the entire colony was aroused with indignation. The inhabitants of Rhode Island felt that he had been placed in a position of virtual sovereignty and that they would be at the mercy of a dictator. The inhabitants of Providence and Warwick were alarmed because the charter under which the four towns had been governed for several years was nullified by Coddington's commission  and they were left without a charter.

Steps were taken at once to prevent Coddington from holding this appointment. Roger Williams and Dr. John Clarke were sent to England to plead with the Council of State to revoke his commission. They were eminently successful. Under an order dated October 2, 1652, Coddington's appointment was revoked and the previous charter was restored. Inasmuch as William's and Clarke had further business in England, William Dyre, who had gone out with them, returned home with the joyful news.

Coddington, who perhaps believed that he was acting for the best interests of the colony, accepted defeat gracefully. Callender says that he readily laid his commission down "on the first notice from England that he might do so; and for their further satisfaction and contentment, he, by a writing under his hand, obliges himself to make a formal surrender of all right and title to any of the lands, more than his proportion in common with the other inhabitants, whenever it should be demanded."

The people recovered their former esteem of his character and ability, for they later elected him governor. He held this office for two years, from May 1674, and was again elected in 1678. He had been in office but two months of the second term when he died, November 1, 1678, in his 78th year.

In 1654, Roger Williams returned to his home in Providence, but Dr. Clarke remained in England, to represent his colony as its agent in any future emergency. The times were critical, and the presence there of a capable representative was a much-needed safeguard. He remained in England for 13 years. During those years, he supported himself, even mortgaging his property in Newport to do so. Later when it was realized how great a service he had rendered to his colony, he was in some measure reimbursed. But it was not until after his death that the mortgage on his property was removed.

He derived some support in England from preaching and practicing medicine. He also engaged in literary pursuits and wrote at least one book, which was published in May 1652. It was entitled The News from New England or a Narrative of New England's Persecutions. In this volume, it is declared that "while Old England is becoming new, New England is becoming old." He incorporated in this volume the substance of a tract previously written, entitled A Brief Discourse Touching New England, and Particularly Rhode Island, and also a Faithful Relation of the Prosecution of Obadiah Holmes, John Crandall and John Clarke, merely for conscience Toward God, by John Clarke, merely for Conscience Toward God by the Principal Members of the Church or Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in New England, which Rules Over that Part of the World.

But he was ever alert throughout those years to protect, defend and improve the interests of his colony. And, in this respect, his post was one of great difficulty.

He represented a state anomalous in he history of the world. Her principles were deemed subversive of order and good government, and destructive to religion. Many members of Parliament were skeptical of it, and some were hostile in their attitude.

Massachusetts and Connecticut also had their agents in England, and pressed some of their claims with a view to disintegrating the Colony of the Providence Plantations. They proposed to make a tripartite division of her territory: that the Narragansett country should be absorbed by Connecticut and that Massachusetts should appropriate Providence and Warwick, while to Plymouth should fall the Island towns.

Moreover, the democracy of this colony was offensive to these neighboring colonies, particularly the toleration shown to the Baptists and the Quakers. The most cruel measures were practiced in Massachusetts to wipe out these heresies, and the fact that the heretics were given freedom and protection in Providence and the Rhode Island towns made much trouble.

Dr. Clarke had to defend his colony against the efforts of its enemies to bring it into disrepute in England, and his task was the more difficult because dissension arose in the colony, which lent color to the view that a form of government which gave so much freedom to the individual would never succeed.

Yet through all these difficulties Dr. Clarke steered his way with a steady hand, ably defended the principles for which his colony stood, firmly resisted the attacks of its enemies, cultivated the friendship of men of influence, such as John Milton, Sir Henry Vane, and Lord Clarendon. When the time came to apply for a new charter for his colony, he had met every difficulty so successfully, and used every advantage so well that he was the master of the situation.

Following the end of the Protectorate in England, the monarchy was restored, and in 1660 Charles II came to the throne. At once, all the acts of the Long Parliament which sat during the period of the Commonwealth were annulled. The charter which had been granted Roger Williams by the Earl of Warwick was canceled. The new king was prejudiced against this colony and the liberal principles it had stood for. With his colony without a charter, and a monarch opposed to granting another charter offering similar benefits, Dr. Clarke's position was most critical. "To obtain a renewal of privileges so remarkable, to secure the regard of a sovereign whose arbitrary will was an inheritance, to obtain his sanction to a system which, initiated as an experiment by a republican parliament, had come to be no longer a philosophical problem but an established fact, and which, if extended, must inevitably in time overthrow the fabric of monarchical power—these were the difficult and perhaps dangerous duties that now devolved on the agent of Rhode Island." (Arnold.)

He presented two petitions to he king in which he professed the loyalty of the colony to the Crown, and, on behalf of those he represented, asked for a charter "to hold forth a lively experiment, that a most flourishing civil state may stand and best be maintained, and that among our English subjects, with a full liberty in religious concernments. "The influence of his friends at Court, particularly Lord Clarendon, proved helpful. By every diplomatic means at his disposal, he pressed his claim and won. On July 8, 1663, he obtained the signature and seal of the king.

Under this charter, "The Incorporation of Providence Plantations" ceased to exist, and the colony received the name of the "Governor and Company of the English Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations in New England, in America."

This charter conveyed to its beneficiaries many privileges hitherto not guaranteed by any government. Among them the declaration was made "that no person within the said colony, at any time hereafter, shall be anywise molested, punished, disquieted, or called in question, for any differences of opinion on matters of religion."

The boundaries of the colony were enlarged, and many other provisions were made that give this charter the character of a very remarkable document. "The charter of Rhode Island of 1663," says Bicknell, "has been universally recognized as the most liberal state paper ever issued by the English Crown. "In it, absolute religious freedom was for the first time in the history of the world secured and guaranteed. It was so democratic, both in letter and spirit, that doubts were entertained in England whether the king had a right to grant it. It was so broad, so practical, so efficient in its provisions that it continued in force until the colony became a state, and then served as the constitution of the "State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations" for 07 years, until in 1843 the present state constitution was adopted.

But the principles it embodied still live, not only in the constitution and laws of Rhode Island but also in the government of every state of the Union and in many other countries as well. Thomas Jefferson is said to have given Dr. John Clarke the credit for obtaining this remarkable charter, and to have named it as one of the sources from which he derived the principles of the Declaration of Independence.

The charter was brought from England to the colony by Captain George Baxter, who arrived November 24, 1663. It was a joyful occasion. A great assembly of people from all over the colony gathered at Newport. It was "Voted: that the box in which the King's gracious letters were enclosed be opened, and the letters with the broad seal thereto affixed be taken forth and read by Captayne George Baxter in the audience and view of all the people; which was accordingly done, and sayd letters with his Majesty's Royall stampe, and the broad seal, with much becoming gravity held up on hygh, and presented to the perfect view of the people, and then returned into the box and locked up by the Governor, in order to the safe keeping of it."

The humble thanks of the colony were voted to His Majesty and to the Earl of Clarendon; also a gratuity of 100 pounds to Dr. John Clarke and one of 25 pounds to George Baxter.

An election of officers under the new charter was soon held, resulting in the choice of Benedict Arnold of Newport as governor.

Dr. John Clarke returned from England in 1664, and was received with enthusiastic demonstrations of gratitude and honor. In a minute passed by the General Assembly he was referred to as "our much honored and beloved Mr. John Clarke." He was yet to serve his colony in other noteworthy ways. But his place in history and in the hearts of his countrymen had now been made by the outstanding achievement of his life, the royal charter of 1663.

John Clarke, Physician

On a wall at the Newport Historical Society is placed a tablet that reads:

Erected by the Newport Medical Society

December 1885
to John CLARKE, Physician
1609–1676

Founder of Newport
And of the Civil Polity of Rhode Island

Dr. Clarke was the first regularly educated physician in Rhode Island. He practiced this profession during all the years of his residence there. In his two-fold capacity as a physician and a preacher he may be thought of as a pioneer medical missionary, living an extremely busy life as he ministered to the physical and spiritual needs of the people. During the 13 years of his residence in England he practiced his profession in London, and signed himself "John Clarke, physician, of London," His work as a physician is overshadowed by the greater prominence of his public life, and cannot be described in detail. But it is easy to imagine that much of his popularity and influence lay in the fact that he ministered to the people in their physical ills in such a gentle, kindly and sympathetic manner that he was beloved by practically everyone.

The members of the Newport Medical Society maintain the highest standards of their profession, and in placing a tablet to the memory of "John Clarke, Physician," they felt that they were honoring themselves in recognizing him as one of their number.

John Clarke, Christian Minister

The Christian ministry of Dr. John Clarke in Rhode Island began with the settlement of the Island in 1638. He was the religious leader of the founders at the beginning of their coming together, and it is probable that he was appointed to this position even before they left Boston. He was the only preacher and pastor among them for as much as two years. It was originally expected that the Rev. John Wheelwright would be their religious leader, but, when he decided to go to Long Island, their choice fell on Dr. Clarke. He carried on public worship, as Mr. Brewster did at Plymouth, and served alone in this capacity until the coming of Mr. Robert Lenthall in 1640, who assisted him for a time. In this capacity, he served both towns, Portsmouth and Newport. One of the first cares of the people in each community was "to build a meetinghouse," and "John Clarke was a physician and preacher to those on the island."

It is evident that those to whom he ministered formed a church as early as the year 1638. Winthrop's Journal, under date of May 11, 1639, states that "they gathered a church in a very disordered way; for they took some excommunicated persons, and others who were members of the church of Boston, and not dismissed." This item refers to this church as though it had been gathered some time before, doubtless in the year 1638.

It is evident that this was an independent church of some kind. Winthrop states further: "The church at Boston sent three brethren with letters to those in Aquiday, who had been their members, to enquire into their judgments respecting divers points of religion, formerly maintained by all, to require them to give an account of their unwarrantable practice in communicating with excommunicated persons, etc. When they came, they found that those of them who dwell in Newport had joined themselves to a church there, newly constituted; and thereupon, they refused to hear them, as messengers of our church, or to receive their letters." Winthrop does not call this church by any denominational name. But its attitude toward the messengers from Boston clearly shows that it had adapted the Baptist principle of independence.

There were certainly Baptists in the congregation, and Baptist sentiments were growing in the community. In another item, Winthrop states that there were "professed Anabaptists on the island." Early in 1641 he writes of troubles on the island growing out of dissension among the leaders and says that "divers of them turned professed Anabaptists." As a matter of fact, it appears that Baptist doctrines were receiving a great deal of attention in every New England colony at that time. H.M. King, in his book, The Baptist of Roger Williams, says, "The thoughts of the New World were all alive on Baptist questions, and its literature was saturated with their discussion. The whole atmosphere was filled with Baptist ozone. Baptist sentiments were imported with almost every ship from England." That some of these Baptists should have been among the earliest settlers or should later have joined the first settlers on the island of Aquidneck, where the historic Baptist principle of soul liberty held full sway, was inevitable.

Among those who came was Robert Lenthall, who was admitted a freeman, August 20, 1640. Mr. Lenthall had been accused, two years before, at Weymouth, Massachusetts, of "Antinomian and Anabaptistical errors." "From the former," says Winthrop, "he was soon taken off upon conference with Mr. Cotton, but he stuck close to the other, that only baptism was the door of entrance into the church." In 1638 he tried, together with John Smith, John Spur, and others, to form a Baptist church in Weymouth, but the attempt was frustrated by the magistrates of the colony. Mr. Lenthall then moved to Newport.

He was appointed teacher of the public school that was started soon after his arrival, and he became at once associated with Dr. Clarke in his religious ministry. A lively controversy was then on in the congregation over doctrinal questions. Two fundamental questions were being discussed, namely, the sufficiency of the Scriptures as a role of faith and practice, and the existence upon earth of a visible church with visible ordinances. The Antinomians, who claimed to be in possession of an inner light which was to be followed rather then the teaching of the Word of God, kept the controversy alive.

On the one side were Mr. Coddington, Mr. Coggeshall, and others; on the opposite side were Dr. Clarke, Mr. Lenthall, Mr. Harding, and others, the latter defending the Scriptures and the Church and its ordinances. At length, the controversy became so heated that it divided the congregation.

Early in 1641, Winthrop writes of trouble on the Island growing out of religious dissension among the leaders, and he says that "divers of them turned professed Anabaptists." The result appears to have been that William Coddington and a number of others shortly afterward formed a Quaker church, while the rest of the congregation remained in the church to which Dr. Clarke ministered, which became distinctively a Baptist church.

Just when this church became known as a Baptist church is uncertain. John Corner, the first writer who sought to ascertain the date in question, found a manuscript giving a list of the members of the church in 1648. But he later found that the church was in existence as much earlier as 1644. His minute reads: "Having found a private record of Mr. Samuel Hubbard, who was a member of this church, by which I find that this church was in being as long back as October 12, 1648; but how long before justly by any manuscript I can't find, but by private information it was constituted about 1644." Callender remarked: "It is said that in 1644 Mr. John Clarke and some others formed a church on the scheme and principles of the Baptists." Backus, in his history, says: "The first Baptist church, we are told, was formed and set in order the year 1644, under the ministry of Mr. John Clarke," and then adds in a note that the date "appears as likely to be earlier as later than that time."

None of these early historians expresses a definitive opinion on this matter. What seems a reasonable explanation is that a church that was independent in character and included Baptists in its congregation was gathered in 1638, under the ministry of Dr. John Clarke. But, in view of the fact that there were people of differing religious views in the community, and only one church, this church did not assume a denominational character until after those who differed withdrew and formed a church of their own. After that, the original church became in name a Baptist Church. It continued its existence under the ministry of Dr. Clarke, has had an unbroken history ever since, and is now known as the United Baptist John Clarke Memorial Church of Newport.

The earliest recorded list of members of this church was made by Samuel Hubbard, who wrote it in his diary, October 12, 1643, the day when he and two others were baptized. The list contains 15 names, as follows: John Clarke, Elizabeth Clarke, Mark Lucer, Joseph Clarke, John Peckham, Nathaniel West, Mrs. West, William Weeden, Thomas Clarke, William Vaughn, John Thorndon, Thomas Painter, Samuel Hubbard, Tacy Hubbard, Elenor Peckham.

Information is lacking as to when and where Dr. Clarke became a Baptist. There is no record of any change in his religious views after he came to America. One writer has stated that "he received his baptism in Elder Stillwell's church in London." As there is nothing to substantiate this statement, we have to take it at its face value. Bicknell expresses the opinion that "it is reasonable to assume that he was a member of, or in fellowship with, the Baptists of Holland." Barrows gives a number of reasons for believing that he was "Undoubtedly a Baptist before leaving England, and as a Baptist refugee came to this country." His spirit of independence, his views on the subject of religious liberty, and his contention for the sufficiency of the Scriptures as a rule of faith and practice are among the reasons stated. Whatever uncertainty there may be as to when and where Dr. Clarke was baptized, the fact that he was one of the outstanding Baptists of his day will not be questioned.

Two new churches were formed in Newport during the period of Dr. Clarke's ministry by members who withdrew from the First church for doctrinal reasons. In 1656, following a prolonged discussion of the doctrine of laying on of hands, 21 members withdrew and formed a six-principle church, which became the Second Baptist Church of Newport. The laying on of hands is one of the six principles named in Hebrews 6:l-2, which reads: "Therefore, leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment." It was contended by some that the laying on of hands was as essential a principle as the others named, and, as a rite, was as important as baptism or the Lord's Supper.

Dr. Susan H. Franklin, in her Historical Sketch of the Second Baptist Church, refers to the intense feeling engendered by this discussion, and expressed the opinion that "had not Dr. John Clarke been in England at this time on the important mission of obtaining a charter for the colony, the separation of the two churches might have been avoided."

In 1665, several members of the First Church began to keep the seventh day of the week as their Sabbath, and that subject was warmly debated. Finally, in 1671, these members withdrew and formed a Seventh Day Baptist Church. This church is no longer in existence, but the old meetinghouse Oil Barney Street, Newport, is carefully preserved by the Newport Historical Society. This was the first Seventh Day Baptist Church in America.

"The withdrawal of so many excellent members," writes Barrows, "weakened the church numerically, but the discussions were not entirely unprofitable, since they served to drive the members to a closer study of the Bible and to make them more familiar with its teachings."

But gains as well as losses are to be recorded. Baptist sentiments were increasing in Rhode Island and elsewhere. In 1650, several families moved to Newport from Rehoboth, Massachusetts, for the purpose of living where they could enjoy their beliefs in freedom, and be in fellowship with a Baptist church. Among them was Obadiah Holmes, the second pastor of the church. There were also a number of Baptists who resided in Massachusetts but held their membership in the Newport church, as the stringent laws of their colony made it impossible for them to have churches of their own, and severe penalties were imposed upon them for any attempts to spread their teachings.

One of these non-resident members, William Witter, lived at Lynn. He was an old man, and, in the summer of 1651, Dr. Clarke, accompanied by Obadiah Holmes and John Crandall, made him a visit. What happened on that memorable visit is fully related in the following chapter.

Dr. Clarke's ministry was a long one. He was nominally the pastor of the Newport church for 38 years, but his work was interrupted during the 13 years of his absence in London. Except for those years, he served the church continuously from its beginning in 1638 until his death in 1676. With one exception, this is the longest pastorate in the history of this Church.

The church founded by Roger Williams, in Providence and the one founded by Dr. John Clarke in Newport share the distinction of being the two oldest Baptist churches in America. If we accept the view, which is generally held, that the Providence church is the older, let it be remembered that Dr. Clarke's long ministry gives to the Newport church a unique distinction. Unlike Roger Williams, who withdrew from the Providence church within a few months and became a "Seeker," Dr. Clarke remained a Baptist to the end of his life. Even though Mr. Williams retained fundamental Baptist views, he could no longer be called a Baptist minister. But Dr. Clarke continued in the pastorate of the Newport church until the day of his death. To him justly belongs first place in the American Baptist ministry.

Dr. A. W. Cleaves, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Providence, says: "I believe that it is proved, that the church in Providence has the priority as a Baptist church. At the same time, I gladly agree with the Rev. Wilbur Nelson, Pastor of the First Baptist John Clarke Church in Newport, that the first long-sustained and significant ministry among American Baptists was that of Rev. John Clarke of Newport."

John Peckham, Sr.

John, Sr. on May 20,1638 name appeared in a list of those who were admitted inhabitants of Newport Rhode Island after that date. And in1640 his bounds were established of "a parcel of land containing 32 acres more or less lying south-easterly upon Hambrook Mill, the east end thereof butting upon Stony River, bound on the south with land of John Layton, on the north by Thomas Clarke's land, on the west by the way that goes to Sachem's Meadow." On March 16, 1641 John, Sr. was a Freeman. In 1648 he was one of ten male members in full communion, of the First Baptist Church. That same year Eleanor Peckham was baptized. In a deed dated May 30, 1651, from Joshus Coggeshall and mother Mary Coggeshall to Walter Conigrave, the land granted to Mary Clarke, now deceased, sometime the wife of John Peckham. Mary Clarke was probably the sister of John Clarke since he had a sister by that name born in 1607. In 1655 John, Sr. is again listed as a Freeman. His residence was in the part of Newport that later became Middletown and his grave is marked J P on land owned by William F. Peckham. In 1680 John, Sr. was taxed 1 Pound, 7 shilling and 3 d. On January 6,1681 John, Sr's. will was witnessed by John Clarke and Henry Tew and this will along with 17 others was presented to the Court in 1700. (Other sources include Vital Records of Rhode Island by Arnold, Vital Records of Rhode Island by Beaman, and New England Historical and Genealogical Register.) These records provide much of the Peckham family information of the first several generations.

John$^1$ Peckham, Sr.

Immigrant
John Peckham, Chaplain to the Earl of Hertford, was chaplain to William Seymour, Duke of Somerset in England. Seymour was one of the most powerful noblemen during the reign of Charles I. As chaplain, John Peckham, undoubtedly, became acquainted with Sir Henry Vane, who moved to Boston, Massachusetts, in 1634. It can be conjectured that John Peckham came with Sir Henry Vane, who was appointed Governor of the Massachusetts Colony.

As an Anglican clergyman, John was probably reluctant to openly discuss his feelings and theological thoughts which were against the Mother Church. John is thought to have become acquainted with Mary Clarke, his first wife, through her brother, John Clarke. Instead of returning to England, he was married to Mary Clark by Mary's brother and moved to Rhode Island with the Clarkes, who were allied with Roger Williams and Ann Hutchinson,.leaders of the Baptist faith (PG, p. 20).

John Peckham in Rhode Island
By 1638 John was listed as one of the trustees of the First Baptist Church of Newport, Rhode Island. It is thought John inherited some money because he purchased a sizeable acreage of land in Rhode Island. This land was occupied by five generations of Peckhams and was sold to others after the Revolutionary War.

Mary Clarke bore four children and died about 1648. John then married Eleanor Weaver, who bore seven children. So John Peckham was the father of 13 children, and most the Peckhams in the United States today, according to research and tradition, are descendants of John and these two wives.

Eleanor Weaver

Eleanor was baptized in the Baptist Church in Rhode Island in1648 the same year she marries John. She was baptized as Eleanor Peckham so it could have been after she married John Peckham. There is some speculation that Eleanor was a cousin of John who came to the colonies with Robert Peckham who returned to England. Others hold that Eleanor's last name was Weaver from their research so the author is using Weaver as her surname.

Summary

Among these, all descendants of John Peckham, each generation produced members who held honorable positions; and while none were very wealthy, none were very poor. Crime is almost unknown in the Peckham ranks. Many were intellectually inquisitive and attained a good education.

Some graduated from colleges and universities and took their place among the scholars and professionals. One became a judge on the United States Supreme Court, while a number became successful lawyers. Others became physicians, professors, philosophers, scientists and clergymen. Representatives of the Peckham family are included in many occupations, from Judge Rufus W. Peckham down.

In appearance, the Peckhams tend to be of medium stature, with round faces. The Peckham personality traits include a certain amount of reserve. Yet, once the crust is broken, there is a gentle and warm response. Many Peckhams are noted for their wit and humor. Both the men and the women tend to be leaders in community groups, such as schools, churches and clubs, and are highly regarded as persons of principle and fairness. All have inherited an independent air and manner as free persons. They resist calling anyone master. (PG, p.29).

Thomas Peckham Sr.

Thomas Peckham lived in Newport, R. I., and was a weaver. The name of his first wife is not known; his second wife was Hannah (Weeden) Clarke, daughter of William Weeden and the widow of William Clarke. After the death of Thomas Peckham in 1709, she married as her third husband Joseph Clarke of Westerlay, R. I., brother of her first husband.

Thomas Peckham Sr.

Thomas Peckham was one of the original proprietors of East Greenwich in 1677, and was a deputy, from Newport, to the General Assembly, which met on May 4, 1708. Very little is known of the events of the life of Thomas, or of those of his son and namesake, Thomas Peckham, Junior. The Town Records of Newport, where both of them resided, were placed on board of a vessel for safety during the Revolution, and the vessel was sunk for over a year in the rocky narrows known as "Hell Gate," in the East River or Sound. Although recovered later, the papers were so mutilated by their long immersion that many of them are undecipherable. His sons, Philip and Daniel, who removed from Newport to Westerly, had many descendants whose history is supported by both public and private records. These two lines will be found fairly well carried out in the succeeding generations of this work, but for the reason stated above, the record of the descendants of Thomas Peckham are not as complete as desirable, but as far as they go are correct.

(Source: Stephen Farnum Peckham )

Thomas Peckham Sr.

Thomas Sr. was among those whom were granted 5,000 acres to be called East Greenwich on October 31, 1677. In 1680, he was taxed 17 shillings and 3 d. As recorded on March 4, 1702, he was one of the proprietors in the common land and was made a deputy in 1708. His will was proven November 16, 1708 to son Thomas Jr. 1 shilling he having already had, to daughter Sarah Underwood 5 pounds, to son Daniel a yoke and 30 pounds at age, to son James a square barrel gun, dwelling house and land adjoining, to sons Daniel and James carpenter tools, to son Phillip the rest of the land and housing, to my wife Hannah all my cash and 3 pounds yearly, with use of mare, cow, and household goods, and the use of the land and house given to James, at the death of my wife all household goods, cow mare, etc., go to sons Daniel and James. On March 7, 1709 Daniel and James chose their mother as their guardian. Joseph Clarke and Hannah his wife (widow of Thomas Peckham) brought suit in March 1722 against Phillip Peckham for a 3 pound annuity. Daniel went to Westery.

Mary Clarke$^2$ Peckham (John$^1$) was born about 1641 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island and died in 1695 in Westerly, Washington County, Rhode Island.

Mary married Tobias Saunders 1661 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island. Tobias was born 1622 in England, and died September 2, 1695, in Westerly, Washington County, Rhode Island, the son of Joseph Saunders.

Susannah Saunders was born in 1688 in Westerly, Washington County, Rhode Island and died after 1733. She married Peter Barker, born in 1668 in Westerly, Washington County, Rhode Island and died in 1775.

Stephen Saunders was born in 1690 in Westerly, Washington County, Rhode Island and died on November 24, 1746, Westerly, Washington County, Rhode Island.

Mary Clarke Peckham

It is only recently that proof was obtained that Mary (Peckham) Saunders was the daughter of John Peckham and Mary Clarke. This proof consists of the Will of the Reverend John Clarke, brother of Mary, dated 1676, April 20, in which he leaves legacies to "brother Joseph Clarke and his children by his first wife, excluding John" to "cousin Fish [i.e., niece, wife of Samuel Fish] and her children" to "cousin Mary Saunders wife of Tobias and her children" the proceeds of the sale of lands on Connecticut Island, brother Joseph, cousins Fish and Saunders each to have a double share. Another, and stronger proof of Mary's parentage is the Will of her husband, Tobias Saunders, dated 1688, August g, in which he makes "cousin Joseph Clarke overseer [i. e., his wife's nephew]" and bequeaths to his son, John Saunders, land to the value of £4, "given my son John by wife's uncle John Clarke of Rhode Island, dec."

They had the following children:

Elizabeth Peckham was born on September 17, 1668, in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island and died on December 2, 1723, in Little Compton, Newport County, Rhode Island. She married James Weeden, born on January 7, 1673/74, Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island.

Sarah Peckham was born on June 26, 1690, in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island and died in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island. She married John Underwood. He was born in 1676 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island.

John Peckham Jr.

John Peckham Jr. became a Freeman on October 29, 1668. The Assembly voted to allow 1Pound to John Peckham Jr. for the hire of his horse to go to Hartford with Mr. Terrey and for Mr. Crandall's horse. On June 7, 1671, he was a juryman in case of two Indians imprisoned on criminal charges. On October 31, 1677, he and forty-seven others were granted a plantation of 5,000 acres to be called East Greenwich. His next transaction took place on September 15, 1677. He sold Caleb Carr of Newport, 1-150 shares of Conanicut Island (10 acres) and rights in township and Dutch Island for 7 Pounds. In 1680 John Jr. was taxed 13 shillings. And on March 18, 1688, he bought 30 acres in Little Compton and Benjamin went to South Kingstown.

John Peckham Jr.

John Peckham, Jr. lived on the Peckham estate at Little Compton, R. I., and was one of the original Proprietors of East Greenwich R. I, although there is no evidence that he ever resided there. He was married in 1667 to Sarah Stewart Newport. The Newports were a distinguished English family, and connected with the family of George Herbert, the well known writer of religious poems. Isaac Walton, in the Life of George Herbert, page 20, mentions this connection, which we quote:

"The Place of George Herbert's birth was near the town of Montgomery, England. The castle was then a place of state and prestige and had been successively happy in the family of Herbert who long possessed it with plentiful estate and hearts as liberal to their poor neighbors. The family had been blessed with men of remarkable wisdom and willingness to serve their country and did good to all mankind for which they were eminent.

"The father of George Herbert was Richard Herbert, a son of Edward Herbert Knight the son of Richard Herbert, Knight, the son of the famous Sir Richard Herbert of Colebrook in the County of Monmouth, Banneret, who was the youngest brother of that memorable William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke, who lived in the reign of Edward 4th. His mother was Magdalen Newport, the youngest daughter of Sir Richard and sister to Sir Francis Newport of High Arcall in the County of Salop, Knight, grandfather of Francis, Lord Newport, High Comptroller in his Majesty's household, a family that for their loyalty have suffered much. This mother of George Herbert was the mother of seven sons and three daughters, which she would often say was Job's number and Job's distribution, and blessed God that they were neither deficient in their shapes or in their reasons, and blessed God for so great a blessing. Edward the oldest was made Knight of the Bath at that glorious time of our late Prince Henry, son of James I, being installed Knight of the Garter, after many years of travel attaining many languages, was sent as Ambassador Resident to the French King, Louis XIII, and returned in the reign of King Charles the 1st who made him First Baron of Castle Island and of Cherbury in the County of Salop, Lord Herbert of Cherbury distinguished himself in the Wars of the Netherlands and died 1648, the two brothers were Richard and William. They ventured their lives in the Wars of the Low Countries and died Officers. Charles was the fourth son and died Fellow of New College in Oxford. Henry was the fifth, who became a menial servant to the crown in the reign of King James and continued the same for fifty years. The sixth was Thomas, Captain of a ship in the fleet with which Sir Robert Maunsell was sent against Algiers and had there shown fortunate and true English valour.

Of the three sisters, I need not say more than that they were all married to persons of worth and plentiful fortune and lived to be examples of virtue and did good in their generation."

(Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island )

William$^2$ Peckham, Rev. (John$^1$) was born about 1647 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island, and died June 2, 1734, in Little Compton, Newport County, Rhode Island.

William married Elizabeth Clarke 1674 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island. Elizabeth was born 1652 in Westerly, Washington County, Rhode Island and died after 1683 in Middletown, Newport County, Rhode Island. She was the daughter of Joseph and Hannah (Weeden) Clarke.

They had the following children:

* William Peckham Jr. was born on August 30, 1675, in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island and died on January 18, 1764, in Middletown, Newport, County, Rhode Island.

William also married Phoebe Weeden about 1678 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island. Phoebe was born about 1658 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island and died in 1745 in Middletown, Newport County, Rhode Island. She was the daughter of William and Philippa (Cocke) Weeden.

They had the following children:

Samuel Peckham Sr. was born about 1679 in Middletown, Newport County, Rhode Island and died on 1757. He was married and had a daughter name Phoebe.

Mary Peckham was born about 1681. She married ________Thomas and ________Barker and had a daughter named Phoebe Barker.

Phoebe Peckham was born about 1683. She married _______ Tripp.

Deborah Peckham was born in 1685. She married Jeremiah Clarke.

William also married Hannah Weeden 1688. She was born about 1651 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island.

Reverend William Peckham

Rev. William Peckham was born about 1647, and lived at Newport, Rhode Island. His first wife was Elizabeth Clarke, (daughter of Joseph Clarke and niece of Reverend John Clarke. She was also the niece of John Peckham and his first wife, Mary Clarke, and thus the first cousin of her husband. The date of her death is not known. His second wife was Phoebe Weeden, (daughter of William Weeden, and probably the sister of his brother Thomas' second wife. She survived him, dying at Middletown, R. I., in 1745 He died, June 2, 1734.

William Peckham took a large and active share in the doings of the community in which he lived. He was Deputy to the General Assembly in 1696 to 1698. On July 17, 1708, he was granted a share of eighteen acres of the Proprietors' lands. On March 3, 1708, on behalf of the church, he and others sold to John Vaughn for 118, "a house at Green End which was their meeting house" Nov. 15, 1711 he was ordained Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Newport by Samuel Luther, minister and Samuel Bullock, deacon, both of Swansea Mass. His is said to have been the first ordination of a Baptist minister on the continent. He thus became the fourth pastor of this church, a Baptist church having been established at Swansea by John Myles about 1663. The ordaining officers were authorized to be absent from their church by the Mother Church at Swansea. England, in order to perform these sacraments. On April 24, 1726, he signed a letter with others, addressed to the church of the Rev. Joseph Crandall (Seventh Day Baptist), regarding some doctrinal differences. On May 19, 1726, he ordained Rev. John Comer as Assistant Pastor. On March 3, 1730, Mr. Comer wrote in his diary: "This day I went to see Elder Peckham who discoursed to my satisfaction about ye trouble and ye things of God." On Oct. 13, 1731, Rev. John Callender was ordained in place of Mr. Comer. In his will William Peckham mentions his sons William and Samuel, and daughters, Mary Thomas, Phoebe Tripp, and Deborah Clarke; also his wife, Phoebe. The Will of Phoebe (Weeden) Peckham mentions daughters, Marv Barker, Phoebe Weeden, Deborah Clarke; also Phoebe and Mary, daughters of Mary Barker, and Phoebe, daughter of her son Samuel.

Stephen Peckham Sr.

Stephen Peckham lived in Dartmouth, Mass., to which place he removed from Rhode Island, his birthplace. He died 1724, April 23. He married, probably before leaving Newport, Mary. While there is no proof concerning the identity of this Mary, some of the descendants of Stephen have concluded, from a number of suppositions based upon family tradition, that she was a daughter of Captain Seth Pope of Plymouth Colony. However this may be, the families of Peckham who were descended from this Stephen and Mary, the Hathaways and Popes, intermarried through several generations, as will be seen from the records, and they occupied a portion of what is now the town of Westport until they were so numerous that the locality was known as the Peckham and Hathaway neighborhood.

Stephen Peckham was one of the original Proprietors of East Greenwich, R. I, in 1677. In January 1679, he also had a grant of land in the Narragansett, though he probably never went there. 1679, Dec. 9, he bought from Captain Seth Pope a one quarter share right in Dartmouth, Mass. The original Proprietors of this territory lived in Plymouth, Mass. It comprised New Bedford, Fairhaven, Westport, and the present town of Dartmouth. Previous to the Revolution, the district on the west side of the Acushnet River, between Clarke's Point and the "Head of the River," was occupied by a few substantial farmers in the following order: from the Point, north, Benjamin Allen; Joseph Russell, Senior; Joseph Russell, Junior; Manassah Kempton; Samuel Willis; Stephen Peckham. The farm of Stephen Peckham extended from the south side of what is now Linden Street, northward to within the limits of what is now New Bedford. His name is among those of a list of Proprietors to whom a confirmatory deed was given by Governor William Bradford, 1694, Nov. 12. The inventory of the property of Stephen Peckham, taken in 1724, amounted to £1,8o7-5s.

James$^2$ Peckham (John$^1$) was born about 1655, in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island and died on February 26, 1711/12, in Little Compton, Newport County, Rhode Island.

He died unmarried.

James Peckham

James Peckham died in 1712, February 26, unmarried. No further record of him is known beyond the administration of his estate. An inventory of his Newport estate was shown in 1712, March 10, his eldest surviving brother, William Peckham, and Joseph Peckham, a nephew, desired that power of administration might be granted to Thomas Peckham and William Weeden, Junior, both of Newport. On March 21, 1712, an inventory of his estate in Little Compton was shown by Mr. Peckham of Newport and Captain Thomas Grey of Little Compton, when power of attorney was granted to William and Philip Peckham and John Taylor to sell real estate of the deceased, signed by the following legal representatives: Eleanor Peckham, John and Rebecca Spooner, Isaac Peckham, Deborah Taylor, Thomas and Phoebe Grey, Peter and Elizabeth Taylor, Thomas and Stephen Peckham, Peter and Susanna Barker. William and Sarah Weeden, John and Sarah Underwood, John, Daniel and Timothy Peckham. The right of Job Peckham was accepted.

From this record it would appear that Eleanor Peckham, the second wife of John$^1$ Peckham, was still living. She was probably a very old woman at the time, but as the date is one hundred and seventeen years after the birth of John Peckham, her husband, it indicates that Eleanor Peckham must have been very young at the time of her marriage, which is assumed, rather than proved, to have occurred in 1648. John and Rebecca Spooner were the daughter and son-in-law of John Peckham; Isaac Peckham was his grandson; Deborah Taylor was his daughter; Thomas and Phoebe Grey were his son-in-law and daughter; so, also, were Peter and Elizabeth Taylor. Thomas Peckham was the son of Thomas and grandson of John Peckham. Peter and Susanna Barker were the son-in-law and daughter of John Peckham's oldest child, Mary (Peckham) Saunders. William and Sarah Weeden were the son-in-law and daughter of John Peckham's eldest son, John and Sarah Underwood were the daughter and son-in-law of Thomas Peckham, while John, Daniel and Thomas Peckham were probably all grandsons of John$^1$ Peckham. There were also interested parties who were absent: William Peckham, son of John Peckham, and Benjamin Peckham, son of John [2] Peckham, who were at that time interested in purchases of land in what is known as the Narragansett Country. This record gives a clear insight into the relation of the sons and-grandsons of John[1] Peckham, living at that date. It had been supposed that Susanna Barker was a daughter of John Peckham, but research at Taunton has proved her to be his granddaughter.

Clement Peckham

Clement Peckham lived in Newport. Almost nothing is know concerning him, but from the fact that his descendants, so far as they are known, named their sons "Tiles." it has been conjectured that his wife was a sister to Tiles Lawton. It is singular that this name is wholly confined to the descendants of Clement Peckham through many generations. He bought land in Tiverton in 1706 and 1708, and appears to have died young, leaving his son, Job, the only child of whom there is any knowledge, an orphan while a minor.

He was elected a Deputy to the Legislature from Little Compton for many years. After 1707 he was not returned. Family tradition says that he and his wife are buried in the Peckham burying ground on the old farm at Little Compton, but the Friends' Records, as quoted above, differ from this as regards John Peckham. In 1712 he signed in the administration of his uncle James' estate.

Benjamin Peckham Sr.

Benjamin Peckham was born in 1684, June 9, and died in 1769, his Will being proved on 21 June of that year. He married 1708, Sept. 23, Mary Carr, the daughter of Caleb and Philipa (Greene) Carr, of Jamestown, R. I., and the granddaughter of Governor John Greene. Her aunt was the wife of Thomas Paine. She was born about 1686 and was living at the date of the probate of her husband's Will. The Will of Caleb Carr mentions "Father Major John Greene and brother in law Peter Greene."

Benjamin Peckham removed to South Kingston, R. I, probably soon after his marriage, as the births of his children are all recorded in that town. In 1718 (deed recorded 1718, Feb. 9), Benjamin Peckham and Joseph Hoxsie bought of Edward Greenman and Margaret his wife, three hundred and fifty acres of land in Matunuck, called Greenman's homestead farm, for £250 current money, etc. This land was bounded by Col. George Hazard on the north; east by Point Judith pond; south by John Potter and west by the highway. At the same date eighty acres called the Hills, bounded on the north by land of William Brenton, for 1314 current money, etc., sold to Benjamin Peckham eighteen and one-half acres, being part marsh meadow and part upland; bounded north by Point Judith pond; south by the pond (i. e. Potter's pond). 1730, July 4, Benjamin Peckham bought of the Arnolds a part of Mumford Island. 1731, Nov. 30, Samuel Allen, for £360 current money, etc., sold to Benjamin Peckham fifty-five acres bounded north by Samuel Tefft ; east by highway; west by William Gardiner, son of William, deceased. 1735, April 10 Jonathan Turner and wife Elizabeth sold to Benjamin Peckham, for £880 current money, one hundred and thirty acres. 1740. Aug. 8, Daniel McCoon and wife Sarah sold to Benjamin Peckham, for £5,000 current money, one hundred and eighty acres, with houses, outhouses, edifices and buildings thereon; bounded west on highway; south on. John Potter; east on Point Judith pond; north on said Peckham. Also a parcel of land called the Dills, eighty acres, bounded east on highway; south on John Potter: west on a fresh pond, and partly on George Babcock: north on said Peckham. 1748, Nov. 17, Robert Hazard. for 13,825 current money. sold to Benjamin Peckham one hundred and fifty acres bounded west on Oliver Hazard and partly on Carder Hazard and partly on Point Judith pond: south on said Peckham.

By these deeds it will he seen that Benjamin Peckham owned an estate in South Kingston of over one thousand acres, all bought at fair price. His estate on the east of the highway known as the old Pequot path from Boston to New London. extended from the highway to the Point Judith pond, which is the lower end of Soncetucket River. From its source. in or near North Kingston, this river is called Soncetucket, but after leaving the village of Wakefield it broadens out and is then called Point Judith pond. West of the highway he owned a large tract of well wooded land, with rich, fertile fields between.

This extreme southern end of Rhode Island is a most interesting country. East of the highway are the lowlands; evidently the remains of ancient glaciers; the moraine, once well filled with innumerable boulders, being easily recognizable, although over two hundred years of cultivation have turned it into fine meadow land and the boulders into substantial stone walls.

George Peckham Sr.

George Peckham was born about 1730, and died after 1790.

Traditions in Eastern Connecticut and Western Rhode Island relate that dissensions arose in the family of Daniel Peckham, after his removal from Newport to Westerly, R. I. As a consequence, some of his children, who are not recorded, "went west," in the language of that day, that is, they moved into Western Connecticut or Eastern New York. In the Census for Connecticut of 1790, there are enumerated as then living in Hamden, adjoining New Haven. George Peckham and wife, living in one family, and George Peckham 2d, his wife and a son and a daughter over 16 years of age living in another family. In Bailey's Connective Marriages, there are given

"Sarah Peckham and John Aeshel. 1785, October 20.
"Philemon Peckham and Anne Howell, 1794, April 19."

These marriages occurred in New Haven, and were probably of the brother and sister of George 2d. It is quite evident that the elder George and his wife were old people whose children had made homes of their own.

He was admitted a freeman 1732, May 2, and became a Friend by request. The following quaint notice is copied from the original publication of the intention of Marriage between Peleg Peckham and Elizabeth Coggeshall, which was nailed to a tree where every passerby could see and take cognizance

"A Jornell of a Voyage in Sloop Three Brothers from Rhode Island to Jamaica or Else Where-on the First Day of the Week and the Sixteenth Day of the month Called aprill about Fight o Clock in the morning Came to Sail from Capt William Almys Wharf at the point with a Small grease of wind at S W and soone fell Calm and Come up at N W and Carried us out finely Capt Amory, and John Rowfe Came out just before me and Capt Newton just after me all Bound to the Westindias."

The first day out is recorded thus: "1749 Monday April 17th Sloop Three Brothers for the West Indies. This Last twenty Four hours Pleasant weather Smooth water and small Brease from W N W to North Some part almost Calm at Five yesterday P M Block Island Bear about seven Leagues from Which Take my Departure in Latt : 41 D. 7m North and Long: 69 d; 00 m West from London."

"French Stile Leoganne May: 15th : 1749-Then Carried and Delivered to Mr. Bezin marcht Eight Hundred Dolars & Twenty Pistoles and took Sd : Bezin's Recpt the Same."

On April 22 there was mention of an event which evidently cheered the master: "today a very Good Dinner of Codfish and Potatoes."

Ten days after seeing Block Island sink beneath the sea, during a fine "Topsail Gail," he "made the Land Baring west of me Which I Take to be Turks Island Long by reckoning when made the Land 68: 31 and judge to be about 4 or 5 Leagues to the Eastward of it." He "Boar away" and "about Sun Set made Hispaniola but So Very thick & hazzy Over the Land that Cannot Tel what Part."

His way of telling was simple; he "Sot Single Reaf main sail and Steered West" until morning. Then he stood in and ran along in thick weather until that afternoon "Cape Nicholas [the northwest corner of Haiti] bore out sent by W from me and by Sun Set was to the Eastward of the platforme Passed along close by it and here Lay at Anchor a Likely Sloop an Saw in Offing about S W from me 4 ships & a Snow Judg them to be English Vessels from Jamaica."

"April 30, 9 A All Some after Capt mumford Came one Board me and Brough me a Permtsion which was Very Welcome but Did not Git to Anchor until about Day Light Found admiral Knowles in the Cornwell one of his Majesties Ships of Warr & several other English men of warr belonging to Knowleses fleet or Squadron Touched in at this place as they were Bound home to Settle Trade and Since they have sailed the Gentlemen here Tell us that Mr. knowles vas very much smitten with Love and would have married before left this place if the Young Lady had bene as Willing as he She is Daughter of the Comisary of the place but I beleve the Gentlemen here make the best of it of their Side of the how-se but Let the Report be as it will it made a bad Disturbance between the Admiral and his own Capt my Lord Hows son far that Difference Rise to that Degree that hnowles Confined him to his Cabin."

The Three Brothers remained in Leogane until July 23, when he sailed in company with other Yankee craft, probably for the sake of protection against buccaneers. His own craft sailed so dully-, however, that his consort, commanded by Captain Trowbridge of Rhode Island had to leave him as soon as they were through the islands.

The winds in a day blew from all points of the compass. Forty miles was a good clay's run. The captain and mate were sick; the men knew little and. were also sick and lame. The captain records that he and his mate were not worth half a man together and the sloop manoeuvred so badly that while still among the islands the captain wrote: "I Desire it [pleasant weather] May Continue if it be God's will for we Stand in Great Need of it for if it so Fall out that we Should Git our Vessel upon a Lee Shore we should Loose her without the Greatest Providence of God. We Tryed Last Night to Stay her Five Times and the most that Shee would Do was to Come up in the Wind and Shake her Sails and fal of again."

One day there was a dark mystery aboard ship. "Yesterday eat Dinner with my Pocket knife as Usuall and after had Done Dinner Left it up on the Table and Never Can See any thing of it Since and have made a Considerable Search for the Knife will assure you the thing is very Strange."

After partaking of afresh shoat the captain is particular to sign the statement: "A very Good Stomack to my Dinner which I Desire to be very Thankful for all the Days of my Life."

A shark, twelve feet long, and two dolphins, eighteen inches long, which he "fryed," also find mention. The craft sailed poorly, the gales came daily, there was thunder and lightening, the wheel ropes broke and his reckoning is called guesswork; he feared that he was "vastly to Eastward" through "Bad Stearage."

After many- vicissitudes, on august 12 Captain Peckham sounded and got bottom in 65 fathom. and soon after saw "Leach Birds" and "Sale Grass,' and the next noun sighted eBloclK Island to the westward. That evening he "Got in with Ve Naraganset Shore & about Eleven anchored against the Point and this ends me Jornell for -I- his Passage.

Reuben Peckham, Elder

Reuben Peckham was born in 1709; date of death not known; married at Dartmouth, Mass., 1730, Dec. l0, Patience Hathaway, daughter of John Hathaway. They lived at Dartmouth until after 1734. He united with the Seventh Day Baptist Church at Newport, R. I., 1737, 1-May 14. About 1740 he was residing at Stonington, Conn., in that part later set off as North Stonington. At this time he was known as "Elder Reuben Peckham," a Seventh Day Baptist preacher. He seems to have been of a roving disposition, or perhaps his religious duties called him to various places in which we find him. In 1748/9 he acquired land in Stonington, where he is styled as Reuben Peckham, blacksmith, of Dartmouth, Mass., while in a deed for land in 1749, July 13, he is called of Stonington, Conn. In 1757 he deeded land, the deed being signed by Reuben Peckom and Patience Peckom. We next find him at Nine Partners, Dutchess Co., N. Y. where 1766, Sept. 24, he was a witness to a Quaker wedding of Isaac Vale and Lvdia Sherman. He was then a resident there.

There were other members of the Peckham family resident in Dutchess County, N. Y., at this time. A Reuben Peckham. "brother of Samuel," died in 1771 ; his Will being recorded at Poughkeepsie (Quaker Records). Jerusha Peckham removed with her father from Nine Partners to the Creek Monthly Meeting, 1784, June 16. "Edith Peckham" was a witness to the Quaker marriage of William Quimby and Phebe Howland at the Oblong Monthly Meeting 1790, May 6, and at the same place Stephen Peckham, Joseph Peckham, James Peckham and Edith Peckham were witnesses at the marriage of Matthew Comstock and Ruth Russell, 1792, Oct. 17.

That Reuben Peckham, son of Timothy Peckham, lived for some time in Dutchess County, N. Y., is proven by a deed dated 1768, June 2, by which "Reuben Peckham of South Precinct, Dutchess Co., N. Y. . . . . . . for love to son Timothy, Blacksmith of South Kingston, R. I., .... two tracts of land" situated in Coventry and West Greenwich, R. I, with house, buildings, etc.; the Coventry farm containing one hundred and fifty acres and the West Greenwich farm one hundred and twenty-nine acres (Coventry, R. I., Deeds, Vol. 4, p. 62); also by another deed in which he sold land which he had bought from Joshua Maine, where he is described as "Reuben Peckham, Elder, of Farmington, Conn., now of Dutchess County, N. Y." Doubtless it was the exercise of his religious duties which took him to Dutchess County, as the branch of the Westerly, R. I., Seventh Day Baptist Church at Oblong, Dutchess Co., N. Y., was under the care of "Elder Reuben Peckham," and he was several times disciplined for preaching Unitarian doctrine. In April, 1770, he joined the Piscataway, now Newmarket, N. J., Seventh Day Baptist Church, at which time he is spoken of as "Elder Reuben Peckham, formerly of Westerly, R. I." and invited to preach for them "as often as he conveniently can." Later, he seems to have returned to Rhode Island, for in 1779 he is mentioned in the Westerly Sabbatarian Records as if he were a member there. This church is now the First Hopkinton Church of Ashaway, R. I. In 1784, August 18, the church roll of Newport was revised, at which time Reuben Peckham was counted as a member of that church.

February, 1788, Joshua Babcock of Stonington, Conn., deeded twenty-nine acres, sixty-five rods, to Reuben Peckham for the consideration of f20 (Stonington Land Records, Book 1).

Elder Reuben Peckham was also a blacksmith-in his day a very different trade to the blacksmith of the present day. The blacksmith of that period was a worker in iron and steel and made everything not made of wood in the construction of buildings, wagons and carriages; the farm implements and the tools used by carpenters and other trades. Machine shops and intricate machinery were then almost unknown in this country, and wood was used wherever it could be in the construction of looms, ploughs, or other implements used by the farmers and their wives and daughters. The iron for steel fittings for such was all made by the blacksmith, as were the nails required for building. An examination of the clapboarding of Trinity Church, Newport, built in 1721, shows that all the nails used were hand made, the wire and cut nails of the present day being then unknown. The colonial house built before 1800 was fitted throughout with hinges and latches fastened to walls and doors by nails made by the blacksmith. The trains of wagons, the only mode of conveyance for passengers or freight, were drawn by a horse or a steer, and often neither cart nor harness had a vestige of metal used in their construction; wood and raw-hide furnishing the materials for the outfit. Where the prosperity of the community or individual permitted it, however, and especially as the settlements grew in population and, consequently, in requirements and the means to meet those needs, the blacksmith grew to be a quite important factor in the community of which he was a member; often a settlement would offer land to such a man as an inducement for him to settle among them. Still later, when the hum of the busy factory and machine shop had become an integral part of the life of every town, and time became an object of highest premium, the village blacksmith was no longer the important man he used to be, and found himself relegated to the more lowly occupation of shoeing of horses and oxen, or the occasional repairing of farm wagons and tools. Such is the blacksmith we know today. Several of the early Peckhams were of the original type. Such were "Elder Reuben Peckham" and his son, Timothy.

The following interesting item was contributed by Mr. Clarence S. Brigham, Librarian of the Rhode Island Historical Society, 1903, Feb. a. "The Rhode Island Historical Society has recently acquired an extremely rare broadside, which is one of the very first of Newport imprints. It consists of several stanzas of poetry, written in a religious vein and entitled `The Ardent Desire, and Sincere Cry, of a True Believer in Jesus Christ.' The imprint at the bottom is Newport, Rhode Island: Printed by Jr. Franklin, for Reuben Packom, and sold by him in Newport, 1728.' " It is probable that this Reuben Peckham was identical with "Elder Reuben Peckham."

Benjamin$^4$ Peckham Jr. (Benjamin$^3$, John$^2$, John$^1$) was born on March 22, 1714/15 in South Kingston, Washington County, Rhoda Island, and died on February 27, 1791 in South Kingston, Washington County, Rhoda Island.

He married Mary Hazard on March 2, 1736/37 in South Kingston, Rhode Island. She was born on July 16, 1722 in South Kingston, Washington County, Rhode Island, and died on April 4, 1805 in Narragansett, Washington County, Rhode Island. ### Benjamin Peckham Jr.

Benjamin Peckham Jr. was born in South Kingston, R. I., 1715, March 22; died 1792, Feb. 27; married 1737, March 2, Mary Hazard, daughter of Lieutenant Governor George and Sarah (Carder) Hazard. She was born 1722, July 16, and died 1805, April 4. It was a runaway marriage, Mary being but fifteen years old at the time. Of their fifteen children, the records of seven only remain, and from them is descended many of the New York. Stage Peckhams, including the two judges. Rufus, and Wheeler Hazard Peckham.

Benjamin Peckham was Town Clerk of South Kingston 1736 to 1743, and was Moderator of the South Kingston Convention in 1784. He was one of the Committee appointed to settle an account against Thomas Ninegret, Sachem of the Narragansetts in 1767. In 1768 he was a member of the Legislature. With Carrier Hazard and William Potter, he was appointed on a Committee to address a letter to the Committee of Correspondence in Boston, 1774, Nov. 22, from South Kingston, contributing sheep and urging steadfastness in the good cause. He was an energetic and public-spirited man. He had large landed interests at Matunuck, in South Kingston, bordering on Long Island Sound, which he farmed in an extensive way. He also carried on a tannery.

Friends helped him to escape and nothing more is known about him.

* Robert Peckham was born about 1763 in Charlestown, Washington County, Rhode Island.

John Peckham

John Peckham was born in 1719; died at Stonington, Conn., date unknown; his wife's name was Mary.

Little is definitely known of the events of this John Peckham's life. He married at South Kingston, Mary Hazard, daughter of Thomas and Hannah (Slocum) Hazard, which may account for the dearth of records concerning him, Mary's brother, Stephen Hazard, being a notorious Tory and obnoxious to the Peckhams, who were patriots. Traditions in the family of John's brother, Benjamin, who was an ardent patriot, make this quite certain. Also, a careful search has been made by Professor S. F. Peckham, one of the compilers of this genealogy, of the Wills and records of relatives and descendants of John Peckham who were living at the close of the Revolution, which has satisfied him that John's wife, Marv, who signed a deed with him, belonged to that branch of the Hazard family who were descended from Elizabeth Helm. The heirs once owned Bissell's Mills, now known as Hamilton Mills, between Wickford and Narragansett Pier. One of John's descendants states that his ancestor, who was a great-grandson of John, was taken by his grandfather to Hamilton Mills and shown the property as a part of the estate belonging to his ancestors on the mother's side. The Hazards who owned Bissell's Mills were the father and uncle of Stephen Hazard, who was a Tory and the brother of Mary (Hazard) Peckham. There is, therefore, scarcely a doubt that John married Mary Hazard. He was persona non grata to the rest of his family on that account, and was scarcely tolerated by his brothers, except Peleg, who befriended him on many occasions and left him a bequest in his Will. These differences are now forgotten and, while they were very real in 1775, are only mentioned here to explain how, in their zeal to obliterate the marriage of the Tory, they either destroyed the records of this branch of the family or prevented them from being made.

From South Kingston John Peckham moved to Charlestown, R. I, in 1761, obtaining permission to do so. His father, whose Will was proved in 1769, bequeathed to "son John Peckham one-third part of the farm I now live on including the third part of the dwelling house & lands I have already given him by deed . . . also to son John all my wearing apparel, also order the remaining part of my farm to he divided between my three sons Peleg, John, and Timothy. The household goods after the death of my wife shall be divided between my three sons Isaac, John & Timothy."

Isaac$^4$ Peckham (Benjamin$^3$, John$^2$, John$^1$) was born on December 23, 1728 in North Kingston, Washington County, Rhoda Island, and died on April 16, 1769 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island. He was a member of the Friends Church.

He first married Ruth Cory on October 31, 1751 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island. She was born in 1727 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island, and died on February 20, 1761 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island. She was the daughter of William and Hannah Cory.

They had the following children:

William Peckham was born on June 9, 1755, in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island.

* Henry Peckham was born on June 24, 1757, in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island.

Ruth Peckham was born on January 1759, in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island, and died on November 20, 1774. She married Thomas Brown Sr., born in 1733, in Little Compton, Newport County, Rhode Island, and died on March 1802, in Little Compton, Newport County, Rhode Island. He was the son of John and Sarah (White) Brown.

Mary Peckham was born on February 1761, Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island. She married James Hadwen on April 27, 1786. He was born about 1755 in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island.

He also married Jerusha Rounds. She was born on December 6, 1731 in Rehoboth, Bristol County, Massachusetts, and died in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island. She was the daughter of David and Hannah (Carpenter) Rounds.

* Zilpha Peckham was born in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island.

Isaac Peckham

Isaac Peckham was born 1728, Dec. 23; died 1769, April 16; married 1751, Oct. 31, Ruth Cory, daughter of William and Hannah Cory; born in 1727; died 1761, Feb. 20. He lived and died in Newport, R. I. He was a "Friend."

It is probable that this Isaac Peckham married a second time, his second wife being Jerusha Rounds, by whom he had daughter, Zilpha, who married Christiancy and had son, Isaac Peckham Christiancy, late United States Senator from Michigan.

Mary$^4$ Peckham (Benjamin$^3$, John$^2$, John$^1$) was born on December 28, 1730 in North Kingston, Washington County, Rhoda Island, and died on May 8, 1798.

Captain George Peckham

Captain George Peckham date of birth not known, probably (died in January, 1810, his Will bearing date 1810, Jan. 11, at Madison, Madison County, N. Y. He was twice married, his first wife being Hannah' Peckham (Daniel Thomas John), whom he married at Newport, R. I., in 1744. They were married by the Rev. Tames Searing. Before 1760, he married his second wife, Jerusha Bartlett, daughter of the distinguished Dr. Josiah Bartlett of New Hampshire.

Dr. Bartlett was not only an eminent physician; he also took an active interest and share in the government of the Colony in which he lived. He was Governor of New Hampshire, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, a member of the Continental Congress, and a member of the Constitutional Convention that framed the Constitution of the United States. He married Mary Bartlett, and Jerusha Bartlett was one of their six daughters. They also had three sons, all distinguished physicians. It is presumable that, like so many of the Bartlett family, they were Friends, and that while visiting Newport to attend the annual meeting of Friends at that city, Jerusha there met George Peckham, after the death of his first wife, and persuaded him to become a Quaker.

George Peckham was a Whaler and a Captain in the West Indian trade. He lived at Tiverton, Newport, and Providence, R. I. He kept a ship chandlery store at Providence for many years about 1783. Later, at the request of his wife, they moved "up country" as they termed it, to get their four boys away from the perils of the sea. They settled in New York State and lived at Oblong, now Millerton, Dutchess County, N. Y. and at Madison, Madison County, N.Y., where they both died. He was considered a man of means in those days and bought himself and each of his sons a farm in the new, wooded country, where land was cheap. It is stated by their descendants that they came to Madison County, a point one hundred miles southwest of Schenectady, an outpost of civilization, in 1794, and established a Quaker colony in the Indian wilderness, with their neighbors from Tiverton. Newport and Providence. The families of Woodman, Symonds, Thompkins, Brownell, Coe, Church, Manchester, Durfee and Blair, were among the original settlers of this section of the country. A Friends' Meeting House which they built is still standing, though now unused. Their descendants are among the most prosperous citizens of the County.

Chapter 6

Fifth Generation

The Migrating Peckhams the Fifth and Sixth Generations

The migration of Peckham families beyond New England had begun in earnest during the fifth and sixth generations. The travels of the Charles Peckham family can only be summarized here. Charles$^5$ Peckham, his wife and three children left Middletown, Rhode Island and traveled by ox cart to Ohio around 1800. There they prospered, raised a large family and lived to a ripe old age. Their graves are located in the West Grove Cemetery near Salineville, in Columbiana County, Ohio. His eldest son Charles$^6$ Peckham was the first of his children to marry in Ohio. After moving several times in Ohio, Charles$^6$ and his family moved to Indiana and, finally, to Richland County in Wisconsin.

Two sons of Benjamin$^4$ and Mary Hazard Peckham, William$^5$ and Peleg$^5$, mark the beginning of two of the new lines introduced in this volume. Born in South Kensington, each of these men fathered a son who became a famous judge. William$^5$ and his son, William$^6$, did not migrate and lived out their lives in South Kensington. William$^6$ became a famous "law and order" Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas of Washington County in Rhode Island.

Peleg$^5$ migrated to Cooperstown, New York, where he bore two sons both of whom became highly respected lawyers. One, Rufus$^6$, remained in New York State and became Chief Justice of the New York Supreme Court. The other, George Williams$^6$, migrated to Milwaukee, Wisconsin where he opened a highly successful law practice.

After his first marriage in Westerly, Rhode Island, Joshua$^5$ was the first of his line (the third new line introduced in this Supplement) to move on to the State of New York. He did return at least once to Westerly to marry a second time.

Lieutenant Prince$^4$ Peckham, the son of John$^3$ and Mary Boston Peckham, was 87 and in Middletown, New York, at the time of his death in 1883. His last two children introduce the fourth and fifth new Peckham lines in this volume. Sons Pardon Alden$^5$ Peckham (b. 1789) and John Alden$^5$ (b. 1798) were probably born in Massachusetts and New York State respectively. Lt. Prince and Sarah, who were approximately the same age, were 43 when Pardon was born and 52 when John was born nine years later. The family moved to the State of New York in 1795 where they lived and farmed near Prattesville, New York in the Catskill Mountains. Despite the differences in age, both Pardon and John appear to have been married about the same time. Pardon's second of four children, Angeline, was born in 1822, and John's second of nine, Lucy, was born in 1824, suggesting that both were married about 1820. Pardon would have been 32 and John 15. Just these two Peckhams had 13 children between them before they and their families left the mountains for Wisconsin in the 1840s.

In this Chapter, the family data and biographical material for the fifth and sixth generations of each of these lines has either been kept together in serialized form with individual resumes, or it has been combined, so that the resume that follows covers at least two or more generations rather than one. This has been done so that complex family relationships that often existed during such family migrations, where parents, grandparents and children often lived and moved together, can be at least surmised from the assembled family data and are not lost or obscured, as so often happens when the generations are placed in separate chapters.

Island and died in 1827 in Westmoreland, Cheshire County, New Hampshire. He married Lois Peckham. She was born about 1774 in New Bedford, Bristol County, Massachusetts. (Family History Library, Salt Lake City, Utah)

Their son, Nathaniel Chapin, married Fannie Bowen Brown and had a daughter Catherine Augusta Chapin, who married James Madison Bancroft and had a daughter Mary Elizabeth Bancroft, who married Smilie Tilton and had a son, G. E. Tilton of Seattle, Washington.

Eunice Peckham

The information obtained relating to Eunice Peckham is very voluminous and from various sources, some of which is conflicting, and raises the question as to two Eunice Peckhams. There is no record known of the birth dates of Caleb Peckham's children; hence the order of their birth is unknown. In the records of the Second Baptist Church of Newport, R. I., Sabbatarian was found the baptismal dates of Caleb's children, but no Eunice. In the same place were found the baptismal dates of most of John's children, but no Eunice. Eunice Peckham is mentioned in John's Will as his "daughter Eunice Rice." There is record evidence in Bristol, R. I., that Eunice Peckham married Charles Church in 1756. Family tradition gives this Eunice Peckham brothers Nathaniel and Joshua which places her as the daughter of Caleb. Charles and Eunice Church had six children, as given above. These children were received into the Congregationalist Church, the eldest on Jan. 9, 1763, when they were mere children. On the same date Charles Church, Senior, and wife. Eunice, signed the Church Covenant. Hannah was baptized April 24, 1763, and Sarah on May 26, 1765. After Charles Church's death, his posthumous child was born April 27, 1767, and named Abigail. There is no record of what became of the widow and children, but the children appear in maturity in northern Massachusetts and New Hampshire. A seventh child was born Jan. 5, 1772, and was named Nancy, or Anna Church. It has been stated that in the records of the town of Orange, Massachusetts, this child is called Russell, but in the family was always recognized as the sister of the children of Eunice and Charles. From all of these statements it is concluded that Eunice Peckham married again after the death of Charles Church, the name of her second husband being uncertain; it may have been Church.

The descendants of this branch have a double Mayflower descent, through both Peckham and Church lines. Jane Blackwell, the wife of Philip$^{3}$, Peckham, was the daughter of John Blackwell and Sarah Warren, who was the daughter of Nathaniel$^{2}$ Warren, son of Richard$^{1}$ Warren of the Mayflower. The Church line is: Charles$^{5}$, Constant$^{4}$, Charles$^{3}$, Benjamin2, Richard1; the wife of Richard Church being Elizabeth$^{2}$ Warren, daughter of Richard$^{2}$ Warren, and sister to Nathaniel Warren, the grandfather of Jane Blackwell.

Peleg Peckham served as a Revolutionary soldier, with two of his brothers, being stationed at Fort Green, Newport. After the Revolution he removed from Rhode Island to Stonington, Conn. During the War of 1812, when his sons were called out to the defence of Stonington, he shouldered his old Revolutionary musket and went with his boys. He was on the pension roll of 1840.

A granddaughter of Amy Peckham, sister of Peleg, who married Thomas Hull, says that she has often heard her grandmother tell of when she was a very small girl how her father (Abel$^4$) and two elder brothers went off to the battle (New London). She was a very small child at the time, but it made a deep impression on her mind, because her mother was so anxious she kept going to the door to listen to the boom of the cannon. Peleg and his three sons were at the Battle of Stonington. Miss Mary F. Peckham, of Bristol, Ill., says: "We have at home in Bristol the old sword, gun and bayonet that Peleg carried in the Revolution."

Joshua Peckham

While very little is known of the personal aspects of the lives of Joshua $^5$ and Abel, Stephen Farnum and Byron Judson Peckham uncovered a wealth of information concerning their children, their marriages, and their movements about the country during their lifetimes during the fifth, sixth, seventh and even the eighth generation. Joshua and his second wife are buried in Petersburg, New York, the dividing line through their farm placing their residence in Grafton, while the burying ground is in Petersburg. Joshua$^5$ and Sarah, his first wife, had Abel $^6$ their fourth child in Westerly, Rhode Island, and then moved to Rensselaer, New York. Ten years and five children later, Sarah (Stetson) died and Joshua $^5$ returned to Westerly for his second wife, Sarah Burdick, with whom he had the last three of his twelve children. At least one of their children left New York State for Minnesota.

Captain Benjamin Lawton Peckham Sr.

Nothing is known of the early life of Benjamin Lawton Peckham. He first appears of record in January 1776 when he was appointed by the Town Council of North Gingston, Rhode Island, to make cartridges. In March 1776 he was commissioned as Ensign of the 2nd Regiment of Infantry, Kings County, Colonel Joseph Staunton. In 1779 he was commissioned Lieutenant in Colonel Angell's Regiment. He served in various commands until the close of the War, rising to the rank of Captain. He was in the battles of Guilford, Monmouth, Red Bank, and the siege of Yorktown. He was pensioned in 1818, April 9, at the rate of $240.00 per year; stating at that tine that he had two grandchildren dependent upon him. He was an original member from Rhode Island of the Society of the Cincinnati, which was formed to perpetuate the friendship with each other of the officers of the Revolutionary Army. It was organized in May 1783. He was the only member from Rhode Island bearing the name of Peckham. The badge of the Society, which passes to the oldest male descendant, upon his death became the property of his eldest son, Henry, who died at Kinderhook, New York, without male representative. It was then given to a son of the daughter, Mary, to convey to a grandson, John Carpenter Peckham, son of Isaac. It never reached its destination; consequently the descendants of Captain Benjamin Lawton Peckham have long been without a representative in the Society of the Cincinnati.

After the close of the Revolution Captain Peckham followed the occupation of preparing legal papers and serving as a Custom House officer at Wickford, Rhode Island. He bought a piece of land in Wickford from William Arnold 1785, Feb. 1, and in June 1792, deeded a lot in Wickford to the same person. 1793, Feb. 25, he deeded another lot in Wickford to Daniel Updike, and another to Nathaniel Monday 1812, July 18. His middle name has been variously spelled, but the record of his mother's marriage gives her father's name as Benjamin Lawton, after whom Captain Peckham was probably named.

Thomas Peckham Sr.

Thomas Peckham was born at Middletown, R. I., 1747, June 30; died at Newport, R. I., 1825, Dec. 18; married 1778, June 29, Hannah Weaver, daughter of James and Rebecca (Coggeshall) Weaver, who was born 1856, Nov . 11, and died 1835, June 16. They were married at South Kingstown, R. I., by the Rev. Joseph Torrey Presbyterian minister. When first married they lived at East Greenwich, R. I. At the time of the Revolution he was living on a farm at Middletown, and during the war the British cut everything on the place, including the orchard. Afterwards he moved into Newport, where he built the house on the corner of Walnut and Third Streets. Here he passed the remainder of his life, a respected and honored citizen, holding many public offices. He was elected Captain of the Train Band of Militia within the Colony at the May sessions of the General Assembly 1775, 1776; was Town Clerk of Middletown 1783, to 1785; Clerk of the Council 1784, and Magistrate for many years, being esteemed by the community as a man of sound judgment and strict integrity.

The following obituary notice was probably taken from the Newport Mercury: "Died in this town on Sunday last, after a lingering illness, Thomas Peckham, Esq., aged 78 years. Mr. Peckham was endowed by nature with a strong, enquiring mind, and was remarkable for the simplicity and plainness of his manners. He was repeatedly called to the discharge of the duties of various public employments; sustaining in every situation through life the character of an intelligent and honest man." He and his wife, Hannah, with their two eldest children, Peleg, Frank and Elizabeth, lie buried in the Clifton Friends' burying ground on Fanwell Street, Newport.

The following letter, of advice, addressed to his son, Thomas, 1808, Feb. 27, is a remarkable testimony to the accurate judgment of the writer concerning the value of letters in common life:

"When I wrote you last I said something of the value of time; I now say that life however short if well used is long enough to gather and lay up much, and few of those hours which I think you must have at your disposal would be well spent in adding a little to your Latin; not that I expect you to translate a Latin book but to be able to understand a plain mottoe and all such Latin as where the periods are short and the nominative cases, the verbs and accusative cases are expressed is as easy for a man of your age and memory to attain as it is ornamental when attained. It is a kind of passport to the company of men of letters. A man with a little Latin has the same advantage over a man wholly ignorant as a tall man has over a short one when walking by a garden fence over which the short one cannot look. When we meet a scrap in our reading that we cannot understand we feel as we do in company when we hear whispering, we suppose very important, we suppose mystery, immense learning.

"Calculation will show you how much may be done by perseverance and constancy in small advances. The weaver gets forward by almost imperceptible degrees, only the width of a thread at a time, and yet by these small advances and gains in a year he makes cloth enough to cover two hundred men.

"I wish you to task yourself with translating ten lines of Virgil either before you leave your room in the morning or after you enter it at night. The sixth book I think the most interesting as it describes Virgil's heaven. It has nine hundred lines it will take you ninety days.

"Cicero on friendship and old age, two thousand eight hundred lines more will make a year.

"You already known the declensions and conjugations and the translation of these three portions of Latin will give you more of that language than goes to the share of graduates in general.

"I cannot refrain from telling you how much I wish you to be well acquainted with the laws of your country. To be intimately acquainted with the rules that bind and affect our bodies, lives, property and reputation is and ever must be a valuable and important acquisition and will give money and reputation to the possessor.

"I wish you to remember that you have been brought up in the office of a law court, that you have spent several years in the service and acquaintance of a practicing attorney, and that your employment hath been hitherto such as to give you ample time and opportunity to read. I know that with some attorneys you would now pass for the best insurance lawyer in the neighborhood, and if you let your life pass away without becoming able and learned in the law with men of sense you must pass for an indolent or dull man. I cannot be reconciled to your growing old nothing more than a cleric and besides a revolution or some unseen accident may for several years make the employment that you are now in worthless, when a little more law and Latin added to your talents at figures, and grammar and fine penmanship would give you as good wages in any great town as you now take. Your rapid and elegant penmanship, your clear and concise style, your very great talents at numbers, your familiarity with accounts and business, your present stock of French and Latin, all together form a foundation well worthy to be built on and finished with as much reading as your youth and other opportunities will enable you to lay on it. The study of law you make an agreeable amusement by taking any question in law on which the world is divided and committing your arguments, deductions and opinion thereon to writing and submitting the same to the opinion of your intelligent acquaintance.

"The reasons for and against, the demands of the refugees for their confiscated property, as mentioned in the last chronicle world be a good exercise for ingenuity, by considering the spirit and meaning of our first and second treaties with England and examining the consequence and tendency of their claims.

"Exercise, pursuit and enterprise improve and strengthen the mind as well as body.

"They relieve from the énnui so incident to a sedentary life. What better can you do with your spare time or leisure of one year than to perfect yourself in the knowledge of the lacy, and should you be determined not to make it a business it will be worth your while to have within yourself an article you cannot get abroad without pay.

"I wish you to read the Rights of Nations in French. Shall send with this letter, Gotius on War and Peace. I wish you would try your strength at concise reasoning and see if you cannot place on half a sheet all that maybe said for and against "'Satisfying refugees for their demands for their confiscated estates.'"

The son followed his father's advice.

He moved, with his brothers, Larder, George and Robert, to Oneida County, N. Y., soon after 1800. There is no record of the dates of his birth, marriage, or death, nor whom he married. He had a family of several children. A letter addressed to Mrs. C. E. Robinson, in 1892, by a nephew of Carder Peckham's wife, stated that they then lived in Verona, N. Y., a grandson and granddaughter of William—William Nash Peckham and Mrs. John H. Brewster. A letter addressed to William Nash Peckham elicited no further information than that William Peckham and his wife died close to the same time, when the children were young, that they were in consequence scattered, and had very little knowledge of their parents or grandparents. Their descendants describe Carrier, William and George as men of remarkable stature, physical strength and endurance. Robert was a person of more delicate constitution. "This old stock of Peckhams was all leather men; were tanners and shoemakers; were hard workers and men to be relied upon. Their descendants were, at that time, 1892, among the best citizens of Oneida County." Another says. I can truly add that about-forty years ago, about 1850, the daughters of Carrier, Lucien, George, William and Robert Peckham were among the most beautiful girls Oneida County could boast of." This branch of the Peckham family, both in Rhode Island and New York.

William [5] Peckham and his daughter Sarah

Nothing is known about William[5] beyond the members of his family. It is probable that he and his large family lived well as his father, Benjamin[4], was a prominent and landed man in South Kingston. Stephen Farnum Peckham described him as "lofty minded." This lofty mindedness was exhibited when his first born, Sarah[6], the older sister of Judge William[6] of the direct line that we are following, married Acors Rathbone, a hatter, "without consent" because of her parents objections.

In those years (1777 to 1859) life was not easy for young people without means who had to fend for themselves. Sarah's story is reproduced here as it reveals the courage and fortitude of the pioneering Peckhams and makes clear how close the frontier was to New England and what hardships were faced by those making a start there.

Sarah[6] Peckham was seventeen when she married the twenty-two year old Acors. Soon after, they left Rhode Island for New York State, settling at a place near Rome, N. Y., which later became known as Rathboneville. They bought a farm which became the family homestead, and cleared it by hand; Sarah being always his faithful helper. Several times her sister, Elizabeth, visited her, and she afterwards visited her old home. Long and rough were the roads to Rhode Island in those days; leading over the mountains often above the clouds; through primeval forests and over unbridged streams. The overland trail of the Mohawk Valley Indians passed near their house, and it was not unusual for a band of from five to ten Indians to enter the kitchen at nightfall, roll up in their blankets, and sleep before the great fireplace. In the morning they would leave in peace with grunts of thanksgiving.

Acors once cut his foot with an axe, and while Sarah was helping him dress it their tame fox fastened his teeth upon the wound and held on until its jaws were forced open. The first grain they reaped was ground at Albany, 100 miles away. And Sarah managed all this while having fifteen children!

Subsequently he purchased a farm near Cooperstown, New York, on the headwater of the Susquehanna River. ### Benjamin Peckham Sr.

Benjamin Peckham was born at South Kingston, Rhode Island, in 1755; died at Groton, now Ledyard, Conn., 1833, Jan. 5; married 1778, Feb. 19, Lucy Wilcox, daughter of Captain Nathan$^5$ Wilcox (William$^4$, William$^3$, Stephen$^2$, Edward$^1$) and Tabitha Prosser. "Stonington, Ct., Feb. 19, 1778—These may certify that Benjamin Peckham and Lucy Wilcox appeared before me, and were joined in marriage, Simeon Brown, Elder" (Stonington Records). Lucy was born in 1759 and died at Ledyard, Conn., 1847, Sept. 19. She was the granddaughter of Ichabod and Patience (Lamphere) Prosser, and the great-granddaughter of John Prosser of Somerset, England; one of the purchasers of the 5,300 acres in Westerly, Rhode Island, known as the "Fine Purchace," embracing all of the western part of the present town of Hopkinton, Rhode Island.

Benjamin Peckham was a Revolutionary soldier and pensioner. In 1832, Oct. 20, he made application for pension, in which he said: "I am 77 years of age, was born at South Kingston, Rhode Island; enlisted at Stonington, Ct." His pension was allowed for twenty months of actual service in the Conn. troops. His first enlistment was in March 1776, when he served nine months as Private under Captains Oliver Smith and Nathan Palmer, Colonel Wolcott; next 1777, April, nine months as Private under Captain Nathan Palmer, Col. William Ledyard; 1781, May, two months under Captain Zac. Hungerford, Col. McClelland's Artillery; resided at Ledyard, Conn., where he followed the occupation of shoemaker. In 1794, May 12, John Swan deeded a "certain lot of land" to Benjamin Peckham, for the consideration of £54. Benjamin lies buried in the Joseph Wheeler burying ground, about a mile west of Milltown, Conn.; now owned by Benjamin Wheeler. Benjamin was a shoemaker by occupation, as were his descendants for several generations, the father teaching the trade to the son. In his garret were found many of his tools, made by his own hands. A descendant says, " He also made shoes (and drank some, too, as many did in those days; raising a family of 14 children is quite enough to drive a man to drink, especially when he bends over a last and drives pegs and sews much). These children were good men and women, thrifty people, given just a little to wandering—five of them settled in New York State—all were farmers and good Methodists." A grandson says: "I remember him well and often heard both him and my father say that his mother was a Hazard, and through her the name of Stephen Hazard came into the family."

Lucy made application for a pension 1836, Dec. 30, in which she declared: "I reside at Ledyard, Ct., am 77 years old. Married Benj. Peckham at Stonington, Ct., Feb. 19 1778. Was md. by the Elder Simeon Brown. My husband died at Groton. Ct., Jan. 5 1833." An affidavit was also made in her case by Mary Hilliard, sister of Benjamin: "I am a sister of Bell Benjamin Peckham. Am 80 of age. Was present at the marriage of my brother to Lucy Wilcox. Jarius Fink stood up with them." Lucy obtained a pension of $8 per month. She died at the home of her son, the Rev. Stephen Hazard Peckham at Ledyard, Conn., and is buried in the Williams burying ground at that place.

"In North Stonington, Conn., May 20, 1862, in the family of her grandson, Thomas W. Wheeler, Esq., Mrs. patience Peckham, widow of Thomas H. Peckham, in the 98th year of her age. She passed away in the sustaining hope of a blessed immortality and left in the hearts of her kindred and familiars the precious record of her quiet and useful life. Her marriage was in the year 1784, and the death of her husband occurred 40 years since. Of their eleven children, seven still survive. Of 51 grandchildren 37 are now living, and of the 52 great-grandchildren there are 39. And of the fifth generation there are six children, some of whom the good old mother had held in her arms and dandled upon her knee. In the family in which she has been so kindly cared for and cherished during the closing period of her life four generations have been daily seated together at the table, and frequent have been the groups of visitors in which the fifth was fully represented. Her given name was prophetic of the crowning virtue in her life that brought with it many changes and a full share of afflictions. Patience was her name in childhood and in the long succeeding years she put on patience 'as a robe and a diadem.' Peace be to her memory."

Charles[5] Peckham

The lives and times of Charles[5] Peckham and his children are described in considerable detail with a wealth of supporting data in chapters IV and can only be summarized here. Charles[5] and his wife Rhoda married in Rhode Island but yielded to the westward fever to move to the opening frontier of Ohio. They probably traveled through Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and West Virginia into eastern Ohio around 1800–1801. They built their cabin, cleared the land, raised their children, successfully accumulated property and some of the comforts of the time. Charles[5] died in Ohio at the age of 93.

Charles [6] Peckham, according to Jefferson County register of deeds, married Polly Elliot on September 12, 1816. Since all accounts refer to Mary Ellis as the one and only wife of Charles[6] it is presumed that the recorder registered the wrong name. Polly is sometimes a nickname for Mary.

As noted above, Charles[6] and Mary pioneered both in Ohio and Indiana (1839) finally settling in Richland County, Wisconsin in 1855 with four of their children. William[6], a younger brother, joined them there in the same year.

These Peckhams "typified the adventurous spirited pioneers who pressed westward into the sparsely settled frontier. They moved from the flat and level land of Indiana, past the level terrain of northern Illinois and Wisconsin to the west central hills of Wisconsin—hills very similar to those of eastern Ohio.

"There were the clear springs of running water, a forest with abundant timber to build cabins and a rich soil in the valleys where crops were planted and harvested. These Wisconsin hills became home to four generations of Peckhams and some still call it home."

Eastern Ohio In 1800

Forest

Amidst a forest of stately oaks, mingling with maple, birch and elm, the chirping of wild birds and the chattering of squirrels could be heard as they would flit from branch to branch. At night the howling wolf, the hooting owl or the shriek of a frightful panther broke the silence of the wilderness.

The day was more solitary than the night with a scurrying rabbit, a bouncing deer, or a fox frantically searching for food. The gobble of a wild turkey, the croaking of a raven and often the pecking of the woodpecker tapping on a decaying beech tree were familiar sounds to early pioneers. The singing birds seldom in evidence at that time became more prevalent as man domesticated the forest.

Indians

The warlike tribe called the Eries predated the white man into this wilderness and, according to tradition and ruins, hunted these hills and valleys and waged many fierce battles. The remains of huts and fortifications as well as broken arrows and heads testifies to the past. Lake Erie was named after this tribe of Indians who, according to scholars, were wiped out by pestilence before the white man came. Others contend that the arrogant and powerful Iroquois conquered them.

While the areas of Jefferson and Columbiana counties never had permanent Indian settlements, evidence of battles and skirmishes remained when the white man arrived. The permanent Indian settlements were to the north on the border of Lake Erie.

The Ohio Company

Recorded history in Ohio began in 1748 with the formation of "The Ohio Company" by Thomas Lee and twelve other gentlemen from Virginia. They began to explore this western boundary of the colonies. The policy of the government was to prevent white persons from crossing the Ohio River and invading the Indian land. However, love for adventure, wealth and furs challenged the white squatters to ignore the government restrictions and move into Ohio, building cabins, clearing land, and trapping animals. In 1779, General Broadhead sent in a detachment of soldiers to burn the cabins and drive the squatters back across the Ohio River.

Pioneers

These pioneers would withdraw until the soldiers were gone and then they would return and rebuild. In 1785 Ensign Armstrong sent in another detachment of troops to destroy the cabins and drive out the settlers. Colonel Harmar reported that at Yellow Creek he dispossessed two families the first day and on the third day forced eight more to flee.

A man by the name of Ross seemed to be the leader of the group and refused to believe the orders which the detachment of soldiers carried. The pressure of the settlers continued and the government gave authority to Robert Johnston in 1788 to survey the areas to allow permanent settlements to develop. Johnston received $6.00 per day for his services and was given land in exchange for money. He received 100 acres for each day of service or for the price of $6.00. In 1795 he sold James Clarke 304 acres for $6.00 per acre realizing a substantial profit.

Yellow Creek Area

Mr. William Wells and Mr. James Clarke came from Washington County, Pennsylvania into Jefferson County in 1797. They built a shingled-roof log house and cleared some acreage and planted corn. (History of Columbiana County, Ohio) Charles$^{5}$ Peckham was in Washington County, Pennsylvania at the time of the 1800 census.

Charles$^{5}$ together with his wife, Rhoda, their three daughters and one son, Charles$^{6}$, moved into this frontier settlement of Yellow Creek, where records show his son William" was born in 1804.

In Brush Creek Township a town was established named Monroeville, named after President Monroe. It was undoubtedly persons from this town who moved to Allen County (Fort Wayne area), Indiana and established Monroeville, Indiana in the late 1830's. Charles$^{6}$ became a part of this migrating group of pioneers in 1839.

Saline township in Ohio is located on Yellow Creek and experienced the first permanent settlement in 1800 when William McCullough erected a cabin at the mouth of the creek. Hammondsville and Irondale became prosperous communities. Charles$^{5}$ lived in or near these two towns during his lifetime.

This area of Ohio was rich in natural resources which included salt, tin, coal, limestone, fire clay, brick clay, trees, river traffic, as well as good building sites. Later the railroad was built so this area became a growing industrial complex. Charles$^{5}$, Rhoda and at least two daughters, Sarah and Hannah, settled in this area and lived out their lives in Ohio while Charles$^{6}$ and William$^{6}$ together with most of their families moved into Indiana and Wisconsin. (Jefferson County History).

Ohio Counties

Jefferson County, Ohio, was one of the original counties in Ohio, established in 1797. Columbiana County was designated in 1803, and Carroll County came into being in 1832 by absorbing some of the townships from the above two counties, as well as to the counties to the south and west. (The Ohio census for 1800 and 1810 are missing.)

After the turn of the century, as settlers moved in from Pennsylvania and West Virginia, Jefferson County was one of Ohio's most rapidly growing counties. The county's population, which was 8,766 in 1800, grew to 18,531 by 1820. (Jefferson County History).

While Charles$^{5}$ and his family did move from place to place, they remained in a relatively small area of eastern Ohio. Townships, where they owned land and farmed, included Knox, Saline, and Bush Creek in the northern part of Jefferson County, Ohio. The 1820 Ohio census lists them in Knox Township in Jefferson County.

Stephen Peckham IV

Stephen was the first to move to Scrituate, Rhode Island, and purchased the family farm in 1768 from Baulston Brayton. It remained in the family until it was sold by my grandmother in 1912, a total 144 years. Five generations of our family were raised on what became known as "Oak Hill Farm." The farm is located on Peeptoad, which I always thought was a wonderful name. The reason for the name is as follows: "The dam at the end of Peedtoad Road, where it intersects with Elmdale Road, was once the site of a mill owned by Andrew Harris. This mill was commonly known as Harrisdale Mill. As the years passed, the area around the mill became a disreputable neighborhood of horse thieves, liquor sales, and one house of ill-repute. Many people referred to the road leading to this mill from West Greenville Road as Horse Thief Road; but because the local residents wanted a more pleasant name, the Town Council was forced to agree to Peedtoad Road. This name was chosen because of the sounds the frogs in the nearly ponds would make in the summer months." From A History of Scituate, R. I., Being an Account of its Early Settlement and Events to the Present—complied by the American Studies Class Jr/Sr High School, N. Scituate, R.I., Project Heritage, 1977.

Biographical Sketch of Pardon Aldon$^5$ and Pardon Lawrences$^6$ Peckham as told by Lillian Peckham$^8$ Franke and Kathryn Franke

Pardon Aldon $^5$ Peckham was born in Dartmouth, Massachusetts in 1789, before the family moved to the Castkill Mountains in the State of New York because of his father's health. Prince's wife, Sarah had died of tuberculosis and Prince must have had suggestive symptoms. In those days, altitude and fresh air were the only known "treatment" for the disease. There they settled and farmed in the valleys near Prattsville.

That Prince $^4$ Peckham was a farmer as well as a lieutenant in the Revolutionary army seems likely as farming seems to have been in his genes. His children and grandchildren through the next three generations lived together and farmed their land together, even as they moved from place to place. Pardon Aldon probably married Hannah, about 1820, as her second child was born in 1822 and she bore the last three of her four children one year apart. Son Pardon Lawrences (the last of the four) was born in 1824. The family continued to farm in the Catskillswith other Peckham families (Pardon Alden's brother John Alden was there with his family) into the time of the Rent Wars of the 1840s.

It was probably in 1844 that Pardon Aldon, with a group of five to ten other men including his brother, John Alden, traveled by boat to Milwaukee and walked to Sun Prairie to examine the possibility of moving their families there. Sun Prairie came into existence in 1837 and there was prime farmland in the vicinity available from the government.

On his return father and son with their entire family moved to what soon became known as Peckham Corners. The Peckham school was built in this location and still stands though it has since become a family dwelling.

Pardon Lawrence $^6$ married Catherine Von Volkenberg from Big West Kill, New York in 1848. Pardy's family multiplied and, though his wife Catherine died of cancer of the throat in 1877 at the age of 49, there still would have been seven for dinner each evening when Pardon Aldon $^5$ died in 1881.

Pardon Lawrence $^6$ and his son John Irvin $^7$ lived on together, the later marrying Nellie Shute in 1896 after a brief first marriage failed. They had three children, the last on Nov. 14, 1911. Nellie Shute died a month later, leaving her oldest daughter Lillian $^8$ to care for the family. Pardon Lawrence died suddenly in 1912, just five months later at 88 years of age, closing the 6th generation.

John Alden$^5$ and James$^6$ Oakley Peckham
as told by Charles Addison9 Peckham

John AIden$^5$ Peckham was born in 1798, about the time that his father, Prince$^4$ moved with his family to Prattsville, New York. Prince died in 1833 in Middleton, New York. Little is known of his life there except that the family farmed in the Catskill Mountains of lower New York State at the time of the Rent Wars that lead to strife between the settlers and the authorities (the deputy sheriffs who collected the rents).

John married Aurella Smead, probably about 1820. His first son, James$^6$ Oakley Peckham, must have been born shortly thereafter as his second child, Lucy, was born in 1824. John and his growing family farmed with other members of what was probably a sizeable Peckham enclave.

In 1844 the Anti-Rent Wars were raging in and around Prattsville, New York, and in one of the many skirmishes a deputy sheriff was killed. Known as the Tin Horn and Calico Wars, deputies would go into the Catskill Mountains to collect rents unannounced. The renters and friends would detect their approach down the valleys, blow their tin horns to alert the others, don their calico masks with pigtails which covered their heads and shoulders, and disappear into the high forests where they hid out until the collectors were gone. On one such occasion a deputy was killed. No individual was ever apprehended, and the outraged authorities charged everyone living in the area with sedition and murder. Though the Peckhams were not renters the renters were quite likely their friends and neighbors. About 1848 Governor DeWitt declared a general amnesty ending the matter for all time.

In 1844, perhaps stimulated by these events, a group from the Peckham enclave which included Pardon AIden$^5$ and John Alden$^5$ traveled by boat to Milwaukee, Wisconsin and from there walked to the vicinity of Sun Prairie, to reconnoiter the land's suitability for farming. They agreed upon an area which is still known as Peckham's Corners located around the junction of what is now state highway 19 and county trunk V, east of Sun Prairie, Wisconsin.

Probably two years later the several Peckham families moved to Peckham Corners

John's oldest son, James$^6$ Oakley, did not accompany them as he was by then studying medicine in the Boston area. He must have married Esther Gray about 1846 as soon as he entered practice, in Deansville, Wisconsin, close to Peckham Corners. They had their first child, Addison$^7$ in 1847 and six more in the next thirty-four years. James practiced from his home and, for the most part, was paid in kind. A notebook now in the possession of Charles A.$^9$ records his fees though not the services rendered: a bushel of corn; one quart of whiskey; one man and a team for a days work; etc.

James $^6$ served in the Civil War as a surgeon. His notebook records the fact that he was conscripted and served with a squad in battles for Fort Morton and Nashville, Tennessee.

After the war, he returned to Deansville where he continued to practice.

John A.$^5$ died in 1881 and was buried next to his wife Aurella in the Bristol Cemetery.

The date of death of James$^6$ Oakley is not known. He was also buried in the Bristol Cemetery and the gravesite is indicated on a map of the cemetery plots, but no stone marks the grave. Charles A.$^9$ has located the gravesite from the map and proved the presence of four coffins with metal reinforced corners within the plot using a metal detector, but the caskets have never been uncovered.

Charles Peckham

Charles Peckham, with his brother George, went from Tiverton, R. I. to Madison County, N. Y., m 1794, and took up land south of what is now called Madison Center. The house they built is still standing, though moved from the place they first built it. They chopped and cleared a few acres of land during the winter months, and in the Spring returned to Rhode Island. It is stated in the History of Madison County that on the day they left Madison, 1795. May 8, the leaves on the trees were out in full size. They came back the following year. The family of Charles Peckham was all born in Madison. About 1836 he moved on to what is called Stafford Street, about half a mile west of Solsville. At his death the farm was purchased by his son Sanford, and is still in the possession of his descendants.

Jonathan$^5$ Peckham

It is not known what occupation Jonathan Peckham followed in Providence. After his first marriage, he appears to have spent some time in Bristol, R. L, and also in Swansea, Mass., in which latter place his children by his first wife were born. We find him in the Revolutionary Records as a member of Captain Peck's Company, Colonel Lippitt's Regiment, on the pay roll of 1776 (Massachusetts Records). Another entry, is as follows: "Johnathan Peckham of Swansea, private, Capt. Peleg Peck's Co., Col. Thomas Carpenter's regiment: entered service Aug. 5, 1780, discharged Aug. 9, 1780; service 5 days; Co. marched to Tiverton, R. I., on alarm by order of Col. Stead. All the men in Swansea were joined in one Co. under Capt. Peck, the other officers refusing to serve." (Ibid).

From all the circumstances of his life, which are known, it appears that Jonathan was in some capacity with General Gates' command when Burgoyne surrendered, near what is now Saratoga Springs, as, immediately after the war, about 1790, he removed from Rehoboth and Swansea, with his second wife, and went to Schenectady, N. Y. Here he remained a number of years, and here the children of his second wife were born, with possibly the exception of Giles Henry, whom family tradition reports as born in Providence, R. I.

While living in Schenectady, he appears to have taken advantage of the allotments of land, made by the State of New York to the soldiers of the Revolution, and located a farm, said to be the first, at what is now Ballston Spa, Saratoga County. The town of Malta was afterwards set off from Ballston Spa, and the line between the two towns ran through this farm. It was a large tract of land, and most of it was held by the family for one hundred years. On this farm Jonathan Peckham spent the latter years of his life, and died. The following is a copy of a paper, written by Jonathan Peckham and now in the possession of a descendant. "Respectful reader Mrs. Susannah Peckham, the loving, kind, tender and affectionate wife of Mr. Johnathan Peckham, which God was pleased to take away by death the 12th day of November in the year A. D. 1785. Susanah was born 29th day of August in the year A. D. 1762, and was married the 18th day of April A. D. 1779. Her first child Mary Peckham was born 14th March A. D. 1780. Her second child Nancy Peckham was born 31st day of Jan. A. D. 1783. Her third and last child Caleb Peckham was born 11th day of Jan. A. D. 1785. The above Susannah complaineth of being unwell the 31st day of Oct. and continued until the above time mentioned, and was buried the next day following, which was the 13th day of Nov. A. D. 1785. The above was wrote by the hand of Jonathan Peckham on Jan. the 5th 1786.

The Will of Henry West of Rehoboth, yeoman, probated 1798, Sept. 4, mentions three grandchildren, the children of his deceased daughter, Susannah Peckham.

There are no records concerning the birth, marriage, or death of Innocent Wood. Family tradition states that, soon after the death of his first wife, Jonathan Peckham married "a snip of a girl, seventeen years old." This would make her birth date about 1769. It also relates that she lived to a great age, eighty-eight years, and died at her daughter Susan's, at Richmond, Indiana, in 1857. There are two records at Taunton, Mass., which refer to Jonathan Peckham. The first is the Will of his mother, Mary (Kingsley) Peckham, probated 1795, Jan. 6, in which she bequeaths to her sons Jonathan, Aaron and Silas, and her daughters, Patience, wife of Seth Fisher, and Polly (Mary) Peckham. The other is dated 17 98, September 4, when Aaron Peckham brother of Jonathan, of Rehoboth, Mass., was appointed guardian of Polly, Nancy- and Caleb Peckham, minors, and children of Jonathan, who was then out of the Commonwealth, and grandchildren of Henry West, late of Rehoboth children of Susanah Peckham, deceased. It appears that these children remained in the custody of their grandparents in Swansea until after they became of age, when they joined their father in Saratoga County. All three married and had children, and, at the death of their father, participated with the surviving children of his second marriage in the division of his estate. The land records of Saratoga County testify that in 1827 Caleb Peckham and Julia Ann, his wife, and Nancy Burnett of the first part, to Stephen Peckham of the second part, conveyed a part of nine acres of land, of which Jonathan Peckham died seized. Other tracts of land were conveyed to Stephen and Lucinda. Giles and Abigail Peckham, of the town of Malta, Saratoga Count, conveyed the Springs which were in Jonathan Peckham's farm to Stephen and Lucinda. These Springs are again conveyed to a third party. 1832, June 27, Caleb conveys, subject to the dower right of Innocent. 1844, Oct. 31, Giles conveys alone. 1846, March 6, Sally R. Peckham conveyed land belonging to the heirs of Jonathan Peckham. Caleb, alone, conveys land forming part of the farm of the late Jonathan Peckham, lying partly in Ballston Spa and partly in Malta. Caleb and Nancy also convey. 1858, Oct.

Summary Statement

The migrating Peckhams of the fifth and sixth generations in the 1700 and 1800's were a varied lot, on the move by steamboat, horseback or covered wagon, or on foot. The city dwellers were noted lawyers, statesman, justices, ministers and traders. The pioneers, moving west into the wilderness of those times were homesteaders, clearing new land, farming and expanding their fortunes. As travel has become easier so have the Peckhams spread until now they may be found throughout the United States, Canada, and of course, Great Britain.

Robert Peckham was a portrait painter and lived at Westminster, Mass., for over fifty years. He was noted for the faithfulness of his portraits to the original. Indeed, it was remarked "his portraits are too truthful." He was a strong temperance and anti-slavery man. When the town of Westminster dedicated a monument to the memory of the men who fell in the Civil and other wars, he was asked to write a poem, although then more than eighty years old. His son, Samuel, died a prisoner of war at Andersonville. He was for many years a deacon of the Congregational Church in Westminster. His house was the headquarters of the antislavery movement in 1845. They were residents of Westminster, Mass.

Joshua$^5$ and Abel$^6$ Peckham

While very little is known of the personal aspects of the lives of Joshua$^5$ and Abel$^6$, Stephen Farnum and Byron Judson Peckham uncovered a wealth of information concerning their children, their marriages, and their movements about the country during their lifetimes during the fifth, sixth, seventh and even the eighth generation. Joshua and his second wife are buried in Petersburg, N. Y., the dividing line through their farm placing their residence in Grafton, while the burying ground is in Petersburg. Joshua$^5$ and Sarah, his first wife, had Abel$^6$ their fourth child in Westerly, R. I. and then moved to Rensselaer, N. Y. Ten years and five children later, Sarah (Stetson) died and Joshua$^5$ returned to Westerly for his second wife, Sarah Burdick, with whom he had the last three of his twelve children. At least one of their children left New York State for Minnesota.

During his childhood and young manhood, Abel$^6$ resided at Trenton and Stockton, N. Y. before moving to Albany, in Greene County, Wisconsin. Through his eleven children, born in these cities, Abel$^6$ had a total of fifty-four grandchildren some of whom moved on to Oklahoma, Nebraska and California.

Thomas$^6$ Peckham Jr.

Thomas Peckham began his business career at the age of sixteen, as clerk for William Ellery, the first Collector of the port of Newport, and one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He afterwards became the Deputy Collector of the port of Providence, which position he held for thirty-two years. He was an accountant of remarkable skill. The following obituary notice is quoted from one of the Providence newspapers:

"In this City, Providence, after a short illness, Thomas Peckham, Esq., in the 62nd year of his age. `Justum,'et tena cem propositi virum.' In recording this instance of mortality we cannot withhold a brief tribute in memory of the deceased. He was a native of Newport and removed to Providence in the year 1809 to assume the duties of the office of Deputy Collector of the Customs for this district, in which he continued to act until the Spring of 1841 during which long period he discharged these duties with an accuracy and facility that could not be surpassed and with a most scrupulous fidelity to the Government. He was strict in the observance of the hours of business and through his long official course was never absent from his office during office hours but a day and a half and that aggregate of absence was occasioned by two different events—the death of his parents at Newport, for whom he ever manifested a most tender filial affection. He possessed a clear mind, and quick perception, and at one glance comprehended the meaning of the various collection and tariff laws which were passed, without the necessity of instructions from a higher quarter, and so accurate was he in forming all the he in various abstracts, returns and reports for the Treasury Department, that not one was ever returned for correction. His reading was extensive. He was familiar with ancient and modern history; was a fine mathematical scholar; displayed a rare taste for literature; was deeply read in the Latin, French and English poets, and kept pace with the modern improvements in science. He possessed an amiable disposition and was warm and generous in his attachments. He was an affectionate husband, a tender indulgent parent, and was never tardy in relieving distress whenever he heard its plaintive voice. But the chief characteristic for which he is to be remembered was his stern and inflexible honesty of purpose. He formed no opinion hastily, but possessing a strong mind, after he had formed an opinion on mature reflection which was rarely erroneous, he adhered to it firmly and inflexibly.

"His opinions and his conduct toward men were based on the strictest moral principles; and from those principles and from truth he was never known to deviate.

"He was truly 'a man resolved and steady to his trust, inflexible of will and obstinately just.' "

Captain Lewis[6] Peckham Sr.

Lewis Peckham was an artist, musician and soldier. He served as Captain under General Cass in the United States Army. General Cass, in speaking of him in Albany, to his nephew, Edward Lewes Peckham, said "he was a good officer." He painted miniature portraits of his father and mother, and as a boy copied a Coat-of-Arms from an older copy in the family, which is clearly the Arms of the Peckhams of Suffolk, as described by Burke in his Landed Gentry of England.

He spent his early years in Newport, acquiring the rudiments of a good education, following his bent as an artist, and becoming expert as a miniature portrait painter. He was appointed First Lieutenant in Captain Prescott's Company, 4th United States Infantry, Colonel John P. Boyd coil commanding, at some date prior to 1809, Dec. 25, on which day he wrote from Fort Independence, Boston Harbor, a letter to his father. On Feb. 17, 1810, he wrote that he had "fortunately become acquainted with a Mr. Stewart of Boston, who offers me instruction in the art of painting, gratis." On May 24, 1810, he wrote that the promotion of his superior officers left the Company under his command. That a few days past there were eighty sail of merchantmen to be seen from this port, all under sail. Also, that he rode in the company of Lieutenant Trusler through Boston, Roxbury, Brookline, Watertown, Melton, Cambridge, and Charlestown—about twenty-five miles—through a highly cultivated country, adorned with a great number of county seats. In passing through Cambridge, he had an opportunity of seeing "Medford College, commonly called Cambridge College. It is situated on a rising ground in three buildings, each a hundred feet in length, about twenty-five feet in breadth, placed in a straight line about twenty feet asunder. About sixty rods from the college stands a meeting house for the students."

On Oct. 28, 1810, he writes: "My time of late has been mostly employed in painting miniatures for the officers at the Post. In some of my pictures I have been very fortunate and have made considerable improvement in my painting."

He left Boston and was for a time located at Greenbush, near Albany, N. Y. From there he was sent to Pittsburgh, Pa., and then to Vincennes, Ind. On July 13, 1812, he writes from a camp at Sandwich, Upper Canada: "Our regiment left Vincennes on the 11th of May and arrived at this place the 5th of July, after experiencing every hardship imaginable. The first nine days of the march the rain fell in torrents, which, as our way led over a flat country, rendered our situation very unpleasant. We marched upwards of 90 miles in the State of Ohio without meeting with a single habitation—cut a road through the same wilderness, built five block houses for the defense of the frontier, and have at last arrived safe in Detroit without being attacked by the Indians, which we expected several days previous to our arrival; during which time our army fortified themselves in camp every night by felling large trees in front of the tents." On the surrender of Detroit he was made a prisoner of war with the rest of his command.

On Sept. 8, 1812, he wrote from Montreal: "I am now in the possession of the English, and expect to be a prisoner of war until I am exchanged, for the boats are now ready to move us to Quebec. Since I have been a prisoner, my situation has not been as unpleasant as you (his father) would probably suppose. While I was at Detroit I wrote frequently, but I fancy very few lines reached you, as the Indians intercepted our mail. On the 11th of Aug. I was in the action at Brownstown, nine miles, from Detroit. The enemy, who were badly beaten, was forced to retreat, and it is a little astonishing that Detroit should be surrendered without resistance."

We next hear him by means of a letter dated from Fort Erie, Upper Canada, Oct. 12, 1814. He was then writing on his hat, on the eve of a battle, the issue of which he was uncertain of. The Treaty of Peace in 1815 led to the disbanding of a large part of the army and the resignation of many of the officers. Captain Peckham wrote from Baltimore, April 7, 1815, that his resignation had been accepted, to take effect the last of the previous March. He was then about to leave for Pittsburgh, en route for Vincennes, Ind., where he passed the remainder of his life.

His wife, Mary Dashnay, died at Vincennes, as did also Captain Peckham, who was buried there "with all the pomp and honors of war, he being Judge Advocate of his regiment at the time of his death." What regiment is not stated.

The prefaces of these works indicate their spirit and purpose. The Newport correspondent of the New York Herald, in a letter to that paper dated July 1873, made the following statement: "Mr. Peckham is as unique as a Greek cameo and quite as well worth studying. Living alone like an amiable Diogenes, unblessed with chick or child, he is versed in the law of spiritualism and fond of all questions in which the mystery of manhood and womanhood is concerned. Battered by the world, he yet has a fresh stream of thought and charity for man. I will vouch for the exceptionality of his character, the ingenuousness of his conversation and the eccentricity of his surroundings" (Obituary Notice) (Source: Peckham Genealogy 1922)

Carder Peckham

Carder Peckham removed from Rhode Island, with three of his brothers, to Oneida County, N. Y., where they settled at Verona. They were all well-to-do farmers carrying on tanneries on their farms. They are remembered as stalwart, handsome men; their daughters being among the most beautiful girls Oneida County could boast of. The following is an obituary notice of the death of the widow of Carder Peckham.

"Mrs. Achsah Peckham, who died last Wednesday morning at_________, near this place, was one of the oldest residents of this town. She was born in Connecticut in 1791, and moved to near Greens Corners in 1801. She was the youngest daughter of Richard Brown, and sister of the late Chauncey Brown of your city (Rome) in 1808. She was married to Carder Peckham of this place, and has lived on the same farm ever since, over 73 years. She was the mother of 14 children, all of whom grew to manhood and womanhood.

She was a kind, capable and dutiful wife, and affectionate mother. Seventeen years of girlhood, forty-seven years of married life, and nearly twenty-seven years of widowhood filled up her ninety years of life of usefulness which the poet tells us is but a span, a fading hour."

Robert Taylor Peckham

Very little is known about this branch of the family, it being by mere chance that any clue to Robert Taylor Peckham was obtained. His birth was not recorded at South Kingston, and as he moved to Oneida with his elder brothers, his Rhode Island relatives did not know of his existence. A letter from a gentleman in Colorado, to one of the compilers a few years ago, stated that his wife was a descendant of Robert Taylor Peckham of Verona, N. Y., brother of Carder Peckham. This was the first information that such a person had existed, his descendants having, seemingly, moved away from Oneida County.

Sarah Peckham

Sarah Peckham was seventeen when she married the twenty-two year old Acors. Soon after, they left Rhode Island for New York State, settling at a place near Rome, N. Y., which later became known as Rathboneville. They bought a farm which became the family homestead, and cleared it by hand; Sarah being always his faithful helper. Several times her sister, Elizabeth, visited her, and she afterwards visited her old home. Long and rough were the roads to Rhode Island in those days; leading over the mountains often above the clouds; through primeval forests and over unbridged streams. The overland trail of the Mohawk Valley Indians passed near their house, and it was not unusual for a band of from five to ten Indians to enter the kitchen at nightfall, roll up in their blankets, and sleep before the great fireplace. In the morning they would leave in peace with grunts of thanksgiving.

Acors once cut his foot with an axe, and while Sarah was helping him dress it their tame fox fastened his teeth upon the wound and held on until its jaws were forced open. The first grain they reaped was ground at Albany, 100 miles away.

And Sarah managed all this while having fifteen children!

Alice Peckham

The early life of Alice Peckham was spent in South Kingston. Soon after her marriage she removed with her husband to the town of Smithfield, R. I., where they resided until 1837, when they removed to Blackstone, Mass. Here she resided when not absent from home attending to her religious duties and missions of love and good will among her fellow men, for she became a recognized minister in the New England yearly meeting of the Society of Friends very shortly after her marriage, and in later life was regarded as one of the most distinguished preachers in that religious sect. Her labors in telling of peace and good will were not confined to her immediate surroundings, but her sweet and gently eloquent voice was heard on various occasions by thousands of admiring and attentive listeners throughout the hills and valleys of New England. Her preaching was far above creeds and sectarian divisions; broad and liberal in the truest spirit; inspiring a universal fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man. Her gentle and loving words in the reproval of sin and wrong doing fell upon the ears of her hearers without distinction, and were ever received by her audiences with the utmost reverence and respect; they were as "apples of gold in pictures of silver." In all the relations of life she exercised a wide and beneficent influence. Like a ministering angel, she was ever ready to stand by the bed of sickness and distress; as earnestly in behalf of the humble and lowly as of the rich and powerful. She fulfilled her mission as truly as it is in the power of finite beings to accomplish the full measure of their life's work. She died while on a religious visit to Beligrade, Me.

Note: The mother of Professor Stephen Farnum Peckham, one of the compilers of this work, frequently heard Alice Peckham preach when she was a young woman, and has repeatedly borne testimony to the deep impression made by her melodious voice and fervently spiritual utterances.

Biographical Sketch of Judge Williams Peckham

Judge William$^6$ Peckham's boyhood and early life were passed under the parental roof, where he acquired most of his limited education, never having attended school but four months outside of the family circle. His parents were prominent members of the Society of Friends and his early religious instruction was in accordance with that simple faith, guided by the "Light Within." He continued a birthright member until his marriage, when, because his wife was not a member of the Society, he forfeited his right to membership, as it was contrary to the discipline of Friends to marry out of the meeting. Both, however, continued to worship with the sect during the remainder of their lives. Soon after his marriage he made a home about a half mile from his place of birth, at South Kingston, R. I., where he continued to reside during the remainder of his life, with the exception of six years, when he resided in the village of Westerly.

In 1810, he was elected to the State Senate, and from that time on held many important offices of honor and trust. In 1814, during the last war with Great Britain, he was commissioned by Governor William Jones a Captain of the "Second Company of Infantry of the town of South Kingston." He was called out to defend the old sloop Waumpum, which was destroyed and driven ashore on Matunuk Beach by a British cruiser. This duty he performed much to the annoyance of his good peace-loving Quaker friends.

About 1839 he was appointed by the State of Rhode Island one of three Commissioners --- to meet with a like Commission from the State of Connecticut to survey and adjust the boundary line between the two States, which had been in dispute for many years.

He was a firm supporter of the old National Republican Party from Jefferson's administration to the close of James Monroe's second Presidential term, when he supported John Quincy Adams. From that time on he supported the Whig Party and its policies, until it went to pieces on the defeat of General Scott in 1852. He then allied himself with the Republican Party of today.

He was strongly opposed to slavery and believed in the free public discussion of the question; hence his house was always a refuge for the most radical abolitionist, and he often defended in public their right for free speech, sometimes at the risk of personal safety. In those days to harbor or even to entertain an abolitionist at one's house subjected the offender in many instances to social ostracism and public indignity, even in puritanical, liberty-loving New England.

When the suggestion of a change in the organic law of the State from the old charter granted by Charles II of England in 1663[†] (under which Rhode Island came into the Union as a State, and which continued the recognized fundamental law for 180 years, until it was superseded in 1842 by our constitution)[*] was made, he was a strong advocate of the change. This change substituted a more equal apportionment of representation in the Legislature and a liberal extension for the suffrage. Judge Peckham was once a candidate for Governor on the "Free Suffrage Ticket," but when Thomas Wilson Dorr and the more radical friends of the movement proposed to resort to forcible and revolutionary means to attain the end desired, he promptly notified Mr. Dorr and his adherents that "while he recognized the necessity of the change for which they contended and was ready to resort to all peaceable means to secure it, he was not ready to take up arms against the existing government to redress the wrong which he believed could be redressed under recognized lawful authority." Accordingly, when the Governor called for volunteers to support the State authority, he appeared in Market Square, Providence, with five of his sons, armed and equipped for that service.

From earliest childhood he was a total abstainer from the use of alcoholic liquors and tobacco in all their forms, and among the first to discountenance their use in public and social occasions. At that period not a house or a barn could be raised, a child born, or a funeral conducted, without a plentiful supply of alcoholic stimulants of some sort or other. In 1829 he united with others to form one of the first Temperance Societies in Rhode Island.

Liberal in his religious views, he had little use for creeds or discipline, but manifested his faith by his example in daily life. Born amidst the darkest days of the struggle of the Colonies for recognition of their independence among nations, it seemed but fitting that his lifework should close during the dark days of that terrific effort for the maintenance of the American Union—the Civil War. He passed calmly and peacefully from the busy scenes of life to the great beyond (J. C. P.).

William Brittingham and Hannah (Stafford) Lacey, rector of St. Peter's Church, Albany. He married (2d) Mary Elizabeth Foote, daughter of Israel and Mary (Taintor) Foote of New Jersey. She and Mr. Peckham were lost in the collision of the steamer Ville du Havre while on their way to Europe. Soon after the birth of Rufus Wheeler, his father moved with his family to Otsego County, N. Y., establishing himself on the east bank of the Susquehanna, a short distance beyond Cooperstown. Here, amid beautiful scenery, in the region rendered classic by the pen of Cooper, the young man's youth was spent. He was early sent to Hartwick Seminary in the same county, an institution distinguished among the academies of the State for thorough instruction under the efficient head of Rev. Dr. Hazelius. He entered Union College in 1825 at the age of sixteen. Dr. Nott had then been twenty-one years at the head of the institution and had acquired a national reputation as an instructor. He joined the class which graduated in 1827, which was remarkable for the large proportion of its members who afterwards attained distinction. His training at Hartwick had made him a good classical scholar and he at once took rank in that department which he held during his college life; otherwise he cannot be said to have been a special student, though his natural gifts enabled him to maintain a good position in his class. The celebrated battalion of Union College cadets, adopting the West Point uniform, has just been formed when he entered as a student. He was at once chosen a Lieutenant of one of the companies, and, devoting himself to military tactics, was in the next year selected Captain. The 4th of July holiday of the year was spent in an excursion to Otsego, and it may be questioned whether any of his future successes afforded him as much gratification as the plaudits of the friends and companions of his youth as he lead his company of young and handsomely equipped cadets through the streets of Cooperstown. That discipline and training may well account for the military bearing which he always expressed; an element of a good soldier which he possessed to a minute degree. He was graduated at the age of 18. An elder brother had long occupied a prominent position as a physician in the city of Utica, and to that city he went on leaving college and entered the offices of Brownson and Beardsley as a law student. Greene C. Brownson and Samuel Beardsley were each afterwards Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New York. If knowledge could be obtained by absorption he certainly might well hope to gain it in that office which he had entered; but he knew well that twenty years of diligent study would be required before he could hope to obtain a thorough knowledge of his profession, and he applied himself diligently to his studies. His pleasant manner and diligence won the strong friendship of both of his instructors which with Chief Justice Beardsley was something more; it was the affection of an elder for a younger brother. On his admission to the Bar in 1830 he as once joined his elder brother, George W., in the city of Albany. The firm soon acquired a large business in which the junior member was admitted as a counselor the duties in the courts and trial of cases devolving mainly him. His good address and the terseness with which he presented his cases to the jury in court soon placed him among those in the front rank of the profession at the Capital.

In 1838, when twenty-nine years of age he was appointed by Governor Marcy District Attorney for the City and County of Albany. The duties of this important office he discharged with fidelity and impartiality, as well as with ability. He was no respecter of persons. He continued in this office until 1841, when a change of political parties brought a change in the office. In 1845 he was the candidate for Attorney-General of the State. He had a formidable competitor in the person of John Van Buren, son of the ex-President, and after a sharp contest Van Buren won by a single vote. In the fall of 1852 he was returned by the City and County of Albany a Representative to the Thirty-third Congress of the United States, and took his seat during the first year of General Pierce's administration. Though a life-long Democrat and elected as such, he refused to be bound by party ties while questions which he deemed vital to the best interest of the country were at stake. He voted against the famous Nebraska bill and foretold with wonderful accuracy the effect which that would be likely to produce.

At the time of his election to Congress his brother, George W., and brother-in-law, Joseph S. Colt, who with him constituted the firm of Peckham and Colt, moved to Milwaukee, Wisconsin. On the expiration of his Congressional term, having previously been associated with Lyman Tremain as his partner, he resumed active practice with this great lawyer.

He visited Europe in 1859 in company with his old friend and instructor Chief Justice Samuel Beardsley, who had then just closed his judicial labors.

On his return from Europe in the fall of 1859 he was immediately nominated and elected a justice of the Supreme Court. He brought to the Bench excellent qualities, and dispatched the business of the Circuit with rapidity and ability; but most of all he brought there the determination to mete out, without fear or favor, equal and exact justice to all men.

Of his learning, ability, manly skill and usefulness as a judge, the counsel who appeared before him and the judicial brothers who long presided with him on the Bench have spoken in no mean terms.

At the close of his first judicial term of eight years he was re-elected without opposition, and upon the close of his second term he was elected a member of the Court of Appeals.

He was lost with his wife on Saturday, November 22, 1873, on board the steamer Ville du Havre, on which they had taken passage for Europe; the steamer having been destroyed by a collision with the British ship Lochearn. He left two sons, Wheeler H. Peckham of New York City and Rufus W. Peckham Jr., of Albany. They were the children of his first wife, who died when they were young. In the foregoing brief outline of the life of Judge Peckham reference has been chiefly made of his qualifications and eminent fitness for professional station. To his family and intimate friends he was united by the strongest ties of affection. Aside from the intellectual life, his character was expressed in the warmth and intensity of affection and his ability for making himself beloved of all. His friendships were not only strong and enduring, but they were the genuine outgrowth of a generous nature (Obituary Notice).

R.W.Peckham

In 1839 he was appointed by Gov. Marcy district-attorney of the county of Albany, in which capacity he served until 1841. He was elected to the 33rd congress in 1852. On the expiration of his term he resumed practice in Albany, taking into partnership Lyman Tremain; his brother, George, having removed to Milwaukee in the interim. In 1859 he spent a few months in European travel, and upon his return was elected justice of the Supreme Court. At the close of his first judicial term of eight years Judge Peckham was re-elected, no opposing candidate being named. In 1870, before the expiration of his second term, he was elected to the court of appeals. On Nov. 15, 1873, Judge Peckham, accompanied by his wife, sailed for Europe on the steamer Ville du Havre, for the benefit of his health, intending to spend the winter in southern France. He was destined, however, never to arrive there, as the English iron ship Loch Earn collided with the Villle du Havre on Nov. 22nd. She sank within twelve minutes of the time she was struck, Judge and Mrs. Peckham being carried down in the vortex. Just before the ship disappeared he said to his wife, "If we must go down, let us die bravely"—probably his last words. His first wife, Isabella Adoline, daughter of the Rev. Dr. William B. Lacey, rector of St. Peter's Church, Albany, New York, to whom he married, 1832, died in 1848. In February 1862, he was again married to Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Isreal Foote. ### Reverend Stephen Hazard Peckham

He was a prominent Seventh Day Baptist Elder, and the pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist Church in Ledyard, Conn. He spent his whole life in Ledyard, living in about one neighborhood from boy to man. Was first licensed to preach, and then ordained through the Church he gathered, and died at his post, laboring always on a very small salary, and when the church had its dark days preaching for nothing. A recent book, "The History of Ledyard," speaks well of him and gives his picture. He was at one time Superintendent of a mill.

Captain Philip Peckham

Captain Philip Peckham was born while his parents lived at Bloomfield, Vermont. He appears to be a later settler in the Cayuga Creek region of Lancaster, New York than his son Pardon. He became Captain of the 13th Regiment of the New York State Infantry. He was famed as a hunter. "Tall tales and true" are recorded of how he studied where to place and dig a "dead fall" and by this means he captured a great black bear that had escaped all other hunters and had continued to menace the community. And what's more "he shot and killed the largest wolf ever known to be killed in that vicinity."

The story is told that at one time a rumor tormented the settlement at Lancaster. It was that some enemies from Canada were planning a raid on their community. Thirty Peckham men headed by Philip banded themselves together and marched to Chuktawaga and remained overnight watching for the raiders. Since no enemy appeared the thirty Peckhams marched bravely home again. Philip died at the age of ninety-three years. The marker on his gravestone at Lancaster reads, "The sweet remembrance of the just shall flourish, though they sleep in dust."

Captain Philip Peckham

Captain Philip Peckham's eight children were all born in Lancaster. The oldest son Solomon Cotton Peckham (my grandfather) was born in 1914 with truly itching g feet. He was a "chip off the old block." As a young man he immigrated to Linn County, Iowa Territory in the vicinity of Cedar Rapids. At the age of twenty-nine years he met and married wonderful little Harriet Brown, a slender, dark-eyed girl, five feet two inches tall, scarcely weighing one hundred pounds, but with an ability and stability not commonly found. After their first child Celina was born Solomon felt the urge to go to the then developing lead mines around Fairplaw, Wisconsin. Here he hoped a fortune awaited him. What he found was that life was very primitive and hand and that the rewards for his labors were few indeed. While here a husky, auburn-haired son was born to them whom they christened Hamilton Nathan Peckham. Again Solomon felt the urge to be on the move. This time it was to join a group of people forming an ideal settlement in Fennimore, Wisconsin. The plan of this group was to select for settlers those who together could contribute all talents needed to form a self-sufficient community a "doctor, a lawyer, a merchant, and a chief." Solomon and Harriet joined them and built their own house by some help from the neighbors, for the heavier parts; they cleared apart of their land from timber to be used for cropping, ran the Post Office for the community and he made shoes for his family and all his needy neighbors.

In the year 1849 when they had been married Just over six years Solomon was ready to sell out their homestead, equip a wagon and all the family to join the gold rush to California; It was then that little Harriet bad a major decision to make. She made it. It was that so long as she lived she would never leave their Fennimore Homestead. And she never did This left Solomon without cash for the journey but not without an increasing urge to go. He persuaded a neighbor to "grub stake" him (that is, not take the journey but put up the money and share the profits). He, jointly with three other neighbor men, bought a Conestoga Wagon, equipped it, hitched to it two yoke o f oxen and headed west. He left behind him a little weeping wife, three small children to be cared for, a fourth to be born within a matter of months, a homestead to be run and a $1,000.00 indebtedness to be paid. Stow she could accomplish all this alone nobody could see. We only know she did it.

These four 49'ers crossed the Mississippi River at Prairie-du-Chien, went diagonally across Iowa Territory, passing through Fort Des Moines and left the territory by crossing the Missouri River at Council Bluffs. They decided against going to St. Louis, the most popular place for restocking wagons for that longer and more difficult end of the journey. Just then cholera was running rampant there. Using this change of route they hoped to escape that deadly disease and did. They followed the Western trail in Nebraska along north of the Platte River to Scotts Bluff, then on to Laramie, Wyoming and bearing northward above the loop of the Sweet Water River they dipped into the southeast corner of the Territory of Idaho. Thus over mountains and across deserts, they slowly and painfully made their way across a part of northern Utah and Nevada and at long last found their way to Sutters Mill, California, having by this time suffered everything, they felt, but death itself. They panned for gold up the beautiful Feather River Canyon for over three years making the village of Sacramento their headquarters and shopping center, Solomon probably panned as much gold as the average prospector, but once again that hoped-for fortune eluded him. He once sent a gold nugget, shaped like a boot, home to his wife Harriet, which was valued at about $300.00. It was never sold but held as a family keepsake. Many years later their youngest son Guy lost it in Calhoun County, Iowa.

Solomon was growing increasingly homesick but he could not get his courage to again risk having to endure the sufferings of another overland trip of near two thousand miles He finally decided to return home by water. He went to San Francisco and set sail on one of the big old ocean-going cargo carrying "wind jammers," so called. They were the sailing vessels which then plied between the West Coast and New York City by going way to the south of South America around Cape Horn. It was a journey of many weeks and a large number of those who sailed died en route from dysentery caused from eating food not in the proper state of preservation. You must remember this is long before the time of refrigeration of foods. Solomon became seriously ill but recovered. He left for hone, if not poorer, certainly not richer in gold than when he started some four years ago. One day after four long years, Harriet Looked out her window and to her amazement saw her fierce bulldog escorting a man toward the house. She exclaimed, "That must be Solomon." She had trained the dog to allow no one to come to the house without first getting her consent. The dog had remembered Solomon and it was none other than her projecting husband returning hams. Within the year Harriet gave birth to their fifth and youngest child, Guy Cotton Peckham.

Solomon was a, great hunter. When cold freezing weather was upon then and the real winter weather had settled in, Solomon loaded his gun, wrapped a skillet, a bag of corn meal and a side of bacon in a blanket, strapped them all on his back, and took to the woods to hunt their winter's meat. Bear, deer end wild turkey were the meats most preferred. When he made a killing, by means of a rope, he pulled the carcass up into a tree out of the reach of other wild creatures. When night came he rolled himself in the blanket and crawled into a snow bank facing toward his bonfire. When he felt he had enough meat to curry them through the winter he returned home for his yoke of oxen and bobsled to carry it all home. Then came the big task of dressing all the meat. Some of it was left out to freeze, some was seasoned and hung over the kitchen fireplace to dry, and some was put down in brine, By getting their meat for the taking they were then free to sell any hogs and cattle they had been able to raise. By this means a bit of cash came to hand

When the Civil War broke out in 1061, Solomon volunteered in the 12th Wisconsin regiment even though be was beyond the years when military service would be required of him. A member of that regiment had a pet bald-headed eagle which he brought with him and it at once became err mascot. They christened him "Old Abe." After but a short training period the 12th Wisconsin was sent to Kansas to help control the bloody uprisings over the problem of whether that state should come into the Union slave or free.

When reinforcements were needed during the siege of Vicksburg, Mississippi, the 12th Wisconsin was ordered on to that strategic spot. When the regiment was on the march, "old Abe" soared high above them silhouetted against the sky. When they were engaged in battle he also took to the sky but went screaming his defiance. He never deserted them.

During the serge of Vicksburg the soldiers lay in the swamps around the city. As a result, more of them died from dysentery than from the guns of battle. Solomon was one of those who died. On the monument erected on the Vicksburg battleground there appears carved in the marble "Corporal Solomon Cotton Peckham 1814-1863." Carved from the marble topping the monument is a replica of "Old Abe" sitting with folded wings Men "Old Abe" died at the ripe old age, a taxidermist dressed him, placed him under a glass dome and set it on a marble pedestal in the main rotunda of the capital building of the state of Wisconsin. Later this old capital building burned and the form of "Old Abe" was lost to the flames.

Charles[6] Peckham

The lives and times of Charles[5] Peckham and his children are described in considerable detail with a wealth of supporting data in chapters 6 and 7and can only be summarized here. Charles[5] and his wife Rhoda married in Rhode Island but yielded to the westward fever to move to the opening frontier of Ohio. They probably traveled through Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and West Virginia into eastern Ohio around 1800–1801. They built their cabin, cleared the land, raised their children, successfully accumulated property and some of the comforts of the time. Charles[5] died in Ohio at the age of 93.

Charles [6] Peckham, according to Jefferson County register of deeds, married Polly Elliot on September 12, 1816. Since all accounts refer to Mary Ellis as the one and only wife of Charles[6] it is presumed that the recorder registered the wrong name. Polly is sometimes a nickname for Mary.

Charles[6] Peckham

The Charles Peckham family lived in Jefferson, Columbiana and Carroll counties in Ohio where they grew up and married. Charles[6] Peckham, the oldest, was the first to marry in Jefferson County. He moved several times before leaving Ohio and going with some of his friends to Allen County, Indiana. His family was reported to have been the fourth white family to move into Madison Township, Allen County, Indiana, in 1839. In 1855, he moved once more, taking his family to Richland County, Wisconsin.

Charles[6] was about seven years old when his family moved to Ohio. He grew to manhood in the hill country in eastern Ohio just a few miles west of the Ohio River. In the 1830 census, Charles[6] Peckham, along with his family, was listed in Washington Township, Columbiana County, Ohio. He acquired property, cleared ground, built a cabin and accumulated some resources, later selling his property and moving westward.

According to the records, on September 3, 1832, Charles[6] and wife Mary sold by Warranty Deed, Franklin

Township, range 4, township 13, section 10, to William Rankin. (Volume 17, page 110, Columbiana County, Ohio register of deeds.)

There is no record of how or when this land was acquired and presumably other land was purchased after 1832 and held until Charles$^6$ and Mary moved to Indiana in 1839.

There is evidence that Charles$^6$ and Mary moved around in Columbiana County, living in Yellow Creek, Washington, and Franklin townships and in Augusta Township in Carroll County before leaving for Indiana.

Charles and Mary, born of rugged pioneer stock, followed Highway 30 westward (probably only a trail at the time) to Allen County, Indiana. Undoubtedly, the name, Monroeville, Ohio, was transferred to their new Indiana community of Monroeville by some of the migrating pioneers. The town lies just south of United States Route 30.

Charles and Mary were apparently rugged pioneers who moved westward as the word came back of the new opportunities on the frontier. They sold their land and moved to Indiana. In the fall of 1839 the Charles$^6$ Peckham family moved from Carroll County, Ohio, and settled on the northwest quarter of section 26, Madison Township of Allen County, Indiana, where they raised their family.

In 1855 they again said goodbye to children and grandchildren and moved with brother and two sons into Richland County, Wisconsin, which was described as an almost perfect wilderness at the time. They typified the adventurous spirited pioneers who pressed westward into the sparsely settled frontier. They moved from the flat and level land of Indiana, past the level terrain of northern Illinois and Wisconsin to the west central hills of Wisconsin—hills very similar to those of eastern Ohio.

There were the clear springs of running water, a forest with abundant timber to build cabins and rich soil in the valleys where crops were planted and harvested. These Wisconsin hills became home to four generations of Peckhams and some still call it home.

Madison Twp. Monroeville, Indiana

In 1836 Mr. Browning, Mr. Madison, John Edwards, Andrew Meek and George Eagy came from Carroll County, Ohio. These families were the only inhabitants with homes near the site of Massillon.

In the fall of 1839 more Carroll County, Ohio delegations of families including John Myers, Charles Peckham, Jesse Todd, Adam Robinson, all settled in the Southwest quarter of town.

No roads were built until 1841 in the Township. Adam Robinson was first Justice of the Peace in 1840. James Robinson, son of John L. Robinson and grandson of "Squire" Adam Robinson. England.

Monroeville was platted in 1951 by Jacob and John Barnhart, sons of Peter Barnhart, who also had a daughter Captolia.

William Thomas Peckham

William[6] was born in Jefferson County, Ohio, about three or four years after his family moved there. He married and spent the first fifty years of his life farming in the hills of Eastern Ohio. In 1840 and 1850 William[6] was listed in Saline township, Jefferson County, Ohio. He bought and sold several parcels of land, according to the Jefferson County records. According to a record of deeds, William[6] bought a section of land in 1838. It was the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 25, range 2 of the public lands of U.S. in the District of Lands, subject to sale at Steubenville, Ohio. In Saline township, on August 2, 1847, William[6] Peckham bought from Samuel Hawley, Section 25, 25 acres for $50. William[6] and wife, Matilda, sold property on March 25, 1854, to a daughter, Mary E. Peckham Parsons, and others in Jefferson County, Ohio, for $50. This 40acre farm had been purchased in October, 1849, for $100.00. On March 1, 1855, he and his wife, Matilda, sold their last farm to Robert McKee: southeast quarter of section 25, township 9, range 2 in Jefferson County for $500. (Jefferson County Register of Deeds, E 2, p. 240.) Seven years after Wisconsin became a state, William[6] with his wife, sons and families ventured into the wilderness of Richland County, Wisconsin. William and Matilda purchased land southeast one-fourth, S one-fourth, Section 34, township 12, range 1 West in the Township of Bloom, Richland County, Wisconsin, on October 15, 1855. The purchase was made from Benjamin F. Householder. (Richland County Register of Deeds.) It must have been the stories of adventure and challenge of the undeveloped wilderness of Wisconsin that led them to say goodbye to their aging parents and sisters and move northwest.

According to Wisconsin 1870 census, William and Matilda owned $1,600 of real estate and $600 in personal property. He was a prosperous farmer and lived 25 years with his family and friends in the Bloom Township. William[6] and Matilda are buried in the Bloom City cemetery. (Source: Charles Wesley Peckham)

Nathaniel Peckham

Nathaniel Peckham and his estimable wife spent the whole of their long lives in the town of Middletown. "Uncle Nat Peckham," as he was familiarly called for many years, was one of the most prominent citizens of Middletown for fifty years; holding at different times nearly every office within the gift of his townsmen; including membership to the State Legislature. He was a progressive and successful farmer, tilling the acres which had come down to him from the original allotment made to his ancestors on both sides. He was doubtless as well known socially, as in any other manner, as a Master of Ceremonies for many years at genuine Rhode Island Clambakes; no clambake of any account being held on the Island unless presided over by "Uncle Nat." The notice of the services held at his funeral will, perhaps, best illustrate his many sided character, and the strong hold which he had upon those with whom he was associated by family, social, or neighborly ties. It reads that, long before the hour set for the service, the large house was entirely filled, and some fifty or more people waited about on the new piazza, unable to get into the house. The service was opened by the singing of the hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," by the choir of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The burial service of the Episcopal Church was read by the Rev. J. B. Dimond and the Rev. Anton N. Beasley of the Berkley Memorial Chapel, both of whom had been members, at various intervals, of Mr. Peckham's household, of which they spoke as being blessed times. Following the reading of the service, Mr. Dimond touched with great feeling upon the long and useful life lead by Mr. Peckham, and of his willingness to ever serve those to whom he was bound by any tie, however slight. That while not a regular church attendant, he felt that such a life was a loss to the church at large, and his departure from earthly life a loss to various spiritualist circles, as he was one of the most ardent spiritualists of his day, having lived in that faith for forty-eight years, as did also his wife. The closing hymn, "Abide With Me," was followed by prayer and the benediction. His brother associates from the various orders to which he belonged were his pall bearers, Oakland Lodge, I. O. O. F., the Aquidneck Lodge, Pomona Grange, and the Middletown Cavalcade. The various Societies were present at the Middletown Cemetery at Four Corners, and at the completion of the Episcopal committal service, read by the Rev. J. B. Dimond and Rev. A. N. Beasley the burial service of the Odd Fellows was held. The floral pieces were many and very beautiful. The gathering at the house and at the grave was a representative one, relatives and friends coming from Providence, South Kingston, Kingstown, Jamestown, Newport, Portsmouth, Tiverton, Little Compton, Fall River, Boston, New York, Lewiston, Me., and Turnervile, Conn. The assembly consisted of more than two hundred people, and would have been much larger, but for the fact that the day was Saturday, when it was difficult for men to be absent from their business.

Pardon Lawrence$^6$ Peckham

as told by Lillian Peckham$^8$ Franke and Kathryn Franke

Pardon Aldon $^5$ Peckham was born in Dartmouth, Massachusetts in 1789, before the family moved to the Catskill Mountains in the State of New York because of his father's health. Prince's wife, Sarah had died of tuberculosis and Prince must have had suggestive symptoms. In those days, altitude and fresh air were the only known "treatment" for the disease. There they settled and farmed in the valleys near Prattsville.

That Prince $^4$ Peckham was a farmer as well as a lieutenant in the Revolutionary army seems likely as farming seems to have been in his genes. His children and grandchildren through the next three generations lived together and farmed their land together, even as they moved from place to place. Pardon Aldon probably married Hannah, about 1820, as her second child was born in 1822 and she bore the last three of her four children one year apart. Son Pardon Lawrence (the last of the four) was born in 1824. The family continued to farm in the Catskills with other Peckham families (Pardon Alden's brother John Alden was there with his family) into the time of the Rent Wars of the 1840s.

It was probably in 1844 that Pardon Aldon, with a group of five to ten other men including his brother, John Alden, traveled by boat to Milwaukee and walked to Sun Prairie to examine the possibility of moving their families there. Sun Prairie came into existence in 1837 and there was prime farmland in the vicinity available from the government.

On his return father and son with their entire family moved to what soon became known as Peckham Corners. The Peckham school was built in this location and still stands though it has since become a family dwelling.

Pardon Lawrence [6] married Catherine Von Volkenberg from Big West Kill, New York in 1848. Pardy's family multiplied and, though his wife Catherine died of cancer of the throat in 1877 at the age of 49, there still would have been seven for dinner each evening when Pardon Aldon [5] died in 1881.

Pardon Lawrence [6] and his son John Irvin [7] lived on together, the later marrying Nellie Shute in 1896 after a brief first marriage failed. They had three children, the last on Nov. 14, 1911. Nellie Shute died a month later, leaving her oldest daughter Lillian [8] to care for the family. Pardon Lawrence died suddenly in 1912, just five months later at 88 years of age, closing the 6th generation.

John Alden[5] and James[6] Oakley Peckham

as told by Charles Addison9 Peckham

John Alden[5] Peckham was born in 1798, about the time that his father, Prince[4] moved with his family to Prattsville, New York. Prince died in 1833 in Middleton, New York. Little is known of his life there except that the family farmed in the Catskill Mountains of lower New York State at the time of the Rent Wars that lead to strife between the settlers and the authorities (the deputy sheriffs who collected the rents).

John married Aurella Smead, probably about 1820. His first son, James[6] Oakley Peckham, must have been born shortly thereafter as his second child, Lucy, was born in 1824. John and his growing family farmed with other members of what was probably a sizeable Peckham enclave.

In 1844 the Anti-Rent Wars were raging in and around Prattsville, New York, and in one of the many skirmishes a deputy sheriff was killed. Known as the Tin Horn and Calico Wars, deputies would go into the Catskill Mountains to collect rents unannounced. The renters and friends would detect their approach down the valleys, blow their tin horns to alert the others, don their calico masks with pigtails which covered their heads and shoulders, and disappear into the high forests where they hid out until the collectors were gone. On one such occasion a deputy was killed. No individual was ever apprehended, and the outraged authorities charged everyone living in the area with sedition and murder. Though the Peckhams were not renters the renters were quite likely their friends and neighbors. About 1848 Governor DeWitt declared a general amnesty ending the matter for all time.

In 1844, perhaps stimulated by these events, a group from the Peckham enclave which included Pardon Alden[5] and John Alden[5] traveled by boat to Milwaukee, Wisconsin and from there walked to the vicinity of Sun Prairie, to reconnoiter the land's suitability for farming. They agreed upon an area which is still known as Peckham's Corners located around the junction of what is now state highway 19 and county trunk V, east of Sun

Prairie, Wisconsin.

Probably two years later the several Peckham families moved to Peckham Corners

John's oldest son, James$^6$ Oakley, did not accompany them as he was by then studying medicine in the Boston area. He must have married Esther Gray about 1846 as soon as he entered practice, in Deansville, Wisconsin, close to Peckham Corners. They had their first child, Addison$^7$ in 1847 and six more in the next thirty-four years. James practiced from his home and, for the most part, was paid in kind. A notebook now in the possession of Charles A.$^9$ records his fees though not the services rendered: a bushel of corn; one quart of whiskey; one man and a team for a days work; etc.

James $^6$ served in the Civil War as a surgeon. His notebook records the fact that he was conscripted and served with a squad in battles for Fort Morton and Nashville, Tennessee.

After the war, he returned to Deansville where he continued to practice.

John A.$^5$ died in 1881 and was buried next to his wife Aurella in the Bristol Cemetery.

The date of death of James$^6$ Oakley is not known. He was also buried in the Bristol Cemetery and the gravesite is indicated on a map of the cemetery plots, but no stone marks the grave. Charles A.$^9$ has located the gravesite from the map and proved the presence of four coffins with metal reinforced corners within the plot using a metal detector, but the caskets have never been uncovered.

Chapter 8

Seventh Generation

The children of Charles$^6$ were born in Eastern Ohio. In 1839 the family moved to Allen County, Indiana, and became the fourth white family in Madison Township.

Allen County Indiana and Early Settlers

Madison township of Allen County had rich, fertile soil as well as heavily timbered oak, ash and poplar on relatively level land. It was invaded by a man named Browning in 1836 who erected a cabin, spent some time hunting and then departed. He was followed by John Edwards and Andrew Meeks from Carroll County, Ohio, who came there to live in 1837 and in 1838 brought their families. They were joined by John Eagy who worked at clearing the land for Mr. Meeks. In the fall of 1839 Charles$^6$ Peckham and family from Carroll County, Ohio, moved into Madison township and became the fourth white resident family. They were soon joined by others who came later that same year. These settlers came because they felt crowded in Ohio and they were interested in the cheap, virgin land. (History of Allen County, Indiana).

Building Homes

These early pioneers would cut the virgin forest to make openings in the dense wooded areas and to obtain logs for building their cabins. When the first settlers arrived the family often found themselves sleeping in "God's first temples" in the forest, out under the stars or under the shelter of a large tree or a temporary, but made of fallen trees and bark.

Together the settlers worked cutting and notching logs to build crude cabins. The larger logs were used for the foundation. The roof was sometimes made of clapboards about three feet long and six inches wide and weighted with poles to hold them in place. Large slab doors were put together with wooden pins and hung from wooden hinges with a buckskin "latch string" on the outside. The only light came through the door, down the chimney made of sticks and mud, or through a hole in the side of the cabin covered by a greased cloth or paper. The floor was made of rough slabs and the furniture was made by the settler with maul, wedge and axe. Later the settlers used only hewn logs for their cabins and filled the cracks with mud. And still later, with the advent of sawmills, sawed lumber was used. (History of Allen County, Indiana).

Food

There was a ready supply of food for those who owned a rifle and ammunition. Deer were abundant as were smaller game such as squirrel, rabbit and fowl. One old settler counted forty-five deer in one herd. Bears were also common in the area. Along with the meat from the wild animals, the pioneers ate wheat, corn, potatoes, etc., which they raised on the cleared plats. At weddings, cornbread and venison were the standard dishes. (History of Allen County, Indiana).

Furs

Cash was secured from the furs which the settlers would hunt. The pelts from deer, mink and coon were hung on the cabin during the winter and by spring the cabin was almost covered with hides. A coon skin at this time would bring $1 .00. (History of Allen County, Indiana).

Schools

The first school, constructed of hewn-logs, was built in 1840 and was maintained by private subscription. School was held during the winter months when the children could be spared from labor at home. The course of study depended largely on the ability of the teacher until 1854 when the state of Indiana began to set standards. Sometimes the schools and churches shared the same cabin.

(History of Allen County, Indiana)

Organizing the Township

In the spring of 1840, township trustees were elected along with a treasurer, justice of peace and constable. In order to establish roads a surveyor was hired to lay out the road network for the township in 1841. By 1846 a road supervisor was appointed.

The first mill was erected in 1849 by Samuel Davis in the town of Massillon. It was first a steam mill which was used to saw logs. Later it was enlarged to grind corn and wheat, making it very convenient for the residents of the area.

In 1849, a U.S. Post Office was established in the house of John Shaffer. The mail came from Van Wert, Ohio, to Middletown, Indiana, west of Massillon.

The first general store was opened in 1851 in the village of Massillon.

In thirteen years a Justice of Peace indicated that only two offenders were brought before him for assault and battery and one was a resident of a neighboring township.

In this frontier society, house raisings were commonplace with neighbors from a radius of five or six miles coming together to help. They were organized into two groups under captains. In friendly competition they built the new home.

One pioneer reported "we were obliged to work hard but we enjoyed good health and were sociable brothers and sisters." (History of Allen County, Indiana).

Churches

In 1841, Reverend Jesse Sparks organized the Methodist Episcopal Church at the house of Charles Peckham. The twenty members continued to meet in Mr. Peckham's house until 1842 when, with the donation of a lot by John Edwards, a church was erected. The common hewed-log structure served as both a school house and church and was constructed by Jabez Shaffer, Charles Peckham, John Edwards and Adam Robinson. It was completed debt free.

A new frame structure was erected in 1856 at a cost of $800.00 to replace the log church.

The Massillon, Indiana Evangelical Lutheran Church was organized in 1850 with seven members who worshipped in the schoolhouse at first, later moving to the Methodist Church with the Methodists using it one hour and the Lutherans another A union Sunday school was organized with scholars from both churches attending (History of Allen County, Indiana).

Rev. Joseph Peckham

At the age of five years he removed from Bolton, where he was born, in Westminster, Mass., where he was trained for college, graduating from Amherst in 1837. The same year he entered Andover Seminary, and after remaining there a year he became Preceptor of Atkinson Academy and, in 1839 entered Union Theological Seminary in New York, graduating in 1842, when he was ordained as an Evangelist at Kingston, Mass. In 1843 he was called to the pastorate of the church there. After thirteen years of service he was temporarily laid aside from his ministerial labors on account of a severe bronchial infection, after which he spent some time at Cannon Falls, Minn. During his residence there he was called to fill many important public positions, and was elected to the House of Representatives of the State Legislature. He was a member of the Committee on Education and introduced the bill for the establishment of the three Normal Schools of the State.

In 1859 he returned to Kingston, Mass., and continued his pastoral work, which was continued without interruption until 1876, when ill health again compelled him to relinquish his hospitable home, regularly supplying his pulpit for four years and coming more and more to appreciate the great privilege of the companionship of one so large in gifts and withal so modest and unassuming. Mr. Peckham was a man of rare attainments and a ripe scholar and would fill almost any chair of education with high honor. He had a great fondness for journalism, and his frequent contributions to the press were of marked excellence. Always a student, study never became to him a wearisome undertaking. Fifteen hundred carefully written sermons, besides funeral discourses, occasional addresses and lectures are among the results of his patient toil as a sermonizer. It was observed that when Mr. Peckham preached at Marshfield, Daniel Webster was always among his hearers and attended church at Kingston during his ministry; he manifested a very high moral heroism, seldom equaled and never excelled. At the time of his death he was the superintendent of Public Schools, a position which he filled with great acceptance for many years and the whole community mourned his loss. He died very suddenly at home. More that to any man the writer has ever known could be applied the sweetest of the Beatitudes— "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." He is of the Petersham (Mass.) branch of the Peckhams, and is descended, on his father's side, from John Peckham and Mary Clark, who settled in Newport, R. I., in 1638, through their son, Thomas, and grandson, Philip, who was married to Jane Blackwell. Their son, John, was married, in Bristol, R. I., April 22, 1742, to Tabitha (Howland) Cary, daughter of Samuel Howland and widow of Nathaniel Cary. She was a great-granddaughter of John Howland of the Mayflower. They settled in Petersham, Mass. William was married to Elizabeth Knapp, whose son, Samuel Howland, was the father of the subject of this sketch. On his mother's side, he was descended from Maj. Jonathan Clapp, whose daughter was married to Lieut. Asahel Clark, great-grandfather of William Clark Peckham. Lieut. Clark served through the war of the revolution, having enlisted three times and rose from the ranks to a second lieutenancy in Capt. Avard's company in the 2nd Hampshire county regiment. Lieut. Clark was descended from Lieut. William Clark, who was born in Plymouth, England, in 1609, and came to Dorchester, Mass., in 1638. Samuel Howland Peckham (b. in Petersham, Mass., Sept. 19, 1793; d. in Westminster, Mass., Jan. 23, 1864) was a prominent Congregational clergyman and early abolitionist in Massachusetts. His wife, Sarah (b. July 12, 1826; d. Dec. 5, 1858), was the daughter of Eliezer and Sarah Clark, of East Hampton, Mass. William Clark Peckham received his preparatory education at the Lawrence Academy, Groton, Mass., in 1860-63. During this period, in 1861-62, he served as a private in the 23d regiment, Massachusetts volunteers, at Roanoke Island and Newbern, N. C. Entering Amherst College, he was graduated A.B. in 1867, and A.M. in 1870. In 1871-72 he took special studies at the Union Theological Seminary, in New York City. After his collegiate course he taught, 1867-68, as principal of Leicester Academy, Massachusetts, and, 1868-70, of Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass. During 1870-71 he traveled around the world. On his return he commenced educational work in Brooklyn, N. Y., in Lockwood's Academy, where he remained until 1875, when he received an appointment in the Adelphi Academy, now Adelphi College, where he is still professor of physics. Prof. Peckham is prominent in Brooklyn educational circles, a beloved and inspiring teacher and very successful in presenting scientific subjects in a popular manner. He has been for many years a contributor to papers and periodicals, among others the 'American Electrical World,' the 'Electrical Engineer' and 'Century Magazine.' He has been connected with the 'Scientific American' since 1897. He is a fellow of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, and president of its department of photography. He is also an associate member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. Prof. Peckham is one of the most successful investigators of the X-ray phenomena in the United States, and is considered an authority on the subject of liquid air, both as an investigator and lecturer. Prof. Peckham was married in Kingston, Mass., Jan. 1, 1868, to Katalena, daughter of John and Maria (Kellog) Whittler. They have one daughter, Clare Isabel Peckham Pashley."

Nelson A. Peckham

Our paternal grandfather, Nelson A. Peckham, was one of the first to homestead in Ness County, Kansas, at least by the year 1872, where he was a cattleman. By 1878, he had removed to Raton, New Mexico, and then, again, when "NO MAN'S LAND" was opened to settlers, he removed to Beaver City, where he kept a horse and mule barn with livery. I have stood a team in such a place for 15¢ per day, or 75¢ per week. Another pioneer business which was operated by our kinsmen included the general merchandise store. In that store you bought anything you needed—nails, flour, pins, potatoes—in fact if your mamma sent you to the store, it might have been for a gallon of coal-oil for the kerosene stove, which the merchant would fill, putting a raw potato, or a gum-drop on the spout, to keep it from splashing out on your rough and tumble way home. Later, the gasoline pump was added, and you drove up, and filled your "gas buggy" from a visible tank that was pumped full while you watched, and then run down by gravity into your tank. Our folk at Beaver City operated such a store.

Every one of the thirteen children of the family of Nelson A. Peckham settled in Oklahoma, with the exception of Aunt Louella (Peckham) Mandeville, who died near Ness City, Kansas. Of these, three brothers and a sister in Beaver County, two brothers settled in Kingfisher County, and the others in Garfield County. Uncle Lowell Turner made the famous race for homes, in the Cherokee Strip, but did not homestead. A year later he bought a relinquishment. In other early day business beginnings of which we recall, Uncle George Fear pioneered in the steam-laundry business. The building was full of steam—no fan—hot place, but we liked it. Really wasn't as hot as it was outside.

Uncle Zack Johnson had an up and coming pioneer business known as the Z. K. Johnson, and Sons—Coal and Feed. Coal, in those days, was a leading fuel for heating. It was a good loafing place for me, and I'll always remember that great sign board that he had in front of the store, advertising Conkey Poultry Remedies, with a picture of a sick, featherless chicken on it, and the slogan: "Don't worry, Conkey will cure you!!"

Uncle Pete Drummond was a newspaper man, and published a Pioneer newspaper in Enid. In 1898 he purchased two Enid newspapers, combining them into one, and published the Enid (Weekly) Sun. In 1899 he purchased The Eagle, which he combined, and published the Sun Eagle, which newspaper became The Enid Eagle, and eventually The Enid Daily Eagle, an evening paper with a Sunday Morning edition, about the year 1908. Uncle Pete published this newspaper until 1912 when he sold it to Edmund Frantz and William (Bill) Taylor.

We should not weary in learning about our ancestors who have traveled the paths of pioneers, faced with savages, cleared the forests, broken up the sod, and formed these fine productive fields. Their life was one of hard and long hours, a life of inconvenience. Yes, a life of heavy burdens, so that we might have this life of luxury and happiness.

This is our heritage. That we live in a free country where we can worship in the church of our choice, own our own homes, and our business. We have the privilege vested in us to vote at free elections to vote for whom-so-ever we wish to run our government, and to represent us, and, if this business is not to our liking, or our way of thinking, we have the privilege to speak up in protest, without fear of the firing squad.

We are proud of our heritage, and of our ancestry, and we must keep our records true, for our children, and our descendants.

Our grandparents of one-hundred years ago, who were the pioneers of our western part of the country, had the satisfaction of seeing this land of ours, transformed from a wild Indian hunting ground to a land of civilization. Our parents witnessed still more change, and we—have seen the passing of the dug-outs—log cabins—and "soddies" with their home-made household furniture, tallow candles, spinning wheels, etc., to the modem home of expensive furnishings.

Robert Frances Peckham
By Dave Peckham

I have studied one Robert Frances Peckham, 1827 (RI)–1896. The Bancroft Library at UC-Berkeley has a great story about this man. At 18, he signed on a whaling ship, and a little more than a year later (August 1846) he deserted at San Francisco. He hooked up with the Mormons who had just arrived from New York, joined the Gold Rush but it didn't suit him, and then became a lawyer around statehood. He acquired a lot of land representing the Mexican land claims, notably at Watsonville. Then in 1860 he returned to Rhode Island and convinced four brothers to join him in California. They crossed the Isthmus of Panama and settled at Watsonville. George Stillman Peckham is of this branch. Without my notes in front of me I will guess that he is a nephew of Robert. Several sisters later came to Watsonville, and one of them married a Martinelli, the apple juice makers. RFP's grandson of the same name was also a judge, for whom the Federal Building in San Jose is named.

John Southwick$^7$ Peckham

John moved from Troy to Utica, where he established a stove manufacturing business with his brother, Merritt, under the firm name of J. S. and M. Peckham. This firm was one of the oldest in the city of Utica. N. Y., having occupied the premises, 22-24 Catherine Street, for nearly sixty years. They manufactured stoves, ranges, dairy and agricultural supplies. The firm was founded by John S. and Merritt Peckham on September 1, 1835. John S. was remarkable for his vivacity and genial disposition, and was very sociable in his business as well as in his private life. Merritt Peckham was not so well known in the stove trade as John S. as he attended exclusively to the foundry and manufacturing details. In 1893, the firm name was changed to J. S. and M. Peckham Company.

The old firm established a large foundry on Catherine Street. It had but little capital and the new city was not then very friendly to manufacturing enterprises. Its stove foundry was the first built between Albany and Buffalo, but the industry was small, as most persons used fireplaces. The firm made plows up to 1853. In 1855 it established the foundry at the corner of Broad and Third Streets; the firm making stoves in a small way to supply the retail trade of the city and county. During the first year the firm sold two hundred and twenty-five stoves and three hundred plows. Their first parlor wood-heater was made in 1839. In 1850 the sale of stoves amounted to four thousand, while in 1885 upward of eleven thousand stoves were manufactured and sold, and in addition two thousand were bought outside and sold. They also did a large manufacturing trade in cultivators and cultivator teeth, and dealt extensively in mica.

The business grew with the years until they employed over one hundred men, and made stoves for the wholesale trade throughout the Western States. The house was the oldest in this line in Central New York, if not in the whole State, and finally built up an immense trade.

Edward Lewis$^{7}$ Peckham (Thomas$^{6}$, Thomas$^{5}$, Peleg$^{4}$, Joseph$^{3}$, John$^{2}$, John$^{1}$) was born on June 4, 1812, in Providence, Providence County, Rhode Island and died on October 30, 1889, in Providence, Providence County, Rhode Island. He was buried in the Swan Point Cemetery. He was an artist.

He remained single throughout his life.

Edward Lewis$^{7}$ Peckham

Edward Lewis Peckham was born 1812, June 4, and died unmarried 1889, Oct. 30. He was fitted for college, but did not enter upon the course. He was a born artist and, notwithstanding the sincere and determined opposition of his father, without encouragement or instruction, he acquired great skill in pencil and water color drawing. In manner of execution he resembled George Crookshank, and if his early life had been spent under more encouraging conditions, with better instruction, he would have, no doubt, taken very high rank among American caricaturists.

In early life he acquired a knowledge of the Spanish language, and spent some years in Florida, Cuba and Charleston S. C. Returning North, he spent several years in his uncle's store at Albany, N, Y., and later was employed in the Merchants' Bank at Providence, R. I. But he did not take kindly to mercantile pursuits, regarding them rather as a necessity than an occupation.

His soul was in art, and as early as1831, he made drawings in pencil of Roger Williams' Rock and other historical scenes in and around the Providence of that date. They are like photographs, so true to the originals are they. These he enlarged and drew in India ink and colors about 1860.

His perception of the ludicrous was so keen that he caught at a glance the ludicrous aspects of every situation, and with pen or pencil transferred them with unerring accuracy to paper. This was to be particularly remarked of the Dorr war, in which he took part, many aspects of which were very amusing. With characteristic Peckham reticence, most of this work was done anonymously; he often nailed his drawing in some public place and then watched the appreciation of the crowd, which they enjoyed immensely.

About 1830 or 1835 he commenced the study of botany with that group of Rhode Island botanists—Stephen T. Olney, George Hunt, and George Thurber. With them, and alone, he traversed the picturesque hills that surround Providence, from Cumberland on the north to Worden's Pond on the south; with the islands and shores of Narragansett Bay. The flora of the hills of Cumberland partaking of the characteristics of that of northern New England, while that of the slopes of the Narragansett County more nearly resemble that of New Jersey and Pennsylvania. A more varied flora in the same area cannot be found elsewhere in the country. Into this these voting men plunged. His companions all became noted botanists, and gathered large herbaria of dried plants. He, knowing less of botany, painted in water colors, during a period of forty years, five hundred New England plants; which drawings Professor Asa Gray declared were the most perfect representations of New England plants that he had ever seen. They are like colored photographs; in many instances of the entire plant-root, stem, leaf and flower.

These long walks developed in the solitary man a sympathetic communion with, and love of nature, that is, perhaps, best expressed in an acrostic which he wrote on his own name, and which: he used as a dedication to one of the volumes into which his flower drawings are bound.

"Enamored of the moods and fields,
Deep bogs and shady bowers,
Where Nature prodigally yields
A varied store of flowers,
Roam I about, from fancy free,
Delighted with the charms I see.

"Low down the vale, high o'er the hill,
Every nook where a foot hath strayed;
Winding along some babbling rill,
In sunshine now—and now in shade;
Seeking beside its waters pure,

"Perchance, some lily to secure.
'E'en so I've wandered many a mile,
Collecting plants of every hue;
Keeping my thoughts estranged from guile,
Holding them' bound to Nature true.
Memorials of most pleasant hours."

Samuel Wardwell$^{7}$ Peckham (Thomas$^{6}$, Thomas$^{5}$, Peleg$^{4}$, Joseph$^{3}$, John$^{2}$, John$^{1}$) was born on July 5, 1814, in Providence, Providence County, Rhode Island and died on June 29, 1895. Samuel was listed in the Biography and Genealogy Master Index.

He married Margaret Lyman Dunnell on May 14, 1847. She was born on February 2, 1814, and died on August 13, 1849. She was the daughter of Jacob and Mary Wanton (Lyman) Dunnell. They had no children.

Samuel Wardwell$^{7}$ Peckham

Samuel Wardwell Peckham was a graduate of Brown University, Class of 1832, M. A., and was an eminent lawyer in Providence, as well as an esteemed citizen, as the following obituary notice testifies:
"In the death of Samuel Wardwell Peckham the community loses a man of sterling worth; and without the defects of the Puritan character, he illustrated its best qualities when combined with scholarship. He entered Brown University at the age of fourteen; as was not unusual at that time; and was graduated in 1832 with the degree of A. M. Of the twenty-three members of his class, he was the survivor. He taught school a short time after graduation, and then studied law in the office of Richard W. Green, afterwards Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Rhode Island. He was a justice of the Police Court from 1846 to 1855, and again from 1857 to 1867. During the summer of 1857 he was Clerk of the Municipal Court. His studious habits led him away from the active pursuit of his profession as an Advocate before the Courts. For many years, however, he acted as Master in Chancery. An examination of the records of the Supreme Court shows that, during a period of more than thirty years, many important cases were thus referred to him in the settlement of disputed questions equity.

"Although frequently urged by his friends, prominent members of the Bar, to allow his name to be presented as a candidate for election to bench of the Supreme Court, he refused his consent; nor would he consent to accept nomination as Mayor. The death of his wife, Margaret Dunnell, daughter of Jacob and Mary Wanton (Lyman) Dunnell, only three years after their marriage, made a lasting impression upon his character. She died of varioloid carried from a client who visited him in his office. His devotion to her memory through the forty-six years which elapsed since her death, is known only to those nearest to him, but it is made manifest to all by his gift to the Rhode Island Hospital of $4,000, to establish a free bed in her name.

"His hatred of slavery led him to join the Republican Party when it was formed. With no taste for political life, he was prevailed upon by his friends to accept the nomination for Alderman, and was elected on two occasions. His love of honest management of funds held in trust by the City for the benefit of the poor, led him to take a stand against the custom of banquets for the members of the Board of Aldermen and their friends, at the quarterly meetings held at the Dexter Asylum. Through his vigorous opposition he finally succeeded in securing the abolition of these banquets.

"His love of literature led him to take an early interest in the Providence Atheneum, and he was through life its earnest supporter and friend. He held the office of Librarian, Secretary, member of the Board of Directors and President. He served as a member of this Board of Directors forty-one years, and was the last survivor of the first Board of Directors, elected in 1836. He held the office of President up to the date of his death. He was the author of several of the Annual Reports-that for 1886 being especially noteworthy, as it contains a historical account of the Atheneum, written at the semi-centennial by one who took part in its organization fifty years earlier.

"Through life he wrote fugitive pieces for his friends and relatives; many of which are especially dear to them through the associations connected therewith. He was particularly happy in translating some of the most beautiful poems of French and German authors. It was one of the pleasures of his later years to gather these poems and translations and print them for private distribution. He was a great lover of music in its highest forms, and through life subscribed to the various organizations and musical societies, the object of which was the rendition of operas, oratorios and symphonies. His aim was to promote in this community a knowledge and appreciation of the highest form of musical art of this century.

"Unlike many college graduates, he used his college training as the basis for life long scholarship. Immediately after graduation he read the whole range of Greek and Latin classics, and became familiar with French and German. So profound was his love of learning that in order to better understand the 'higher criticism' he took up the study of Hebrew after he was sixty years old, learning to read the Old Testament in the original. The extent and field of his reading and literary associations were known only to those who knew his inner life: To others he appeared a quiet gentleman of unostentatious taste. He set himself high ideals and remained true to them through life; but to his friends had he been a little less retiring and reclusive he would have been better appreciated, and the community would have exacted and received more at his hands. By his death the community loses a strong character, a man like whom would there were more. By his death the Class of 1832 loses its last survivor, the Bar its oldest member and the Providence Atheneum the last survivor of its first Board of Directors."

Samuel Wardwell Peckham was commissioned as Second Lieutenant of Company B. Marine Artillery, Second Brigade, Rhode Island Militia, September 4, 1844, by Governor James Fenner.

Charles$^7$ Peckham

Charles Peckham was a farmer, and located, like his early Peckham ancestors, on a hill which overlooked the city of Providence and Narragansett Bay. On the slopes of this hill he spent his entire life with his animals and crops, making two blades of grass grow in place of one from sheer love of nature, and happy in the beautiful landscape over which he wandered when not otherwise occupied. His farm is now divided by the city line, and lies at the corner of Smith Street and all born here.

Francis Baring$^7$ Peckham, Sr.

Francis Peckham was born at Middletown, R. I., in a house which fronted the beach and is now owned by Dr. William F. Charming of Newport. He was one of eleven children, and was named after Lord Ashburton, who, with his brother, Sir Charles Baring, spent some time in the family of Daniel Peckham in the early part of the Nineteenth century. The family moved to Newport, where Francis was, while quite young, apprenticed to learn the printer's trade. Long before he served out his time he was acknowledged as adept at the business, and was made agent for the publication of the Rhode Island Republican. Under his management, the Republican, which was then the champion of Democracy, brought out a long and very valuable series of historical papers, written by the late Hon. Henry Bull, entitled "Memoir of Rhode Island."

From a printer and publisher, Mr. Peckham became in time the proprietor of a hotel, the Bellevue House, which, under his management, enjoyed for a number of years a high reputation. He was brought up under the shadow of Jefferson and Jackson, and clung to the Democratic party until it was past hope of saving, when he joined the Freesoilers and, subsequently, the Republican party, to which he finally adhered, dying a confirmed Republican. He was the friend and supporter of Thomas Wilson Dorr.

They had the following child:

Franklin E. Peckham, Dr. was born in Providence, Providence County, Rhode Island. He was a physician in Providence, Rhode Island.

Brevet Major Peleg Edwin$^7$ Peckham

At the age of sixteen he learned the carpenter's trade, at which he worked during the summers, attending school in the winter months. In 1860, May 2, he married, in New York State, Martha E. Ennis, who was born in Charlestown, Rhode Island, in 1834, April 15, and died in Providence, Rhode Island, in 1892. November 8. They lived in Westerly, Rhode Island, until the outbreak of the Civil War. In 1862, August, Mr. Peckham enlisted as a private in Company A, 7th Rhode Island Volunteer Infantry, but was mustered as 4th Sergeant, September 4, commissioned 2nd Lieutenant of Company E, in 1863, January 7, and 1st Lieutenant of the same Company on March 1. He was Captain of Company B, in 1864, July 25, and Brevet Major of Volunteers on July 3. From January 1865, he served as acting Assistant Adjutant General on the Staff of his Brigade Commander, General John L Cumin, until he was mortally wounded early in the day on April 2, 1865 in front of Petersburg, Virginia.

The incidents attending the wounding of Major Peckham are thus related in a letter dated at Philadelphia, February 6, 1907, addressed by Dr. William R. D. Blackwood, who was at the time Surgeon-in-Chief of the ad Division of the 9th Army Corps, and who attended Major Peckham after he was wounded, to Dr. A. S. Burdick, at Orange, New Jersey, a cousin of Major Peckham.

"Major Peckham returned from leave of absence only the day before our attack on Fort Mahone or Hell. He had just been married,[3] so if the physician you spoke of (Dr. Frank E. Peckham, of Providence, Rhode Island) is his son, he must be a posthumous son, for the Major was too young to have been married previously. We attacked the Rebel works at daylight and carried them by assault, but after holding them for awhile, we had to turn back and then held the outer faces of the works, the rebels being just inside only a few feet from us. The fort which we took was defended by a redan behind it, which ran the entire length of the fort, so that we could not take it until this entire work had been taken, which did not happen until after the Major had been hit.

"He was struck by a rebel bullet, which entered at the inner side of his right cheek, just below the eye, and emerged just behind the right ear, passing through the base of the brain, just missing the basal artery, which was a miracle and which just saved him from instant death. He was unconscious when I took him off the field, and only regained semi-consciousness for a few moments, just enough to know me (we were close friends), and while thus he asked me to write to his wife, telling me they had only been married a short while during his leave of absence, which was for two weeks. He relapsed into unconsciousness and lived for about three hours and then died in my tent, a small one in the garden of the house used as headquarters of our brigade. The next day the body was sent home on a transport.

"Major Peckham, Captain Manchester and myself were the closest friends on the staff and were much thought of by General Curtin. My tent was located just beside the Jerusalem Road, a short distance from Fort Hell (Fort Sedgwick). The tent was protected a little by a slight parapet of earth and logs, but on the last day, it was torn to pieces by the terrific charge of shell, shot and rifle balls. We had an observation tower in the yard which drew the fire of the enemy at all times, so that it was a hot place to live in, yet we made merry and enjoyed life, thinking we would all somehow get home unharmed. I was hit four times-three times during the siege and once in East Tennessee. The third time was at the battle of the 'Crater,' the mine of which I had engineered. Peckham was a great favorite with all the staff and we rode together during all scraps or attack of any kind. I had hardly got through fixing the remains when I was told that Col. Gowen, commanding my Regiment, was shot. When I took him off the field he was dead; a shell hit him exactly as the ball had hit Peckham, but, of course, tore his face away completely. It was the last shell fired from Ft. Mahone. It killed Col. Gowen and the color-bearer. I have a piece of that flag in a frame over my desk where I am writing, and it is a memento of much value and interest to all my old friends of the Regiment."

The following is quoted from the history of the 7th Regiment:

"The Brigade Staff were lying in the rebel trenches in front of Ft. Hell. There was considerable firing, but a somewhat heavier fulisade caused them to rise, when a bullet struck him. (Major Peckham) He was taken to the Cheeve House, which General Curtin occupied as headquarters, although most of the staff, including Major Peckham, had tented to the yard. He received the unremitting attention of Dr. W. R. D. Blackwood of the 48th Pennsylvania, with but little avail. His remains were brought to his native State and interred in River Bend Cemetery, at Westerly, where a handsome monument has been erected to his memory."

Professor George Williams Peckham and Elizabeth Gifford Peckham

Professor George Williams$^7$ Peckham was born at Albany, N. Y., in 1845 March 23, and is now, 1911, the Librarian of the Public Library of Milwaukee, Wis. He married 1880, Sept. 16, at Hartland, Wis., Elizabeth Maria Gifford, who was born at Milwaukee 1845, Dec. 19, daughter of Charles and Mary Caroline Gifford. She took the degree of A. B. from Vassar College in 1876 and that of A. M. in 1889, and has become eminent as an entomologist, especially in researches upon the insects of the Hymenoptera, Archeology, etc., in association with her husband. In a letter to one of the compilers she writes: "We were very much interested in all that you wrote about the Peckhams. I think my husband is a real chip off the old block, and I can not wish anything better for my sons than they should keep the family record true."

Professor Peckham was educated at Antioch College, Ohio, and the Albany Law School, and Michigan University. He graduated from the latter institution of learning in 1873, with the degree of M.D., and was given that of LL.D. by the University of Wisconsin in 1895. He began teaching biology in the Milwaukee High School in 1874; was then made Principle of the East Side High School; later, superintendent of the Milwaukee High Schools; and, still later, accepted the position which he still holds as Librarian of the Public Library.

During the Civil War he enlisted in the 1st Wisconsin Heavy Artillery, and at the close of the war was First Lieutenant of Artillery. He has been President of the Wisconsin Academy of Science, Arts and Letters, and of the Wisconsin Natural History Society; his name being starred in "America Men of Science" as one of the one-thousand students of the Natural and Exact Sciences whose work is supposed to be the most important. He is a very eminent biologist, having a European reputation, especially in relation to "instinct, color problems, growth of children, classification of spiders, etc."

Professor Peckham and his wife have studied together the natural history of spiders in particular, with other entomological subjects. They have published papers, both in America and Europe, until they are perhaps equally noted as entomologists, or students of insect life. Among the papers which they have published, which have received favorable reviewing in Europe, may be mentioned: "Mental Powers of Spiders," 1887; "Sexual Selection with Spiders," 1899; numerous studies, fifty or more on Archeology, 1880 to 1902; "Instincts and Habits of the Solitary Wasps," 1898; also many short papers in the literature of learned societies. They have won world-wide reputations as students of the habits of insects, particularly of spiders. As an authority on the habits of these insects he is probably without rival.

Addendum by Benjamin$^9$ M. Peckham M.D., Ph.D.

On January 10, 1990, I had the good fortune to receive enquiry from Ms. Joan P. Jesse, Assistant Curator, Invertebrate Zoology, of the Milwaukee Public Museum. She wished to locate copies of the scientific correspondence or notes of Dr. George$^7$ and Elizabeth Peckham relating to their life long work with spiders that might still be in the possession of their descendants. I was forced to respond that apparently, after the death of her husband, Elizabeth Peckham did not retain any of this material for none of it was found among her possessions when she died in 1940.

In the conversations and correspondence that followed, I have had the opportunity to learn some of the intimate details of my grandparents' lives and hear what significance today scientists (1990) accords their work, three generations and 75 years later.

George Peckham and Elizabeth Gifford were the same age when they met and she became his research assistant helping with his studies and teaching in the first laboratory biology class offered in the Milwaukee Public High Schools. Ms. Jass, in a paper in 1979 (Jass, J. P., The Peckham Spider Collection) describes them as "equal partners" by the time they published their first scientific paper on jumping spiders in 1883, three years after their marriage. Jumping spiders are of special interest (as opposed to orb weavers) for they are known for the remarkable visual acuity of their eight eyes and their ferocious, and perhaps planned, style of attack.

In assessing their work in 1979 she notes "that 378 of the approximately 3000 jumping spider species listed have the Peckhams as the original describers." and "Among 11 titles on a current list, Key Works in Spider Systematics—New World, three are by the Peckhams. As a further testimony to their prominence, fellow taxonomists named after the Peckhams, the genus Peckhamia, as well as some 17 jumping spider species in other genera. In fact, a recent newsletter printing information of interest to researchers working with jumping spiders (who form the Peckham Society) was also named Peckhamia in their honor."

The Peckhams donated several thousand spider specimens and hundreds of books and papers to the Milwaukee Public Museum; to Harvard University, they donated the type specimens of the jumping spiders they described.

In a letter written in 1981 to Dr. Richard Burkhardt, then Chairman of the Department of History at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana, Ms. Jass wrote: "Far from being no longer appreciated, their pioneering role is much acknowledged by present day arachnologists, even though much of their work is now superseded by more recent research.

Wheeler Hazard Peckham

He received his education at Union College and in the Albany Law School. In 1854 he was admitted to the Bar of his native State. Having been in delicate health since childhood he soon afterwards went West in search of a more favorable climate, and for some years practiced law in St. Paul, Minn. On his return East, in 1864, he settled in New York City, where he was active in his profession until his death. He first entered the firm of Miller, Stoughtenburg and Peckham. Later, it became Peckham, Miller and King, which name it retained. He began early to take an active interest in politics, but that interest was not of the kind that leads to office seeking. Two or three times he held office for brief periods, but each time the office sought him. He was a member of that brilliant group that grew up around the predominating figure of Tilden, and it was as one of the most tearless and most efficient assistants of Tilden and Charles O'Connor, in their campaign against the Tweed Ring, that he first came conspicuously before the public. Not only the civil suit, which brought about the recovery of the stolen millions, but also the criminal proceedings were practically conducted by him alone; and to enable him to do the work, he was appointed special Deputy Attorney General and special Deputy District Attorney. When Tammany tried to reform, he joined other young Democrats in a temporary allegiance to the Wigwam, and for some time he was counted a good friend of John Kelly, then a leader. When Kelly and Tammany broke away from the rest of the Democratic party in the nomination of Governor Robinson, Mr. Peckham left that faction for good.

A few years later he was appointed District Attorney of New York County by Grover Cleveland, who was then Governor. He held that office but a short time. Failing health was given as the reason for his resignation. Those who knew him best stated that the importunities of office hunters had more to do with it than anything else.

In 1888 Mr. Peckham supported Warner Miller for Governor, doing his best to defeat David B. Hill. This attitude cost him a seat on the bench of the United State Supreme Court six years later. Two years later he was one of the moving spirits of the Peoples' Municipal League of New York, a body long ago forgotten. In all the years that preceded, he was closely connected with the County democracy, helping to achieve many of its brightest victories; but it is doubtful if he ever did a greater service to his native State than in 1893, when he was at the head of a movement which resulted in the defeat of Tammany's attempt to place judge Maynard in the Court of Appeals.

On the evening of October 26, 1893, when Cooper Union was filled with an audience, the equal of which has seldom been seen within its doors, the Bar Association having called a meeting to protest against Maynard, they made Mr. Peckham their principal speaker. Always an orator of remarkable power, he rose on that occasion to the highest point of eloquence, and the enthusiasm of the audience was boundless.

The dramatic moment of Mr. Peckham's life came four months later. Justice Blatchford of the Supreme Court had died and President Cleveland was to appoint a successor. David B. Hill and Edward Murphy, Jr., were the New York Senators, with whom the Chief Executive was not on speaking terms. Mr.

Cleveland first sent the name of William B. Hornblower of New York to the Senate. Hill and Murphy opposed his confirmation, and his name was rejected. A week later Mr. Cleveland made a second attempt, to fill the vacancy, by sending the name of Wheeler Hazard Peckham to the Senate. Hill and Murphy again managed to defeat the nomination of the President. At that time the New York Times said of Mr. Peckham that he had five qualities that fitted him for the office for which he was nominated-ability, experience, reputation, integrity and courage. When the office passed beyond his reach, there was no mistake about his satisfaction when finally the place fell to his own brother, Justice Rufus Wheeler Peckham, Jr., then an Associate Justice of the Court of Appeals of New York.

In that same year Mr. Peckham threw himself, with his wonted energy, into the movement which resulted in the election of Mayor Strong. Again and again since then he has been found among the champions of clean government.

While never placed before the public conspicuously, his practice being entirely civil, Mr. Peckham had a reputation of being one of the most learned members of the New York Bar. In his intercourse with his fellow-men his position may perhaps be best stated by quoting a Minute spread on the records of the City Club of New York in memory of Wheeler H. Peckham.

"Wheeler H. Peckham, President of the City Club of New York for five years ending in December, 1904, died on the 27th day of September, 1905. It was due to the sense of growing physical weakness and to the presentment that the end was not far distant, that he laid aside the leadership of this Club. It was done tenderly and reluctantly, for he knew in this office he was performing his last labors for the great City he loved so well. Mr. Peckham would not have understood what it is to try to make friends. His was a rugged, perhaps to some an impenetrable demeanor, but in reality this served to shield the most sensitive, delicate nature, and scarcely concealed the kindest of hearts, and so his death touches every member of this Club to a man, with a bitter personal bereavement. But it is in a deeper sense that his loss is greatest to this Club. It was the very embodiment of his spirit. He would not have known how to have shaped his course in municipal affairs in violation of the principles which this Club was founded to maintain. Whenever he rose to speak in the councils of the Club, every auditor knew what position he would take and where he would be found. He never said a word he did not believe. He never believed a thing that was not right, and if any good cause was to be subserved he never failed to say what he believed, irresistibly and with splendid courage. He always reached toward honesty; telling the truth he never, in any degree, deviated for one moment or for one inch. Such he was to the City Club. He was all this and more to the City at large. He loved New York; New York loved him. He was not given to eulogy; he would not have enjoyed being eulogized. While it is only plain truth to say his life history is the history of reform politics in New York City, no man within it ever enjoyed a greater share of absolutely unqualified respect for his service as a plain citizen than did Wheeler Hazard Peckham" (Obituary Notice).

From: The National Cyclopedia of American Biography

PECKHAM, Wheeler Hazard, lawyer, was born in Albany, N. Y., Jan. 1, 1833, son of Rufus Wheeler and Isabella A. (Lacey) Peckham. He received his early education at the Albany Academy, and afterwards went to Union College, Schenectady, but left before graduation on account of poor health. He then took up the study of law, and was admitted to the bar in 1856. For two years he practiced in that city with his father and Lyman Tremain. His health not improving, he spent a year in Europe and on returning to the United States went to St. Paul, where he resided until the latter part of 1862. In February 1864, he settled in New York City. He became particularly noted for his knowledge on important points of municipal and constitutional law; had an extensive practice in the U. S. Supreme Court, and achieved a special reputation through his argument on the constitutionality of the practice of taxing greenbacks. In that argument Mr. Peckham was opposed by Charles O'Conor, of New York City, who stated that Mr. Peckham's effort was as able as any he had ever heard. During the excitement following the exposure of the Tweed "ring" in New York, the attorney general of the state appointed Charles O'Conor special deputy attorney general, with power to prosecute the men guilty or suspected of the "ring" frauds. Mr. O'Conor immediately requested Mr. Peckham to act with him in the performance of this duty, and for several years the latter gave up almost his whole time to this business. His ability as a lawyer and his force in argument were important factors in the grand result of the exposure, prosecution and flight or imprisonment of the chief criminals. Mr. Peckham was counsel in important litigation against the state of Louisiana by holders of the state bonds, the case, however, being decided adversely to them by the U.S. Supreme Court. Besides this, he was permanently employed as counsel by the Union Trust Co., New York. In1884 he was appointed district attorney for the county of New York, but resigned after holding the office a few weeks. Mr. Peckham resumed his position as a member of the firm of Miller, Peckham & Dixon, in New York, of which he became a member in 1864. He died in New York, Sept. 27, 1905.

Rufus Wheeler[7] Peckham, Jr. (Rufus Wheeler[6], Peleg[5], Benjamin[4], Benjamin[3], John[2], John[1]) was born on November 8, 1838, in Albany, Albany County, New York, and died on October 25, 1909, in Altamont, Albany County, New York. Rufus was listed in the Biography and Genealogy Master Index. He was buried in Albany Rural Cemetery, Menards, New York.

He married Harriet Maria Arnold on November 14, 1866, in New York City, New York. She was born on December 6, 1839, in New York City, New York. She was the daughter of Daniel H. and Harriet Maria (Wells) Arnold of New York.

They had the following children:

* Henry Arnold Peckham was born on August 6, 1868, in Albany, Albany County, New York and died on February 16, 1907, in Hollywood, Los Angeles County, California.

Rufus Wheeler Peckham, Jr. was born on January 28, 1870, in Albany, Albany County, New York and died on September 16, 1899, in Alamont Lake, New York. He married Harriet Weld Corning on October 28, 1896, in Albany, Albany County, New York. They had no children. She was the daughter of Erastus and Mary (Parker) Corning.

Rufus Wheeler[7] Peckham, Jr.

He attended school at Albany, N. Y., and later at Philadelphia, Pa. In 1856 he went to Europe for a year, and on returning studied law in the offices of his father and Lyman Tremain in Albany. He was admitted to the Bar in 1859. On January 1, 1860, he formed a partnership with his father's partner, Lyman Tremain, which continued until the death of the latter in 1878. He was elected District Attorney of Albany County in November 1868, and served three years, during which time the famous express robbery occurred on the railroad bridge at Albany, when the express messenger, Halpiu, was left for dead in the car. This noted trial was conducted by District Attorney Peckham with great zeal and ability, and resulted in conviction. He was one of the counsels for the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad Company vs. the Erie Railroad Compaq- then controlled by Jay Gould and James Fiske, Jr. He also represented the Attorney General in many capital trials, generally with success. He was one of the representatives of the First Congressional District in the Democratic National Convention held at St. Louis in 1876, and was an active supporter of Mr. Tildes. He was also a representative in the Cincinnati Convention of 1880, when Major General Hancock was nominated. In April, 1881, he was appointed Corporation Counsel of the city of Albany. From 1883 until 1886 he was one of the, Justices of the Supreme Court of New York. In the latter year he was elected an Associate Justice of the Court of Appeals.

On December 3, 1895, he was nominated by President Cleveland to be Associate justice of the United States Supreme Court. His nomination was very satisfactory to Congress and to the country, and he was immediately confirmed by the Senate. He had personally appeared before the Court on several occasions before his elevation to the Bench, and although then a comparatively young man he was still remembered for his thorough and efficient manner of presenting his cases.

Colonel W. G. Rice, of Albany, United States Civil Service Commissioner under the last Cleveland administration, has said: "It may interest some of my fellow-Democrats to know that so distinguished a member of the party as Justice Rufus William Peckham of the United States Supreme Court was offered, so far as anyone but the Convention could do so, the nomination for Governor. At Mr. Hill's request I went to see justice Peckham in the middle of August at Saranac Lake, where he was spending the Summer, and informed him that while it was not in the power of anyone to tender the nomination, it was Mr. Hill's desire that justice Peckham should allow his name to come before the Convention; that Mr. Hill and others believed there was a probability of the election of the Democratic ticket; that judge Green was to be renominated: that all other names on the ticket would be men of high character and ability, and that if elected Governor he (Justice Peckham) would inevitably be the most popular Democratic candidate for the Presidency in 1904, for he would have, so far as Mr. Hill could promise it, the ardent support of the State of New York in the National Convention."

"Justice Peckham replied that even the certainty, of election as Governor, and after that the certainty of the nomination for President, would not swerve him from his determination not to be a candidate for political office. Personal reasons compelled him to this decision." Justice Peckham gave permission to make the entire incident public.

As Justice of the Supreme Court, probably the first case to attract general public attention on which he wrote the decision, was the one which he submitted on federal Inheritance, or Succession Taxes. It was he who handed down the opinion that a railroad cannot be both carrier and dealer; that is, cannot buy products for the purpose of transportation. But the most famous of his decisions was that in which he held that Congress has the power to acquire territory by cession, stipulated in the Treaty of Cession for control over the territories, irrespective of the general provision of the Constitution effecting the power of the federal Government over the States. In other words, he held that the Constitution does not necessarily follow the flag. It was further said that if his fellow Justices on the Supreme Court Bench were polled, Justice Peckham would be their choice for the Presidency. Indeed, it is a matter of report that one of the most prominent Republican members of the Court advised a number of influential Democrats in 1904 to do all they could to bring about his nomination, instead of Judge Parker's. It was pointed out to them that while Justice Peckham was singularly blessed with a judicial temperament, he also took a very lively interest in politics, and had a wonderful grasp of current events. He was regarded as the most out-spoken man on the Bench of the United States Supreme Court, and there were few questions of importance before the public on which he had not decided views, which he expressed to his intimates with the greatest freedom and positiveness. He despised sham and hypocrisy, and condemned that reserve which is inspired by suspicion and cunning. Above all things, he despised the ordinary, slick politician.

At least five of Justice Peckham's decisions have attracted National attention. It was he who handed down the opinion, during the War with Spain, that a stamp tax on any sale or agreement to sell, or of exchange by a Board of Trade, was not a direct tax within the meaning of the Constitution, which prohibits a direct tax unless apportioned among the States according to population.

In some remarks made by ex-United States Senator David B. Hill, soon after Judge Peckham's death, he said: "Judge Peckham was regarded as one of the ablast members of that very able Court. The friends of constitutional government have lost one of their ablest champions."

The degree of L.L.D. was conferred upon Judge Peckham in 1901 by Columbia University.

Prentice Lewis Peckham

In a letter to his cousin, Mrs. Harriet A. Staunton, Prentice Lewis Peckham says: "I was a lad of thirteen or fourteen years when grandfather [Benjamin Peckham] lived with us [his son Cyrus and wife, Polly Lewis] before our removal to Allegany County, N. Y. I know that his mother was a Hazard, and that she named uncle Stephen Hazard, or that he was named for some of her family." And again "My grandfather, Benjamin Peckham, was born in Rhode Island, was a soldier in the Revolution in Col. Ledyard's Artillery Company. He lived in North Groton, now Ledyard, Conn. He lived with my father, Cyrus, in Bozrah, Conn., not long before we removed to Allegany County, N. Y., which was in 1836, when I was nineteen years old. I remember him well, and have often heard both him and my father say that his mother was a Hazard, and through her the name of Stephen Hazard came into the family. My youngest brother, the only one of us born in New York State, bore that name. My father was proud of the name, and after Stephen fell at Fredericksburg, Va. [Petersburg], in the Civil War, he often referred to this progenitor, who was, he stated, a man of learning and of good repute in his native town of South Kingston. Grandfather had a brother, Thomas Hazard Peckham, who lived and died in North Stonington, Conn., and other relatives who lived in Newport." Again: " My father Cyrus learned the trade of shoemaking from his brother Benjamin, who was a good workman. Both had a strong leaning to manufacturing and had worked in mills at various places in Connecticut. Uncle Rev. Stephen Hazard and Benjamin were Superintendents at Mystic. Father said the Hazards once owned a Fulling Mill at South Kingston, which his father took him to see when he was a small lad."

Solomon Cotton Peckham

Captain Philip Peckham's eight children were all born in Lancaster. The oldest son Solomon Cotton Peckham (my grandfather) was born in 1914 with truly itching feet. He was a "chip off the old block." As a young man he immigrated to Linn County, Iowa Territory in the vicinity of Cedar Rapids. At the age of twenty-nine years he met and married wonderful little Harriet Brown, a slender, dark-eyed girl, five feet two inches tall, scarcely weighing one hundred pounds, but with an ability and stability not commonly found. After their first child Celina was born Solomon felt the urge to go to the then developing lead mines around Fairplay, Wisconsin. Here he hoped a fortune awaited him. What he found was that life was very primitive and hard and that the rewards for his labors were few indeed. While here a husky, auburn-haired son was born to them whom they christened Hamilton Nathan Peckham. Again Solomon felt the urge to be on the move. This time it was to join a group of people forming an ideal settlement in Fennimore, Wisconsin. The plan of this group was to select for settlers those who together could contribute all talents needed to form a self-sufficient community a "doctor, a lawyer, a merchant, and a chief." Solomon and Harriet joined them and built their own house by some help from the neighbors, for the heavier parts; they cleared a part of their land from timber to be used for cropping, ran the Post Office for the community and he made shoes for his family and all his needy neighbors.

In the year 1849 when they had been married just over six years Solomon was ready to sell out their homestead, equip a wagon and all the family to join the gold rush to California; It was then that little

Harriet bad a major decision to make. She made it. It was that so long as she lived she would never leave their Fennimore Homestead. And she never did. This left Solomon without cash for the journey but not without an increasing urge to go. He persuaded a neighbor to "grub stake" him (that is, not take the journey but put up the money and share the profits). He, jointly with three other neighbor men, bought a Conestoga Wagon, equipped it, hitched to it two yoke of oxen and headed west. He left behind him a little weeping wife, three small children to be cared for, a fourth to be born within a matter of months, a homestead to be run and a $1,000.00 indebtedness to be paid. How she could accomplish all this alone nobody could see. We only know she did it.

These four 49'ers crossed the Mississippi River at Prairie-du-Chien, went diagonally across Iowa Territory, passing through Fort Des Moines and left the territory by crossing the Missouri River at Council Bluffs. They decided against going to St. Louis, the most popular place for restocking wagons for that longer and more difficult end of the ,journey. Just then cholera was running rampant there. With this change of route they hoped to escape that deadly disease and did. They followed the Western trail in Nebraska along north of the Platte River to Scotts Bluff, then on to Laramie, Wyoming and bearing northward above the loop of the Sweet Water River they dipped into the southeast corner of the Territory of Idaho. Thus over mountains and across deserts, they slowly and painfully made their way across a part of northern Utah and Nevada and at long last found their way to Sutters Mill, California, having by this time suffered everything, they felt, but death itself. They panned for gold up the beautiful Feather River Canyon for over three years making the village of Sacramento their headquarters and shopping center, Solomon probably panned as much gold as the average prospector, but once again that hoped-for fortune eluded him. He once sent a gold nugget, shaped like a boot, home to his wife Harriet, which was valued at about $300.00. It was never sold but held as a family keepsake. Many years later their youngest son Guy lost it in Calhoun County, Iowa.

Solomon was growing increasingly homesick but he could not get his courage to again risk having to endure the sufferings of another overland trip of near two thousand miles He finally decided to return home by water. He went to San Francisco and set sail on one of the big old ocean-going cargo carrying "wind jammers," so called. They were the sailing vessels which then plied between the West Coast and New York City by going way to the south of South America around Cape Horn. It was a journey of many weeks and a large number of those who sailed died en route from dysentery caused from eating food not in the proper state of preservation. You must remember this is long before the time of refrigeration of foods. Solomon became seriously ill but recovered. He left for home, if not poorer, certainly not richer in gold than when he started some four years ago. One day after four long years, Harriet looked out her window and to her amazement saw her fierce bulldog escorting a man toward the house. She exclaimed, "That must be Solomon." She had trained the dog to allow no one to come to the house without first getting her consent. The dog had remembered Solomon and it was none other than her prospecting husband returning home Within the year Harriet gave birth to their fifth and youngest child. Guy Cotton Peckham.

Solomon was a, great hunter. When cold freezing weather was upon them and the real winter weather had settled in, Solomon loaded his gun, wrapped a skillet, a bag of corn meal and a side of bacon in a blanket, strapped them all on his back, and took to the woods to hunt their winter's meat. Bear, deer and wild turkey were the meats most preferred. When he made a killing, by means of a rope, he pulled the carcass up into a tree out of the reach of other wild creatures. When night came he rolled himself in the blanket and crawled into a snow bank facing toward his bonfire. When he felt he had enough meat to carry them through the winter he returned home for his yoke of oxen and bobsled to carry it all home. Then came the big task of dressing all the meat. Some of it was left out to freeze, some was seasoned and hung over the kitchen fireplace to dry, and some was put down in brine, By getting their meat for the taking they were then free to sell any hogs and cattle they had been able to raise. By this means a bit of cash came to hand

When the Civil War broke out in 1861, Solomon volunteered in the 12th Wisconsin regiment even though be was beyond the years when military service would be required of him. A member of that regiment had a pet bald-headed eagle which he brought with him and it at once became their mascot. They christened him "Old Abe." After but a short training period the 12th Wisconsin was sent to Kansas to help control the bloody uprisings over the problem of whether that state should come into the Union slave or free.

When reinforcements were needed during the siege of Vicksburg, Mississippi, the 12th Wisconsin was ordered on to that strategic spot. When the regiment was on the march, "old Abe" soared high above them silhouetted against the sky. When they were engaged in battle he also took to the sky but went screaming his defiance. He never deserted them.

During the serge of Vicksburg the soldiers lay in the swamps around the city. As a result, more of them died from dysentery than from the guns of battle. Solomon was one of those who died. On the monument erected on the Vicksburg battleground there appears carved in the marble "Corporal Solomon Cotton Peckham 1814-1863." Carved from the marble topping the monument is a replica of "Old Abe" sitting with folded wings When "Old Abe" died at ripe old age, a taxidermist dressed him, placed him under a glass dome and set it on a marble pedestal in the main rotunda of the capital building of the state of Wisconsin. Later this old capital building burned and the form of "Old Abe" was lost to the flames.

In 1850 Joseph, a farmer, is shown as head of the household consisting of his wife "Aradena," daughter Matilda, and apparently, his wife's sister, Clara Wells. His estate was estimated at $500 at that time.

The 1860 census records the names of Joseph, his wife and two daughters, Matilda and Celesta Ann. He was a farmer in Madison township, Allen County, Indiana, and was reported to have accumulated $1,400 in real estate and $600 in personal property.

In 1870 Joseph is listed as a farmer living in Madison township with his wife, "Aradena." His was 51 years old and his wife, 43. In the 1880 census, Joseph was not shown, as he died that year and his wife, Aradena, died thirteen years later.

In the 1850 census, William and Margaret were listed in Madison township together with two daughters. Their property was estimated at $400.

William apparently became a well-to-do landowner and administrator. Six parcels of property were sold in the 1860's. The records indicate that William was involved in settling several estates. from Paul Shafford, and on May 15, 1854, Alexander sold his property to Franklin Randall, apparently in preparation for moving to Wisconsin.

It is possible Alexander moved to Wisconsin in 1854, and the rest of the family moved the next year in 1855. Alexander purchased land in the valley, first called Bon. The first cabin was built in 1853 in the Bloom Township. The name Bon was changed to Spring Valley then West Branch in 1867, and later in 1887 the present name, Bloom City, was adopted.

The church affiliation of Alexander, and other Indiana Peckhams was Methodist. The Methodist group purchased a small parcel of land for $5.00 from Alexander and Jemina Peckham. A log church was built by hewing logs, and seats were made by splitting the logs and boring holes in the logs into which the legs were inserted. The building which replaced this log church is still in use in 2009.

Charles Wesley and Caroline Peckham

Charles Wesley$^7$ Peckham

Charles Wesley "Wes" Peckham was born and spent his early childhood in eastern Ohio and attended the Common School. "Wes" was 12 years old when his family moved to Allen County, Indiana. Here he grew to manhood and married Caroline Davis in 1850.

In the 1850 census, Charles Wesley and his new bride were living with Charles$^6$ and were listed with his household. Wesley acquired a 40-acre tract from John McGowan on January 17, 1854, in Madison Township which he sold to William W. Carson on May 12, 1855: northwest one-fourth of the southwest one-fourth section 17, township 29, range 14 in Allen, Indiana.

In 1855, "Wes," along with his wife, stopped at Spring Green, Wisconsin, where they harvested a crop of corn for a farmer in that area. After the crop was harvested, they along with father, mother, and possibly brother Alexander (if he had not gone the year before), moved to Bloom City, Richland County, Wisconsin. These sturdy pioneers, families from Ohio and Indiana, were attracted to this almost perfect wilderness of west central Wisconsin. The first cabin was built in this township in 1853, two years before "Wes" arrived.

Charles Wesley Peckham house in Wisconsin

They passed up the level land of Illinois and southern Wisconsin in search of the good soil, bubbling spring; fine timber and rolling hills which were similar to the ones they knew in eastern Ohio.

Going into the heavily timbered land without the benefit of roads was a major challenge. Charles$^7$ Wesley purchased eighty acres of Government property in Section 27, Bloom Township.

Charles$^7$ Wesley Peckham purchased on August 25, 1855, from Francis Stewart by Warranty Deed (Volume 6D, page 171 , Register of Deeds, Richland County, Wisconsin), the southwest one-half section 26, township 12, range 1 west.

Charles$^7$ cleared the land and built a family log house dwelling which was common in this period and as the family moved in, the house had neither doors nor windows. The first night in the little cabin in late fall of 1855, snow blew in and half-filled the cabin. He improved the acreage and developed a valuable farm with distinct success.

Subsequently, Charles Wesley bought and sold several farms in the town of Bloom, as well as lot 5, block 1 in (Spring Valley) Bloom City by warranty deed from William Pizer on February 5, 1874. On this lot he built the house into which he moved, lived and died.

Charles Wesley's name indicates Methodist background. He belonged to a Methodist Church which also was used by an English Lutheran congregation in Massillon, Indiana. The Indiana Peckhams were Methodist.

In early manhood "Wes" declared his intention to live a Christian life. So it is not surprising that the first religious service held in the Bloom City area was held in Charles Wesley Peckham's home in 1856 by a Presbyterian minister.

Charles$^7$ Wesley and wife Carolina, lower, with son Luther$^8$ E. and wife Margaret Wallace, upper, about 1895

A year or so later, a Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in Bloom City, and he was one of the founders. He served the church as a member of the Board of Trustees, as well as in several other offices. He was also instrumental in providing a concrete sidewalk from the main square in Bloom City to the church.

In August, 1862, Charles$^7$ Wesley enlisted as a Private in Company B of the Twenty-Fifth Regiment of Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, at LaCrosse, Wisconsin. He was assigned to the Sixteenth Army Corps and was sent to fight some Indians in the Northwest, Minnesota area. On December 25, 1862, the regiment moved to Madison and then on to Columbus, Kentucky and Vicksburg. The Regiment saw action in Tennessee and Georgia, taking part in numerous skirmishes and battles including Resaca and Dallas. It was at Dallas that Charles$^7$ "Wes" was wounded, being shot while eating breakfast. The rifle ball entered his right shoulder and lodged in the arm which necessitated losing his right arm. On September 27, 1864 he was honorably discharged at Madison, Wisconsin. (History of Richland County).

It is said by the author that "Wes" could wield the ax with his left hand and could keep up with most woodchoppers who had two hands. As a staunch Republican he served as County Treasurer for two years and was elected to the 'town of Bloom Board and held other minor offices.

In the 1870 census, Charles Wesley Peckham owned $3,200 worth of real estate and $450 personal property in the Bloom Township. He toiled and endured the hardships, carving out a frontier home and a good living for his family. "Wes," as he was affectionately called, was described as "a rare Christian character who exemplified the power of Christ to be sustained under the burden of the years." (Obituary).

"Wes" was described as a venerable citizen of Richland County and was held in unqualified regard throughout the county.

Peter$^7$ Peckham

Peter$^7$ moved from Ohio to Indiana when he was nine years old. In the 1850 census, he was listed as a laborer who was living at home. After his marriage in 1851, Peter purchased a farm from John Shaffer on May 14, 1853. It was the northeast one-fourth of the northwest one-fourth section 27, township 29, range 14 in Madison Township, Allen County, Indiana.

On March 24, 1858, Peter purchased another parcel from Jobey Shaffer: the northeast one-fourth of the northeast quarter, section 33, township 29, range 14 in Allen County and sold it that same year on October 14, 1858, to Arnold Smith.

In the 1870 census, "Riley" Peter Peckham was listed as a farmer with $2,500 in real estate and $250 in personal property and resided in Allen County (Madison Township), Indiana.

Records show that Peter made trips to Wisconsin and that he purchased on March 26, 1866, from James B. Shaffer the west one-half of the northeast one-fourth section 33, township 12, range 1 west. (Richland County, Wisconsin, Register of Deeds).

Peter and his wife, Rebecca, may have considered moving to Wisconsin. However, by November 28, 1891, they sold their Wisconsin holdings to Alexander Peckham. The Deeds were processed and signed in Allen County, Indiana, and were witnessed by son William T. and his wife, Nancy Peckham. Peter lived most of his life around Monroeville, Indiana, and had descendants living there in 1978, which the author has visited and who have been helpful in supplying information.

Levi$^7$ Peckham

Levi was born in Jefferson County, Ohio, grew to manhood and married Mary Clark. He was a farmer who, along with his father, mother, brother and their families felt the call of the frontier and moved to the sparsely populated wooded countryside of west central Wisconsin.

Levi's earliest purchase was made on October 11, 1855 from Isaac Pizer, lot number 18 in block P 3 in the Village of Spring Valley, later called Bloom City (Richland County Register of Deeds).

Later Levi moved to the township of Marshall, Richland County, to a heavily wooded farm. On March 17, 1865 he was drafted into the northern army. While he was training and serving as a scribe at Camp Randall, he became ill with smallpox and died on May 16, 1865. He was buried in the military section of the Forest Hill Cemetery near Camp Randall. This left his wife, Mary, with the seven children to care for, as well as the farm. (History of Richland County, p. 1 124).

Mary courageously stayed on the farm and struggled to rear her family alone. Their first home was a primitive log structure. Grant used to tell of waking in the morning to find snow drifted in on top of his blankets. With much hard work, the young Peckham boys cleared the heavily forested land, eventually creating a fine farm of three hundred twenty acres which was known as Spring Hill Farm with a comfortable two-story home and several farm buildings.

An interesting note: Mary Clark's father, Hugh, had purchased six hundred acres of timber land in the township of Bloom. He was returning to Ohio at the same time Levi and Mary were traveling to Wisconsin. However, they missed each other on the road, and Mr. Clark died shortly in Ohio and never saw his daughter, Mary, or her family again. (Richland Observer, August 7, 1941).

Mrs. Peckham, a number of years ago, suffered a stroke of paralysis from which she never recovered, bearing it with patience and submission to the will of God. It was a severe trial to her when a little over a year ago her husband, who for years had watched over her and cared for her, was taken from her.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. R. Carne in the M. E. Church of this city where a large number of relatives and friends were gathered. She was laid to rest in the Pine River Cemetery by the side of her husband. (Obituary).

They cleared land, were leaders in establishing the Methodist Church and became active and respected citizens in the community.

Elisha Clarke Peckham

Mr. and Mrs. Peckham lived for nearly three generations in Middletown, R. I. "On Saturday, NOV. 23, 1897, they celebrated the eighty-fourth birthday of Mr. Peckham at his home, "Seven Pines," on Peckham Avenue, Middletown. Many of his children called during the day to offer congratulations, and Mr. Peckham received numerous callers outside of his family. In his enjoyment of the affairs of the Nation, and with an active interest in the affairs of the day, on which he keeps well posted, Mr. Peckham is a staunch type of the pioneer days, for he made two trips to California in the forties. His present family of eleven living children, with their families of children and grandchildren, includes besides himself and wife, over seventy-five. Mr. and Mrs. Peckham will have been married sixty years the following Spring" (Newport Mercury).

John C.[7] Peckham

John C. Peckham, a well-known citizen of South Haven, well-to-do and living retired from active labor, has just passed his sixty-ninth birthday, having been born January 7,1821. He is a native of Holmes Co. Ohio, born and reared on a farm, of parents who located in that region during the period of its earliest settlement. They hewed out a homestead from the heavy timber, and there spent their last days.

The mother, however, was cut down in the prime of life, dying when her son, John C., was a mere child. She was a lady of many estimable qualities, and a consistent member of Christian Church. Eleven children were left motherless at her death, of who John C. was among the younger. The mother bore the maiden name of Cynthia Cook.

William Peckham, the father of our subject, after the decease of his first wife, was subsequently married to Mrs. Rebecca (Raison) McLaughlin, and there were born to them six children who were all reared upon the same farm, and there the father and stepmother died. The latter was a member of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Peckham belonged to the Christian Church.

He and his first wife were natives of Rhode Island, where the paternal grandparents of our subject lived for many years. After the death of Grandfather Peckham the son brought his mother to Ohio, and she died in Holmes County at the advanced age of one hundred and one years.

The subject of this sketch was married in his native county in 1848, to Miss Isabel, daughter of James and Sarah (Leadon) Hackenberry, a native of the same county, where her father located when a boy. The parents of the latter were among its earliest pioneers, and James, the son, was there reared to man's estate. He died in Missouri about 1872.

In 1849 John C. Peckham removed to Marshall County, Ind., here he sojourned ten years. We next find him in Maries County, Mo., and from there in 1863, he removed to DeKalb County, that State, where he prosecuted farming until 1878.

That year he became a resident of this county, purchasing a farm about two miles northwest of the present site of South Haven. He occupied himself in agricultural pursuits until February 1889, when he wisely decided to retire from active labor, and is now enjoying the fruits of his industry.

During the progress of the late Civil War Mr. Peckham enlisted as a Union Soldier in Company A, Thirty-second Missouri Infantry, and served one year, at the expiration of which, on account of illness he was obliged to accept his honorable discharge. Politically, he is a Republican, but had very little to do with public affairs otherwise than casting his vote at the general elections.

He belongs to South Haven Post. G. A. R. at South Haven, and with his estimable wife is prominently connected with the Christian Church.

There have been born to them six children, all of whom are living, and named respectively: Sarah J., Alice, James W., Eliza, Emma Cook and Ella. The family residence is nicely located in the east part of the city, and is the frequent resort of its best people. (1890)

Abner Wilcox Peckham

He was reared to manhood on his father's farm in Scituate, and was accorded all the educational advantages which the community afforded. When a young man he found employment in the mills of his native town, and for some years was thus employed in various capacities. Later in life he returned to farming as a vocation, and purchased the farm afterward owned and occupied by his son, Charles H. The late years of his life he passed in practical retirement, making his home with his children. Though Mr. Peckham was a man of retiring disposition, and greatly attached to his home and its associations, he was much in evidence in public affairs. He was an ardent Democrat, and by that party he was elected to various offices of trust and responsibility, his services including several terms in the State Senate. Both he and his wife, Patia F. Harris, are buried in North Scituate.

Obituary for Patia Harris Peckham

which newspaper the clipping came from is not known. Signed James Hall, No. Scituate, R.I.

"On Friday evening, April 2, Mrs. Patia F. Peckham of North Scituate, R. I.

The deceased was a woman of serious deportment and excellent spirit. On her tongue was the law of kindness. As a wife, she was affectionate, industrious and careful; as a mother, she always manifested a tender and constant regard for her children; and as an only daughter, she was cheerful, and kind, and attentive to her parents. Without exaggeration, it may be said that she was one of the best of women. As a neighbor, she was not only consistent but exemplary, exhibiting a happy combination of amiability and seriousness. Her spirit was sweet and heavenly, her disposition was mild and even. During her long and fatal illness, she was wonderfully supported by the grace and promises of the gospel. The perfect resignation, the steadfast faith, and heavenly hope by which her mind was influenced, afforded a delightful instance of the power and excellency of true religion. The evidence of her acceptance was clear, and she declining and going down, she looked forward with joyful anticipating to its setting; having a desire to depart and be with Christ. At length the hour arrived- death struck the blow, and her peaceful, happy spirit took its flight to the unsullied climes of never fading day. In the 49th year of her age, she exchanged earth for heaven, mortality for life eternal. Her funeral services were attended on the 5th by a large concourse of people, and numerous relatives and friends, - after which, her remains were deposited in the grave, there to sleep until the great rising day. May God, in his infinite mercy, sanctify this dispensation of his Providence to the good of the bereaved husband, children, parents, brother, relatives and friends drew near the Jordan of death, its cold chilling streams did not affright her. As her natural sun was

Grieve not for me, my husband and children dear'
Nor on your pillows drop a tear,
For I am now at rest.
My Lord and Savior called me home,
To see his face and share his throne,
And mingle with the blest.

Adieu dear parents, and brother adieu!
I must no longer stay with you'
But you must come to me—
Family and friends whom I love'
I hope to meet in Heaven above,
in paradise to see.

Dr. Fenner Harris Peckham

Dr. Peckham's father, who was an able man, and the physician of all the country for a radius of many miles, was injured when a youth, while indulging in outdoor that his lungs were never strong. In spite of that, he rode hither and thither over the Connecticut hills night and day, charging ten cents for an office prescription and twenty-five cents for a visit. Society then, more than fifty years ago, was less exacting than today, and all classes lived more simply. The same is true of acquiring a medical education. How different were tile requirements of Dr. Hazael Peckham for obtaining his degree as compared with those of his great-grandson, who represents the fourth generation of doctors, and who today studies at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York.

After the death of his father, the young lad was practically left to himself. The pet of his mother, the pride of the village school, the leader of his companions, the first with the fishing rod, the surest shot, the world was before him. What would he choose the fineness of his nature and the strength of his character are shown by the fact that, in the midst of all village temptations to lead an easy, self-indulgent life, he turned resolutely away from these lower attractions and sought an education and a profession for himself. He attended the Academy of a neighboring town, and afterward entered the office of Dr. Justin Hammond, his brother-in-law. He studied with him and afterward with Professors Knight and Hooker in New Haven, graduating from the 'Medical Department of Yale College in 1842. He practiced for a short time in his native place, and then settled at North Killingly, now known as Putnam Heights, Connecticut. He soon became the leading man of the place. His counsels were listened to with reference to church and politics. It was here that he formed the lifelong friendship with the late Hon. John D. Baldwin, who was then the pastor of the Congregational church. They proved a mutual stimulus, which ultimately resulted in sending the clergyman as representative to a Connecticut Legislature, and into journalistic fields, where he became the editor and proprietor of the Worcester Daily Spy, and eventually took his seat in Congress. It sent the physician to Providence, where he soon became widely known. He had scarcely been there a year, when he was overwhelmed with grief by the death of his wife. She left him with a family of six small children, to whom he became father and mother. He married five years later Miss Esther Sabin, who lived only a year, dying of consumption in Cuba. It was not until his children were, grown that he married again, when Miss Rhoda A. Fairbanks became his wife. It is given to but few children to remember their father with so much affection and gratitude. His confidence and pride in them stimulated without flattering them and the reward of his approbation was all they desired to crown any successful achievement. The writer would fair dwell with filial fondness upon the uncommon traits which endeared him to his family.

His relations to other members of his profession were of a most friendly nature. His skill and ability met with ready recognition. He was twice elected President of the Rhode Island Medical Society. It was during his Presidency that the first woman physician was admitted to the privileges of membership. For a number of years he was physician and surgeon of the Marine Hospital at Providence. At the opening of the Civil War he volunteered his services, and was commissioned in August 1861, surgeon of the 3d Rhode Island Regiment. He first went to Washington, where he did much in organizing the hospital service for the Rhode Island regiments. Afterward he went to Port Royal, South Carolina, where his duties were arduous and irksome. He resigned in February 1862, and returned to his practice. Afterward he was appointed surgeon of the Board of Enrollment in the Second District of Rhode Island, and, at the request of Gov. James Y. Smith, officially visited Fortress Monroe. He remained in connection with the Board of Enrollment until the termination of the Rebellion.

He was very fond of literature, especially of poetry. He contributed articles, from time to time, to newspapers, and, in addition to addresses and reports of special cases, wrote a monograph upon hydrophobia, which was first presented to the American Medical Association. He also wrote "On the Topographical and Geological Condition of the Second District of Rhode Island." In 1875 his health began to fail, and he gradually relinquished more and more to his son, Dr. F. H. Peckham, Jr., who since 1866 has been in partnership with him. In 1878 his medical career came to an end in consequence of an attack of Bright's disease. A proud spirited man, always accustomed to lead and command, he became an invalid, but never a word of complaint or a murmur escaped his lips. He was a man of most genial and hopeful nature, and had a magnetism which attracted his friends and endeared him to his patients. Cheerful and uncomplaining, he remained a comfort to his family for nine years, when he passed away in 1887, February 17.

John Irvin$^7$ Peckham

John Irvin$^7$ Peckham, born in Sun Prairie, Wisconsin, in 1865, farmed with his father Pardon Lawrence$^6$ after his grandfather's death in 1881. As a young man he moved around the country, working in the grain fields in the States of Oregon and Washington.

He married Nellie Chute in 1896 and they had three children, Lillian, Ethel Marie, and Anna Caroline before she died of a kidney infection in 1911, one month after the birth of Anna. Anna was raised by Maria Peckham$^7$ Vincent, John's sister. His father, Pardon Lawrence$^6$, died only months later in 1912.

After his father's death, the family land was divided among his children. John Irvin$^7$, then working for the State Highway Department, received land across the road from the school on Pierceville Road, where he, Lillian, and Ethel planned to build a home. Instead, they bought a large homestead and farm in New York State near Fulton. New York. George Anton Franke, a neighbor who had worked the farm with the Peckhams, brought their more modern farming equipment from Sun Prairie to the New York State property and, there, married Lillian Peckham in 1916. Lillian and George Franke moved back to Sun Prairie.

In his retirement years, John Irvin$^7$ was one of the first to own an automobile. He lived on a houseboat on the Mississippi and traveled widely in his self-constructed "motorhome". Photography was a special hobby and his family have many of his photographs taken at weddings and other family affairs. He died on February 25, 1950 at 85 years of age.

Addison[7] Peckham as told by Charles A.[9] Peckham

Addison [7] Peckham (no middle name) was born and grew up in Deansville, Wisconsin, the son of a physician. Little is known of his childhood. At some point he became apprenticed in the building trades for he became an expert stone mason, bricklayer and plasterer.

The date of his marriage to Mary Bowen, a beautiful, full blooded, Ojibwa Indian, ten years younger than he, is not known. It must have been when he was near thirty (1877) as his second child, David Ray[7] was born when he was thirty-three.

As Mary told the story of their marriage to her grandson, Charles[9] A. Peckham, she had been doing house work for a family in Jefferson, Wisconsin when they met. Addison was the Deansville Railroad Station Master at the time. During their courtship, he regularly walked from Deansville to Jefferson to see her on weekends. When they decided upon marriage they went to the justice of the peace in Deansville to avoid the strict rules of the Catholic Church on the issuing of bans. As they came out of the justice's office after the ceremony, a priest who knew Mary happened to be passing. He asked what they were doing and Mary said "we just got married". His response was "Your husband's children and your children's children shall all be bastards!" There upon "grand pa" hauled off and hit him in the jaw and knocked him flat right there in the street! Along came the sheriff, but as he was a Protestant, no charges were filed.

The story of Mary's arrival from Canada into what is now the United States is equally as dramatic as that of her marriage and is worthy of re-telling here.

It must have been in the 1860s that a drought and subsequent famine drove her family to load Mary and her brother and sister onto their wioeke-oupe, a horse drawn traverse, and to set out across the deep snows around their lodge and over frozen lake Superior, where the snow was not so deep. How they made it across the lake no one will ever know, but when they arrived on what is now the Wisconsin shore, her parents and the horses were suffering from severe frost bite. Within days her parents and the horses were dead as the result of gangrene of the legs. Subsequently, the children were fortunate enough to be adopted by the Bowen family of Boscobel Wisconsin, where she lived until leaving the family to work in Jefferson, Wisconsin.

Addison [7] died in 1918 in Deansville, Wisconsin. He is buried in the Bristol Cemetery.

Chapter 9

Eighth Generation

Wisconsin in the 19th and early 20th Centuries

In the first 50 years of the State of Wisconsin's history (the last half of the 19th century), heavy immigration continued with a large scale German contingent. The state remained largely agricultural. Slavery, banking laws and temperance were the major issues of the period.

The first railroad train ran from Milwaukee to Waukesha in 1851.

In 1854: the Republican Party was named at Ripon, Wisconsin; the first class was graduated at the state university; Joshua Glover, fugitive slave, was arrested at Racine; the State Supreme Court declared the Fugitive Slave Law of 1850 unconstitutional; and the Mississippi Railroad reached Madison.

In 1859 Abraham Lincoln spoke at the State Fair in Milwaukee and in 1861 the Civil War began. In terms of Wisconsin citizens' lives lost, even to the present day, this has been the bloodiest of all the wars in our history. From a state population of about 775,000, 96,000 troops served and 12,216 were lost.

The Peshtigo fire in 1871, which burned over six counties in northern Wisconsin with a loss of 1,000 lives, constitutes the largest loss of life due to natural disaster in Wisconsin's history. However, its destructive effect upon the great pine forests in Wisconsin was nothing as compared to the exploitation by the lumbering industry in the remaining years of the century.

The century ended with the Spanish American War in 1898 and the loss of 134 Wisconsin men.

After the turn of the century the large scale European immigration ended. Wisconsin became pre-eminent in the reform movement. Wisconsin born Governor Robert M. LaFollette was inaugurated (1901). State Civil Service was established in 1905, The first "practical" automobiles appeared in 1910, though most were steam propelled. The first income tax law was passed in 1911.

Many of the eighth generation saw service in the first world war which broke out in 1914 and ended in 1918, but the 1920s belong to the rapidly growing ninth generation which will be covered in Chapter VI.

Oklahoma Heritage

by Irene (Peckham) Hildebrandt, Enid, Oklahoma

My parents were Oklahoma pioneers. My father, William Henry Peckham, was born in Wisconsin in 1863. He was one of fourteen children, seven girls and seven boys.

Mother, Ellen Shugars, was born in Pennsylvania in 1866. She had one sister who died before Mother was born. My grandparents were Nelson and Anna (Jones) Peckham and Martin and Rebecca (Grumbein) Shugars.

Due to my Grandmother Shugar's poor health, they came to Kansas about the year of 1879 and settled on a farm south of Ness City. Later, my father's family came from Wisconsin and settled on a far nearby. Mother and Dad met and were married December 25, 1885. Their first home was a dug-out.

My Grandfather Shugars had a rock quarry from which he sold rocks for erecting the large stone buildings in Ness City. Father was a stone mason and helped build the business part of Ness City. When building slacked there, Mother and Dad, with three small children, moved to Caldwell, Kansas, where he obtained work on the railroad. Some time later they heard about the "Opening of the Cherokee Strip" which was to be September 16, 1893. He had a brother living in Kingfisher. Early in the morning they came to Hennessey and left on horseback to make the "Run."

They staked claims ten miles southwest of Enid and had to stay six months to file on them (160 acres). Mail service, as well as transportation, were poor and the folks heard very few times from each other. During this time, my oldest sister came down with typhoid fever. Mother thought her recovery was largely credited to a good old-time country doctor. My oldest brother was on the verge of the same, but Mother got him to the doctor in time. In the meantime, Dad was clearing a place to build a house. This was one room of logs and one of sod.

Early in the spring of 1894, Dad set out to get his family and bring them to their new home. On his way to Caldwell, he stopped at a small town north of Enid and spoke for a room in a small hotel where they might stay overnight on the way home. When they arrived, they found the hotel owner had rented the room to someone else. No other place was available, and they had to sleep in their covered wagon. The weather turned bitter cold and ice froze in water near their heads. As days went by, the weather became warmer.

Spring and new hopes! They planted a large garden. It was growing nicely so they decided to make a trip to bring back some cows which had been left at my grandparents in Beaver, Oklahoma. Their fourth child, a son, had been born about three weeks earlier. All went well, but on their return, they found the garden burned up due to extremely hot weather and no rain.

Discouraged? Yes, but not willing to give up! Mother told of how they would go to the timber, cut and saw wood enough for a load one day. Dad would take it to town the next and get the few necessities like flour, sugar, coffee, and tea. And I dare say a sack of hard candy (I'm not even sure of that). They managed (to buy) materials, for instance, calico and chambray, for dresses and shirts. Mother sewed them along with her many other duties.

As years went by, more children came—eleven in all! Ten of us grew up, having lost one little brother at the age of three. This was our first real sadness.

Times became better. We were all taught to work. Dad improved the house, dug and built a cave and began molding and making rocks for a large barn. We had a creek running through the place. With cement and a block machine, which he took to the creek, he made blocks for a very large barn (I think, the finest in the country). With the help of Mother and the older children (in their teens by now) the blocks were hauled and the barn erected. It was finished and celebrated with a dance in November 1909. A hard rain started falling early, which lasted all night. The dancers stayed and danced right on through till morning. In the house there was a lot of excitement! My twin sisters were born.

In May of 1979, a tornado struck and blew out part of both ends and damaged the roof, which makes me very sad!

My brothers and sisters were: Luella (Lota) born 1887 – married to Bill Snowden; Percy Magdalene born 1888 – married to Charley Hawk; Andrew Jay born 1891 – married to Ethel Hitch; Irvin Henry born 1894 – married to Velma Hitch; Hiram Daniel born 1896 – married to Jessie James; Irene (me) born 1899 – married to Fred Hildebrandt; Cecil Dennis born 1902; Birdie Ellen born 1904; Leona Arvilla born 1907 – married to Mike Meadows; Mabel Clara born 1909 – married to Fred Bennet; Mae Ida born 1909 – married to Tye Anderson

All are gone but the twins and me (1980).

We all had fair educations. The earliest school, a one-room, was located where the small town of Imo now stands. Later, Turkey Creek School was built ¾ mile north with a Congregational Church close by that we attended. The school house has been moved back to Imo and used as a community building. (The school building has since been moved to Enid and is a part of Heritage Village located near the Cherokee Strip Museum.)

My husband is deceased now, but our three sons are all college graduates and live in Oklahoma. All married lovely girls, and I have six grandchildren of whom I'm very proud.

My three brothers and my husband were all in World War I and my sons in World War II or later service. I could write many little humorous incidents that have occurred throughout the years but space doesn't permit.

Our farm was sold in 1941. We moved Mother into town and she lived to the ripe old age of 98, lacking one month. She lived a useful and meaningful life. My father passed away in 1938 just a week before his 75th birthday.

Yes, they were truly pioneers! (Written in my 81st year)

Mary Josephine Peckham

From 1867 to 1875, Mary Josephine Peckham carried on a school for young women in her native city of Providence, the school being situated on Waterman Street, near Benefit Street. In 1875 she went into the office of Dr. Edwin V. Snow., then Superintendent of the State Census, and compiled the tables and made the calculations necessary for the new census. Dr. Snow was at that time also the City Registrar. After completing the work of the census, she became clerk in that office. When Dr. Charles V. Chapin succeeded Dr. Snow as Registrar, Miss Peckham remained as clerk. She gave up office work on account of failing health, but completed the work on the statistics and Registration Report then under way. These Registration Reports of the City of Providence have been held, by those outside of the State competent to judge, as among the few that could be classed as particularly good; and by some have been held to be the very best in this country. In his Report for 1905, the fifty-first, Dr. Chapin includes a review of the work of the Department from its beginning. In it he states great credit is due Miss Mary Peckham, who has been the chief clerk of the office since the Autumn of 1876. Upon her had fallen the labor of receiving, scrutinizing and correcting the returns, and making tabulations for the Reports. Much judgment and knowledge is required for this, and the real value of the Reports depended chiefly upon her fitness for and interest in the work. As Miss Peckham carried on the work of her department much of the time without an assistant, the completeness and accuracy of almost every record of birth, license for marriage, and permit for burial, depended upon her. She also wrote up the records for the official books. She was for many years a member of the First Baptist Church, which she joined by baptism 1864, November 20 ( Obituary Notice).

Stephen Farnum Peckham

The early years of Professor S. F. Peckham were spent on his father's farm at Fruit Hill. He attended the District School, where he acquired the rudiments of knowledge, and later attended the Friends' Yearly Meeting boarding school in Providence, where he finished his preparatory studies.

The winter of 1856–57 was devoted to a special course in chemistry in the laboratory of Brown University. The following spring he entered the drug store of Albert L. Calder in Providence, where he remained two years and acquired a thorough knowledge of pharmacy under the efficient instruction of that master of the art. In the fall of 1859 he returned to Brown University, where he completed a course as a special student of the Class of 1861. In consequence of events incident to the outbreak of the Civil War he did not graduate.

During the fall and winter of 1861, he was engaged with several gentlemen of Providence in building and operating an establishment for the manufacture of illuminating oils from petroleum, he having conducted numerous experiments in this branch of technology while still a student. The technology of the plant was entrusted wholly to Mr. Peckham, and was entirely successful, but from lack of capital and other causes, the enterprise was not remunerative. Retiring from this, he enlisted in the 7th Rhode Island Volunteers Aug. 15, 1862, and was immediately made Hospital Steward of the regiment, under Dr. James Harris as Surgeon. He served with the regiment until the 9th Army Corps Hospital was organized for the Wilderness Campaign, when he was assigned for duty there for the administration of anesthetics and keeping the records of operations. Later he was placed in charge of the medical records of the corps under Drs. McDonald and Taylor until, in January, 1865, he was sent to Philadelphia in charge of the chemical department of the United States Army Laboratory, where he remained until discharged from the service by orders of the War Department 1865, May 26. He left the service in order to become a chemical expert to the California Petroleum Company of Santa Barbara County, Cal., one of the companies whose organization was based on the reports made by Professor Benjamin Silliman Jr. Visiting Southern California, he remained with the Company one year, the greater part of which was employed in exploring the property of the Company. He then entered the service of the California Geological Survey under Professor Josiah D. Whitney. He prepared a very elaborate report upon "The Oil Interests of Southern California," and then returned to New England to make a technical examination of samples of the California bitumens which he had gathered, and report upon the same.

In 1867 he was engaged as tutor in chemistry in Brown University, and later again took up his researches on California bitumens in the laboratory of the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard University. During 1869 he held the Chair of Chemistry in Washington College at Washington, Pa., and during 1870 and 1871 at the Maine State College at Orono, Me. During 1972 he was at Buchtel College, Akron, Ohio, and removed in 1973 to Minneapolis, Minn., to accept the Chair of Chemistry in the University of Minnesota. He was also chemist to the Geological Survey of Minnesota and the State Board of Health. In the latter capacity he made, in 1877, an extensive research and report upon the water supply of the Red River Valley.

In 1878 he investigated the extensive flourmill explosions that occurred at Minneapolis, 1878, May 8, making a report thereon that attracted wide attention in the insurance and scientific circles, both in the United States and Europe. A copy of his report, read before the coroner's jury, was sent to Dr. J. Lawrence Smith in Paris, France, who then stood at the head of American chemists. On his return to the United States, Dr. Smith told Professor Peckham he had read that report before the Institute of France, and that he considered it one of the finest technical reports extant.

In 1881 he main returned to Providence and took up the preparation of a monograph on Petroleum, for the Tenth Census of the United States. This work was, in its extended title, a treatise on "The Natural History, Production, Technology and Uses of Petroleum," including statistics of the production, manufacture and commerce of petroleum during the census year in the United States and foreign countries.

.1t the date of its publication it was the most exhaustive work on the subject ever issued, requiring several years for its preparation, appearing in 1885. A translation of that portion of the monograph which was of general scientific interest was published in Germany before it was issued from the Census Office. For several years after, Professor Peckham was further engaged in other business, scientific, and literary occupations, during which time he prepared an article on Petroleum for the Ninth Original Edition of the "Encyclopedia Britannica" and several other similar publications.

In 1889 he moved his family to Ann Arbor, Mich., where he established a laboratory for the analytical and technical examination of problems relating to Bitumens.

In 1892 he bean to investigate the problems connected with street paving with asphalt, and read a paper on the subject before the Congress of Chemists at the Colombian Exposition. The following year he returned to the Pacific Coast, remaining there until December 1894. While there he was engaged in an investigation of problems relating to the technology of California Bitumens and, in June 1894, read another paper before the Congress of Chemists that met in San Francisco in connection with the mid-Winter Fair, open the "Nitrogen Content of California Bitumens." This latter caper has been quoted from Boston to Calcutta.

Returning to Michigan in December 1894, he visited en route the bitumen deposits of Northern Texas and Oklahoma, and arranged as an expert for the Peoria Asphalt suit.

In February 1895, he sailed for Trinidad. West Indies. He there examined the celebrated pitch lake. The examination of the specimens obtained from Trinidad, with a second trip to the Indian Territory, occupied his time until the suit was called for trial in November.

In August 1898, he was called to the city of New York to conduct a laboratory for the Commissioners of Accounts, which very confidential and responsible position he held ten years. The laboratory, with his services, were then transferred to the Department of Finance, where he is still engaged (1911).

Qualified by these extensive researches, Professor Peckham has been frequently retained as an expert witness m some of the most important bitumen cases of recent years. He is a well known author on subjects relating to bitumens, having published, during the last forty years, nearly one hundred papers in scientific journals in Europe and America. In addition to the monograph on Petroleum he also published an elementary text book on "Chemistry" (Louisville, J. P. Morton & Co., 1873), a "Report to the Commissioners of Accounts on Asphalt Paving," and, in 1909, a volume on "Solid Bitumens."

As a diversion from these absorbing scientific problems, he has devoted much time and research to questions relating to the early history of New England, and of the sources of history involved in the settlement of his native State of Rhode Island. From these studies this present volume has evolved, and in addition he has in preparation a volume on "The Lollard Influence in Colonial America."

Professor Peckham received the honorary degree of A. M. from Brown University in 1870. He is a member and Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; the New York Lyceum of Natural History; the American Philosophical Society, and other scientific bodies.

Excerpts from the: THE NATIONAL CYCLOPAEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY

PECKHAM, Stephen Farnum, chemist, was born near Providence, R. I., March 26, 1839, son of Charles and Hannah Lapliam (Farnum) Peckham. He is a lineal descendant of John Peckham, who, with the Clarkes and other Baptists, settled in Newport, R. I., in 1638. His paternal grandmother was descended from John Howland, of the Mayflower, and was the daughter of Col. Samuel Wardwell, of Bristol, R. I. On his mother's side, he is descended from Richard Scott, the first Rhode Island Quaker, whose wife was a sister of Anne Hutchinson and from other companions of Roger Williams whose descendants became Quakers. His early years were spent on his father's farm and in attendance upon the district school, where he acquired the rudiments of knowledge, and at the Friends' Boarding-school in Providence, where he finished his preparatory studies. At the age of eighteen, he sought employment in a drug store in Providence, where he remained two years. He then entered Brown University, and remained there until the close of the academic year, 1861. During the fall and winter of that year he was engaged, with several gentlemen of Providence, in erecting and operating an establishment for the manufacture of illuminating oils from petroleum; but the following summer the service of his country called him to the field, whither he went as hospital steward of the, 7th regiment, Rhode Island volunteer infantry, enlisting Aug. 15, 1862. He was discharged May 26, 1865. During the last six months of his service he had charge of the chemical department of the U. S. army laboratory at Philadelphia. He left the service in order to become a chemical expert to the California Petroleum Co., of Santa Barbara County, California, one of the companies whose organization was based on the reports made by Prof. Benjamin Silliman Jr. Visiting Southern California, he remained with the company one year, and then entered the service of the California geological survey, under Prof. J. During 1872 he was at Buchtel College, Akron, O., removing, in 1873, to Minneapolis, Minn., to accept the chair of chemistry in the University of Minnesota. In 1881 he again returned to Providence, to take up the preparation of the monograph on "Petroleum" for the "Tenth Census of the United States." This work occupied, in the preparation and completion, several years, appearing in 1885. A translation from proof sheets of that portion of the monograph which was of general scientific interest was published in Germany before it was issued from the census office. For several years Prof. Peckham was engaged in various businesses, scientific and literary occupations; he prepared the article on petroleum for the last original edition of the "Encyclopedia Britannica," and several similar publications. In 1892 he began the investigation of problems connected with street paving with asphaltum, and read a paper on the subject before the congress of chemists at the Columbian exposition. Then for more than a year he was engaged in researches on the bitumens of southern California for the Union Oil Co. of California; meantime reading his widely quoted paper, "The Nitrogen Content of California Bitumens," before the congress at the mid-winter fair. In 1894, soon after his return east, be visited the island of Trinidad, W. I., to examine the famous Pitch Lake, and later made an examination of the bituminous deposits of Texas and the Indian Territory. Qualified by these researches, he has frequently been retained as an expert witness in some of the most important bitumen cases of recent years. He is considered one of the best authorities on the subject of bitumens now living. He published "Elementary Text Book on Chemistry" (1873), and has contributed numerous articles to scientific periodicals both in Europe and America. He now (1899) resides in Brooklyn, N. Y. In August, 1898, he was appointed to a position in New York City, equivalent to consulting chemist to the corporation. Prof. Peckham was married, June 13, 1865, to Mary Chace Peck, of Providence, R. I., who died March 20, 1892.

PECKHAM, Mary Chace (Peck), author and reformer, was born on the island of Nantucket, Mass., July 15, 1839, daughter of Charles Miller and Adriana (Fisher) Peck: the former a native of Providence, the latter of Edgartown, Martha's Vineyard. She was a descendant of the Rehoboth branch of the family. Capt. Jonathan Peck, her great-great-grandfather, fought at Bunker Hill. Philip Peck, her grandfather, was a merchant of Providence, and was married to a lady of that city, Abigail Chase, whose family were bakers, well known as philanthropists. The maternal grandparents of Mrs. Peckham were Rufus Fisher, a sea captain, and Mary (Peace) Fisher, both of Edgartown, and from this side of the house came in large measure that religious independence that distinguished her. Early in Mary Peck's life her parents removed to Providence, where she was graduated with high honors at the high school at the age of eighteen, and chosen poet of the alumni association. She was a teacher in the schools of Providence for eight years, and met with great success; inspiring her pupils and attaching them to her by the tie of sincere affection. Her sympathetic nature found abundant opportunities of expressing itself; she worked among the women in the state prison, and during the civil war ministered to the soldiers in the hospitals near Providence. On June 13, 1865, she was married to Stephen F. Peckham, chemical expert, and accompanied him to southern California. In 1866 she returned to the east with her husband and child, and from that time on for several years was actively engaged in literary as well as humanitarian work. In 1873 Mr. and Mrs. Peckham removed to Minneapolis, Minn., and she there began in a more public way her work for women. Wherever she made her home her influence was powerful, in spite of her retiring nature. However pressing the demands of the public might be, they were never allowed to interfere with the training of her children, "into whose lives she poured from her rich nature much of the best and noblest in thought and human experience." On returning to Providence, in 1880, she became a valued member of the Rhode Island Woman Suffrage Association, served on its executive committee and presented the cause in public meetings. She was the trusted co-laborer of Julia Ward Howe, Lucy Stone, Susan B. Anthony and other noted workers for the advancement of women; for her interest in securing for her sex the fullest enjoyment of civil rights and higher education was not local. She was an important member of the Association for the* Advancement of Women, and this made the whole country her sphere of action. She was a quiet but firm and fearless advocate of social reforms; a poetical idealist in philosophy and religion, living a life level with her convictions. A member of the First (Unitarian) Church of Providence, she had no faith or confidence in dogmatic theology, but died as she had lived, in absolute trust in the order and integrity of the divine Author of all things. She was endowed with a remarkable memory; her sparkling conversation revealed a keen insight into character and a critical study of the best books. She was a writer of elegant prose and a contributor to the religious, educational and secular press for twenty-five years. Two volumes bearing her name have been published: "Father Gabriel's Fairy" (1873) and "Windfalls Gathered Only for Friends" (1894), poems collected after her death. Many of these are of a high order of literary merit, especially those on religious subjects and those inspired by her deep love of nature. In 1889 Mrs. Peckham removed to Ann Arbor, Mich., where she died, March 20, 1892.

Edward (Richard) Peckham

Mr. Peckham was born and spent his early life on his father's farm on Fruit Hill, Providence, attending the schools in the neighborhood. During the Civil War he was a school teacher near Lime Rock, R. I., but soon after the war he went to the Pacific coast in search of health. The Union Pacific Railroad was not yet finished, and the trip was full of hardship for an invalid. He took a route across the Isthmus of Panama to San Francisco, his health being restored by the time he reached there. He made trips up and down the coast and went overland to a mining camp in Idaho, where he stayed more than a year. Coming home he rode horseback to Salt Lake City, where he joined some horse traders on a trip to Omaha. After this trip, Mr. Peckham went South and entered the employ of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, and was for many years closely connected with that road as Car Accountant. While in Ohio he married and moved to Richmond, Va., where he resided for a number of years. Later, on account of the ill health of both himself and wife, he returned to California, where he lived at Santa Monica until his wife's death. The last ten years of his life were again spent at Fruit Hill, a suburb of Providence, where he died.

Mary Scott$^8$ Peckham (Charles$^7$, Thomas$^6$, Thomas$^5$, Peleg$^4$, Joseph$^3$, John$^2$, John$^1$) was born on August 10, 1848, in Providence, Providence County, Rhode Island and died in Providence, Providence County, Rhode Island.

She never married.

Mary Scott$^8$ Peckham

She was named after her maternal great-grandmother, Mary Scott, a descendant of Richard Scott and Katharine Marbury. From a long line of Quaker ancestors she inherited a tinge of the austerity of that sect; but hers was a sunny nature, affectionate and true in friendship, relieving suffering in all animated things, and tender to minister and console. She loved flowers, and every year she tended a great flower garden where there were great plats of lily-of-the-valley and a wealth of roses. She knew all the nooks in the country around her dwelling where the ferns were the thickest and where the wild flowers bloomed. For years she drove miles and cut her choicest blossoms to cheer the weary rooms of her sick friends. She loved to grow weary to make others happy. She loved the birds too. In an orchard near her home, where the trees were old when her father bought the place in 1837, she watched the woodpeckers and wrens at their housekeeping, the vireos weave their baskets, and the tanagers flit in and out among the branches. The orioles came to her window year after year for thread with which to build their pensile nests. She knew them all and made them her companions, and as her strength failed, she knew her birds would miss her. The world will be poorer for her life of self-sacrifice ended. It is but fitting that she should he laid away in one of the most beautiful lots at Swan Point, where the birds will chant her requiem and the winds wind snow wreaths upon her resting place (Obituary Notice).

Thomas$^8$ Peckham (Thomas Coles$^7$, Thomas$^6$, Thomas$^5$, Peleg$^4$, Joseph$^3$, John$^2$, John$^1$) was born on November 13, 1847, in Providence, Providence County, Rhode Island, and died on September 6, 1903, in Providence, Providence County, Rhode Island. In the 1900 census he was a railroad conductor living in Providence County, Rhode Island. Thomas Peckham spent his life in Providence. He wasan employee of the Providence and Worcester Railroad, most of the time as locomotive engineer or conductor, leading an industrious and uneventful life, taking care of his large family of girls. ### Alexander L. Peckham

"Mr. Peckham has probably more friends among the children of Boston than any other one man. On one occasion he gave a circus party to twenty-three children, from twenty-three families and twenty-three streets at the South End. Of his guests, twenty-two were little girls and there was one boy, whose years were so few he was not at ail embarrassed at being the only young gentleman among so many guests. None of the children had ever been to the circus or seen a parade. Knowing each one personally, he selected these as being the ones who would get the most real and sincere enjoyment from what goes on under a tent. All these little ones lived somewhere between the cathedral and Elliott Street, and the child-loving lawyer was so punctilious when arranging his party that, instead of asking the little girls to assemble and meet him at some given point, he called for each little maiden at her own home. This necessitated his starting on his rounds at 11 A. M., but the group of happy youngsters was at the circus as soon as it opened. `I expect,' said Peckham before starting on his rounds to his circus party, `that we shall be the very last to leave the tent.' Several of his friends offered to assist him in his duties as host. Some were women who predicted he would have his hands full; others were men who asked to go along to see the children have a good time. But he declined all offers of assistance, saying that if there were grown people along the children would not have nearly so good a time, for some grown-ups would be sure to hurry them along when they were looking at the animals, and would limit the supply of popcorn and peanuts. He chose little girls for his guests, having some doubts as to his ability to handle unaided twenty-three little boys at a circus, and explaining his reason because girls are more apt to take excitement in a calmer manner, and girls like the circus just as well as the boys but have less chance to see one, for boys can sell papers and do errands to earn the money for tickets and girls can't. Many of his guests were little mothers, who were always tending younger children, so the treat was all their own, without any care. Mr. Peckham has been appointed a member of the Boston Lodging House Commission. He has organized a club composed largely of boys from the South End, and the youngsters all agree that he can play marbles or baseball as well as any of them, and that there are no Summer outings as delightful as those he engineers. It is doubtful if Mr. Peckham could walk through any district in the South End without finding himself surrounded with a crowd of his young friends, and he can call almost each of them by name" (Boston Advocate).

Francis Baring$^8$ Peckham Jr. (Francis Baring$^7$, Daniel$^6$, Joseph$^5$, Daniel$^4$, Joseph$^3$, John$^2$, John$^1$) was born on December 26, 1836, in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island and died on December 07, 1903, in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island.

He married Mary Ann Lawton and died in Newport, Newport County, Rhode Island.

Francis Baring Peckham Jr.

"Mr. Peckham graduated from Brown University in the Class of 1857, and was prominent with his classmates for his scholarly and literary attainments. He studied law in the office of the Hon. William P. Sheffield of Newport and afterwards opened an office for the practice of law in partnership with Judge William A. White, but the partnership being dissolved, Mr. Peckham carried on the practice alone. For many years he was regarded as one of the leading lawyers of the State. He was thoroughly versed in the law, quick to grasp the essential points of a problem, powerful in debate, and always possessed of a personal dignity which became hint well. While he was in active practice, there was seldom a case of much importance in which his services were not engaged. He was never willing to accept public office, the only office he ever held being that of City Solicitor of Newport. This position he filled for twenty-five years, being first elected in 1865 and continuing in office, with the exception of one year, until he positively declined the re-election in 1891. During his incumbency he rendered the City faithful and valuable service, being a wise counselor as well as a skillful pleader. After his retirement from office a project was started to present him with a token of respect and esteem, but this he would not accept. He was twice requested to become a judge of the Supreme Court of the State, but declined the office. He was many times asked to allow the use of his name as a candidate for City and State offices, but would not consent, except in the one instance mentioned. He was one of the oldest members of the Newport Business Men's Association, and served as its President for twelve years, being a frequent visitor at the rooms of the Association. Had he been less retiring, his real accomplishments and natural gifts would have been more highly appreciated, and he would have rendered more affective service to his age and generation" (Obituary Notice).

Jeremiah Gardner Peckham

Mr. Peckham prepared for college at Lapham Institute, North Scituate, R. I., and at Mowry and Goff's School in Providence. He graduated from Brown University in the Class of 1855, with the degree of A. M. He made the law his profession in early life, being a member of the New York and Rhode Island Bars, but preferring a country life, he relinquished active practice and purchased an estate at Narragansett, which he subsequently sold and bought a home near Tower Hill. For several years he was engaged in the coal and lumber business at Narragansett Pier, and built up a large business there. He also owned the Hadwen House at the Pier. On account of ill health he gave up his interests at the Pier and moved to Kingston, where for many years he was prominently connected with the management of the Landholders' National and the Kingston Savings Banks, serving on the Boards of Directors, and for nearly twenty years serving as President of the two institutions. When these were merged into the Kingston Trust Company, Mr. Peckham continued as President until his death. He served in the General Assembly from his native town in the early '70s. He has been a member of the Town Council and Board of Assessors, was much interested in school affairs and always took an active part at the financial town meetings. He was one of the commissioners appointed to lay out the dividing line between his town and Narragansett when the latter was set off from the former. He was a Democrat in politics, but a man of liberal and progressive views. He was one of the organizers of the Patrons of Husbandry in Rhode Island, and for several years was the First Master of the State Grange, being familiarly known in Grange circles as "Father Peckham."

Nathaniel Cottrell Peckham Jr.

His preparatory studies were pursued at Lapham Institute, North Scituate, R. I. After a three years' course at Brown University he went to the Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Law School, getting his diploma to practice in New York State. Two years later, he was elected to the Rhode Island Legislature as Senator, and was at once put upon the Committee on Corporations, in recognition of his ability as a debater. He served in the Legislature for three years, during which time he made himself familiar with Rhode Island law and was admitted to the Bar of that State. In his practice he was less a pleader or advocate than a counselor, preferring the settlement of large estates. Like many other Peckhams, he was a droll mixture of gravity and humor. When once he was discussing the family with the author, he remarked that "the Peckhams are a very irascible and honorable set of men."

Thomas P. Peckham

THOMAS P. PECKHAM is descended from New England stock, his grandfather having been Clement Peckham, who resided in Newport, where he married Mary Pinneger. Their children were:
Rebecca, Benjamin. David and William. The last-named son was born in Newport in 1815, and in his native city has for years followed the trade of a carpenter and builder. He married Lucy M. Chase of Fall River, and by her had two children: William G. and John P. His second wife, Sarah, daughter of Nicholas White of Newport, was a descendant of the first white child born in New England. The children by this union were: Thomas P., Lucy M. and Ella L.

Thomas P. Peckham was born on the 22d of November, 1846, — in Newport, and received his education mainly at private schools in the city, after which he became, in 1866, a student of Eastman's Business College, at Poughkeepsie, New York. Mr. Peckham had already enjoyed a limited business experience as clerk and assistant in one of the Newport banks, and on his return from Poughkeepsie resumed his vocation as clerk. In 1867 he entered the National Bank of Rhode Island, the oldest bank in the city, as a clerk, and on attaining his majority was made its cashier, which position he still holds. In this, as in every other business relation, his capacity, integrity and uniform courtesy have placed him in the front rank in commercial circles, and caused his services to be much in demand as trustee and administrator.

He until recently filled the position of treasurer of the Redwood library, as also that of trustee of the Long Wharf fund. Mr. Peckham has been and is still an active and influential member of the Masonic order. He was formerly treasurer of St. John's Lodge, and from its organization was secretary of St. Paul's Lodge until he became its master. He is also a member of the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island. He was treasurer, and later regent of Coronet Council, Royal Arcanum. He has been since its organization secretary of Touro Council, Legion of Honor.

Mr. Peckham has, as a republican, actively identified himself with local politics, was a member of the school board in 1873, 1874 and i87, and served in the Newport city council in 1881, 1882, 1883 and 1884, and in the board of aldermen in 1886 and 1887, being now chairman of the finance committee. He is identified with the First Methodist Episcopal church of Newport, of which he has been for many years both treasurer and steward. Mr. Peckham was married November 20th, 1872, to Martha, daughter of Weeden T. Underwood of Newport. Their children are: Bertha, Etta M. and Audley Clarke.

George$^8$ Edward Peckham

An interesting story about George Edward Peckham: George's mother, Caroline Louise B. Sherman Peckham, as a widow traveled eventually to Washoe, Nevada. By then she was working as a cook in a lumbering operation that supplied timbers to the silver mine in Virginia City.

George, then a teenager, contracted a mail delivery route out of Washoe. Not being able to afford a horse, he walked his route, 15 miles out and 15 miles back. He was a short man, with big feet (size 12) which he attributed to his 30 mile per day walk. I still remember him as an old man walking to town and back carrying groceries in an old cotton flour sack. The Peckham homestead was about 5 miles from the Reno Post Office.

I should mention that George's mother, the widow Carolina S. Peckham did find a second husband in Nevada--Judge Norcross. As George's stepfather, he helped George set up the Peckham farm where George raised 6 of his 7 children (one boy died in infancy). I, George Joseph Peckham, son of Alfred Rufus Peekham, grew up on another farm about 1 mile away down Peckham Lane (now a 6-lane highway in Reno). A great place and a great time to grow up.

Reminiscences of an Active Life
by George Edward Peckham with Illustrations

'The writer of this sketch was born in Pall River, Massachusetts, on March 8, 1851. His father and a younger sister died of cholera in September, 1855. The cholera was an epidemic and invariably' fatal. The mayor of the city and his three daughters were all well at noon and all took the cholera in the afternoon and were dead and buried before dark the same day. As soon as a case of cholera was reported, a box, a horse and wagon were sent to the place and as soon as the patient died he was put in the box and rushed with all possible speed to the graveyard and buried as quickly possible.

My mother, an older sister and I left Fall River in August, 1860, bound for San Francisco by way of New York City and the Isthmus of Panama. When the boat was off Cape Hatteras a fierce wind was raging which at times was quite gusty, with many hats being blown overboard. There was also an epidemic of sea — sickness. Many of the passengers tried to reach the outside rail of the boat in time to prevent soiling the deck. One elderly man succeeded in reaching the goal and., with, one hand grasping the outside rail of the boat while the other hand was pressed against his stomach, a gust of wind lifted his hat and wig high in the air and both were blown far from the ship out into the ocean. Before he had time to rea1ie his misfortune, his stomach gave a heave which loosened his false teeth and they with a large share of the contents of his stomach also went overboard, end when he turned his face away from the water towards the passengers on-the boat- it had' such an expression of agony and hopeless despair as to make a lasting impression on the memory of those who witnessed it.

We crossed the Isthmus of Panama by rail and took another boat near Panama City and arrived in San Francisco about two weeks later. I was the only one of the family that was not seasick on the boat, but my strenuous appetite and. overeating whi1eo the journey made me pay dearly for it, for when we landed in San Francisco, I covered with many boils.

We put up at the Niantic hotel on Sanaome street and on the following day Viflias Vanderslice, a cousin, came to see me and to take me for a long walk to see tho sights of the city. I resided in San Francisco from September 15, 1860 until - March, 1863, and attended the Denman Graar school on Bush street. Is March. 1865, we moved to a ranch about five miles from Danville and in a southeasterly direction from 1oimt Diablo. It was an ideal place for a city boy twelve years of age to get his first' lesson in farming. I wave wearing a number ten boot or shoe before I was thirteen years old.

Jack Card who was in the saw mill business, at Galena in Vashoe county, Nevada, engaged my Mother to go to Galena to cook for his mill crew at double the pay she was getting on the farm. We left the ranch the latter part of March 1864.

John Britton $^8$ Peckham

John B. $^8$ Peckham was born in Indiana in 1851, In 1854 his father Alexander bought land in Wisconsin near what is now Bloom City, Wisconsin. The following year, Alexander moved his family to Wisconsin where John B. and his brother Rollin and two sisters grew up.

John B. was supposedly a Methodist minister and a blacksmith living on a farm within sight of the cemetery at Bloom City where his father and mother, Jemima, are buried.

Note: The stone marking the graves of Alexander and Jemima is still there (1990) in the Bloom City Cemetery providing names, dates and ages. The Cemetery overlooks the beautiful valley where John B. grew up on his father's farm and the tiny town of Bloom City as well.

At the time of John's death he was living in Mauston, Wisconsin and his father, Alexander, lived on the farm at Bloom City, Wisconsin, about 50 miles away. On the day that Alexander died, John B.$^8$ received the message and he and his wife Alice and son Earl left for the funeral in their carriage. They stopped by the field where Earl's brother was plowing, and explained that they were going to Grandfather's funeral.

After the funeral, on their way home, their horse became ill. They put him in a stable, and rented a room in Wonewoc (a town about mid-way between Bloom City and Mauston). Shortly after checking in to the hotel they received word that the horse had died. John B. said to his wife and son "Well, I guess we don't have to feed him any longer." Just hours later, John B. died of a heart attack, three days after the death of his father! His wife Alice married again (Williams) and they had a small grocery store near Richland Center, Wisconsin.

"L. E." was born the day President Lincoln was inaugurated for his first term of the Presidency. After attending the Bloom City Schools, Luther ran a store in the village of Bloom City and studied theology in his spare time.

In 1892 Luther was admitted to the Western Wisconsin Methodist Conference and was assigned the Chaseburg Church. Subsequently he served at Springville, Melrose, Louisville, Soldiers Grove, Lindsey, Babock, Ironton and Sextonville, he was made an elder in 1897 and served the Western Wisconsin Methodist Conference for 37 years.

Following a serious automobile accident, Luther officially retired in 1929 and enjoyed 18 years of semi-retirement. Luther had a pastoral heart and was often called upon to counsel and pray with the sick and bereaved. He was a man long on compassion, love and goodwill and was a faithful minister, obedient to his calling.

While Luther experienced much heartbreak in the loss of two wives and of a child, he maintained a devoted confidence in the goodness of God. In retirement I remodeled a home and improved many of the buildings on a farm occupied by his son, Leo.

He was an active, energetic man, who, at the age of 80, was observed running. He was a person of high morals who clung to the values of integrity and fairness, which he communicated and shared. He was a devoted husband, a loving father and grandfather, and had a host of friends.

She graduated from the Wisconsin Rapids High School in 1907, the LaCrosse State Normal (1912) and Lawrence College, Appleton, Wisconsin (1915). She taught country school in Vernon County (1910) and Gilmanton High School (1913). In November 1915, she sailed for Japan under the auspices of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church.

In 1917, after a year of language study, she was appointed to an education role In Kwassui High School and College in Nagasaki, Japan. While on furlough in 1922-23, she received her M.A. degree from the University of Wisconsin.

Upon returning to Japan in 1923, she taught, served as treasurer, and, for two years, served as principle of Kwassui where she carried major responsibility for a building program.

Following her next furlough, at which time she studied at Garrett Theological Seminary, she returned to Japan to serve as acting principle of Fukuoka J. Gakuin (1930-31), taught at Kwassui, and served as treasurer of Women's Foreign Missionary Society (1932-35).

Returning to the U.S. in 1935-37 she served one year as treasurer pro-tem for the Women's Foreign Missionary Society in the U.S. In 1937 under war clouds she returned to Japan to serve as treasurer of Methodist work in Japan. Because of the deteriorating Japanese and U.S. relations, she returned to the United States and served as Office Manager for the Methodist Headquarters at 150 Fifth Avenue, New York until 1947 at which time she resigned to return to Sextonville to care for her aging parents, both of whom died that year. In 1948 she was invited back to Japan to become president of the newly organized Kwassui Junior College. In 1953 Caroline Peckham was given an Imperial decoration, the Fourth Order of the Sacred Crown, was bestowed upon her. She felt the most meaningful honor was that of being made Honorary Citizen of Nagasaki. She was the second to receive the honor, the first having been a beloved doctor who died of the effects of the atomic bomb.

In 1958-59, she settled in Richland Center to be near her invalid brother, Leo, who died September 2, 1959.

On invitation of the International Christian University of Tokyo, Japan, she flew in 1960 to Japan to become acting Vice-President for Financial Affairs in which capacity she served for three years.

In 1963 she returned to Richland Center, then to New York City where she was united in marriage to her long time friend and co-missionary, Dr. Charles Iglehart.

Dr. and Mrs. Iglehart resided in Dunedin, Florida where he died in 1969. Caroline suffered a stroke in 1980 and moved to a skilled nursing area at Otterbein Home, Lebanon, Ohio to be near her nephew, Dr. Charles W. Peckham Sr. She died two years later.

She was a vivacious and enthusiastic woman who made an outstanding contribution to her fellow human beings. As a devoted Christian, she loved much, served much, endured much, constantly reaching out in love to others who found joy in returning that love. Hers was a beautiful, self-giving life which inspired many.

Hugh married Matilda Ferguson, sister of Charles, Frank and James Ferguson. (Frank was father of Rose Armstrong). One daughter, Carrie Peckham Oldenburg, was born to this marriage. Mrs. Peckham died four years after Carries birth, of tuberculosis. Grandmother Mary and Levi R. Peckham raised Carrie on the farm after her mother died. He built and established the Gillingham Cheese Factory, one of the first in the area. When he moved to Richland Center, having raised sheep for many years, he bought and sold wool. ### Levi R. (Grant) Peckham

"Up in the town of Marshall lives Levi Peckham but everybody knows him as Grant Peckham and so from now on we will call him Grant so that his name will not be confused with Levi, which was the name of his father. Mr. Peckham was born in Civil War days and given the name of Levi after his father. An uncle began calling him Grant and the name stuck. Mr. Peckham now says that the uncle might have thought if the babe was named Grant he might some day become president of the United States. "But shucks," said Mr. Peckham, "I didn't get higher than pathmaster." We however learned that he served on the town board and for twenty-one years was a member of the school board in his district. From "Richland Observer" 1941 written by Steve Fogo.

Charles Henry Peckham Sr.

He was born on May 11, 1833, and died on July 21, 1907. Mr. Peckham was a prominent character in agricultural circles in Rhode Island during two generations. He was reared on the ancestral farm in North Scituate. He first became prominent in reference to the State Fairs and performed signal service for the agricultural and industrial interests of the state by giving time and ability which he devoted to the fairs, which were held in Narragansett Park, and by the part which, as a legislator, he had in the utilization of federal aid in the establishing of a state agricultural school, which later became the Rhode Island College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts. For nineteen years he served continuously; and until his death, either as a member or as secretary of the Board of State Charities and Corrections.

When twenty years of age he went to Providence and became bookkeeper to the Bank of America. Later he entered the employ of Dutee, Arnold and Co., of which firm in time he became a member. In 1892 he became a member of the firm of Spicer and Peckham, stove manufacturers, with which he was connected for over thirty-five years. His legislative career lasted three years, 1885 and 1886 he represented Scituate in the lower house, and from 1886 to 1888 he was a member of the Senate. In the Senate he was Chairman of the Committee of Corporations for a year, and on the Committee of Corporations for two years. In politics he was a Democrat. He was for eleven years President of the Rhode Island Society for the Encouragement of Domestic Industry, which later was the Rhode Island Fair Association. Under his management the finances of the Society were very prosperous.

Mr Peckham was twice married. Feb 27, 1861, he married miss Cecilia Spicer, daughter of George T. Spicer of Providence, R.I., who died Sept 27, 1893. His second wife was Miss Abbie May of Providence. They were married June 8, 1897.

Charles Henry Peckham Sr.

Charles Henry Peckham, son of Abner W., was born in North Scituate, May 11, 1833. He attended public schools of his native town, and finished his education at Fruit Hill Seminary in North Providence. When about 20 years of age, he became a clerk in the Bank of America in Providence, where he remained several years. He then entered the employ of Dutee Arnold & Co., of which firm he in time became a member. In 1862 he engaged in the manufacture of stoves under the firm name of Spicer & Peckham. This he continued for thirty-two years, and the firm was long known as one of the leading houses in its line in Rhode Island. Mr. Peckham early manifested an interest in political affairs in his city and state, and was elected a member of the Legislature in 1885, serving three terms in the House and in the Senate, the former in 1885, and the latter in 1886-1888. In the Senate he was chairman of the committee on Corporations for one year, and of the committee on Finance for two years. For eleven years, he was the president of the Rhode Island Society for the Encouragement of Domestic Industry, now the Rhode Island State Fair Association, and under the executive management of the finances of the society by Mr. Peckham, an annual loss of some eighteen hundred dollars was changed to a profit of from fifteen to sixteen thousand per year. Mr. Peckham was also largely instrumental in the founding of the State Agriculture College. While in the Legislature he introduced a resolution making inquiry as to the Hatch fund, providing aid for such institutions, was appointed chairman of the committee of inquiry, and afterward was made chairman of the committee on locating the school. In 1888, he was appointed a member of the board of State Charities and Corrections, and on May 22, 1892, was made secretary and purchasing agent, which position he continued to hold to the date of his death. In politics, he was a Democrat, but in later years was independent in political views.

On Feb 27, 1862, Mr. Peckham married Miss Cecilia S. Spicer, daughter of George T. Spicer, of Providence. She died in 1892. In 1897, Mr. Peckham married Miss Abbie May, daughter of Thomas and Eliza (Smith) May, of East Greenwich, R.I., and they had one son, Charles H. Peckham Jr. born Oct 14, 1899.

Mr. Peckham's death occurred after a somewhat extended illness, Sunday, July 21, 1907, at Higgins Beach, Maine, to which place he had gone but a few days previously in the hope of benefiting his health. Interment was made at North Scituate. Mr. Peckham, by force of his own personality, rose to a position high in the estimation of his fellow men, and his death was sincerely mourned by a wide circle of friends. His every undertaking in life was successful through his untiring energy, his careful mastery of detail, coupled with an ability to foresee results. Morally his life was clean, and his integrity was unquestioned. In his public life he was regarded as an honest and incorruptible official.

Recollections by Charles Henry Peckham III

Charles$^8$ H. Peckham Sr.

Charles Peckham$^8$ Sr. died in 1907, when my father was nine years old, so the things that he remembered were the memories of a young man only. The family home was the farm in No. Scituate, R.I. and was evidently still a working farm, with crops, animals, etc. One of the things that was important was the horses that were raised, and shown at various fairs. (I think that the terminology of today would say that the senior Mr. Peckham was a "gentleman farmer" as his other jobs and political career from the above description would not indicate much spare time.) The farm was, from other records, called Elm Cliff Farm and was one hundred and sixteen acres in size at the turn of the century. My Dad used to mention that his father went to work at the state capitol in Providence in a horse drawn trolley car.

The provisions of the senior Peckham's will (listed in the Will Section in full) divided the farm equally between Charles9 and his mother, Abbie May Peckham. Evidently managing the farm without outside income was too much for my grandmother (Abbie May Peckham) , as she petitioned the Probate Court Mar 14, 1912, to sell the 1/2 interest owned by my father (the provisions of the will divided the farm equally between my Grandmother and My Father), the purpose stated to improve the income derived from the investment represented. This request was approved by the Court, and the farm sold sometime after that. Abbie went to work as an administrator in a hospital for mental patients, and evidently had quarters in the building. My Father spent much of his time as a young man with "Aunt Myra" (Myra May Peckham, Abbie's sister). Uncle George and Aunt Myra had a small farm, ten acres or so, that had been part of the larger family farm, and raised chickens.

I don't think that my Father remembered his childhood as an altogether good time; losing his father when he was so young, living away from his mother a good part of the time in a boarding home. One positive thing that came out of this time; the man in charge of the mental hospital where my grandmother worked was a doctor, and I guess sort of a father figure to my Dad. He always said that this man, whose name I can't recall, was instrumental in his decision to become a doctor. It was a career that he enjoyed immensely, and I think he was very good at it. He was a good man; kind, loving, generous and respected by all who knew him.

A footnote added by my wife, Stuart Hooper Peckham:- My Mother described him as "a man of devastating charm". He would have relished that. Modestly.

Biographical Sketch of Lillian$^8$ Peckham Franke

by her daughter, Kathryn$^9$ Nelson

Our mother, Lillian $^8$ Peckham Franke, was the daughter of Johns Irvin Peckham and the great great great granddaughter of Lt. Prince$^4$ Peckham (by his second wife) who fought in the Revolutionary War. Past her 90th birthday, she still lives alone in the house she and George built in the '40s, and is doing quite well, thank you! A professional dressmaker back in the flapper days, she loves sewing. I often wonder how many thousands of children's clothes she has made. She still makes quilts, specializing in baby quilts now because they are easier to handle. She keeps her family supplied with good-looking kitchen towels and pot holders too. She is kind of shy among strangers, even Peckham strangers, but she is well versed in her family background. Has the old family Bible—she even made some of the entries for her grandfather when she was a child. Her grandfather, Pardons Lawrence Peckham, and his father, Pardons Aldon Peckham, walked to Sun Prairie, Wisconsin (even before it was Sun Prairie) from Milwaukee, having taken a boat from New York to Milwaukee. They liked the area and staked out a claim to property there. They set up farms on what are now Highway 19 and Pierceville Road, still called Peckham Corners. The schoolhouse that she attended is still down the road, but it has been made into a private home now, and the old folks are buried in the old Pierceville Cemetery. The stones tell us the dates and where they came from, and it matches the writing in the Bible. John Peckham, son to Pardons Lawrence, and father to Lillian, after the death of wife Nellie, farmed in New York for a while (shipping his farm equipment and animals by train). He had some newfangled equipment that they hadn't even seen out there! Lillie spent lots of years following the plow on foot in her childhood days at Peckham's Corners. After the death of her mother when she was just thirteen, she took over the housekeeping, taking care of her sisters and helping John farm. He had one of the first cars in the area, and he had a camera, so he was a popular man at weddings, and sometimes funerals. There was a lot of family fun and visiting. And this is something she has taught her own family. This special lady has hundreds of friends and family, some relatives, but all family. She's Mom and Grandma to a lot of people. Her grandchildren call her from Texas, Florida, Missouri, Arizona and Germany just for a chance to chat with Grandma. Everybody wants a piece of her love, and everybody has it. She has enough mischief on all of us to be able to share stories and laughs any time we take the time to sit with her and visit. She keeps us busy picking up new books at all the garage sales. She loves to read and has given up driving, so she has to depend on helpers. She could write her own book if she would. I tried to talk her into it. She wondered who would read it. We all would. Lillian$^8$ loves life. Thank God she can still get around, although it is pretty tiring to walk nowadays. But it doesn't take her long to grab her purse and go along when it's family visiting time.

Autobiography of Kathryn Caroline$^9$ Franke Nelson

Kathryn Caroline$^9$ Franke (Nelson) was born to Lillian Peckham Franke and George Anton Franke on Yom Kipper on September 14, 1924 to the sound of firecrackers from the residential area around St Mary's Hospital in Madison, Wisconsin.

I was the second of three children with a brother, Walter George, who was five years older and another brother, Paul Henry, born five years later. We moved about the State in the early years and then settled in Madison.

Though the depression made changes for our parents, we children never knew about it. We thought it was great fun taking orders and delivering doll-headed door stops that mom and dad made evenings. Mom was a dressmaker, so we were well dressed.

The sisters were good to me at St. Bernard's parochial school in Madison. Piano lessons came during grade school and accordion lessons followed during my teen years.

Summer vacations were fun. If my parents knew where we were headed on our yearly two week trips they made our destinations a surprise to us, and we loved it. Little cabins along the road preceded today's motels, and instant foods were new then. We really felt like "high-classed" travelers.

I graduated from Madison East High school in 1942 with all my classmates disappearing into the war, and my brother Walter enlisting in the Navy. My life changed too. I met my future husband that year just as he was also enlisting in the Navy, but we were not to be joined in marriage until 1950.

Like the rest of the Madison girls who were looking for something to join, I worked at the USO entertaining servicemen and bought war bonds. I worked during the day time in an insurance office and at night at the RMR Corporation in war-related work, trying to be patriotic.

In my twenties I did secretarial work for the Dean of the School of Engineering at the University of Wisconsin. With post-war jobs outnumbering the available engineers, I had the privilege of setting up a job-placement office for new engineering graduates, arranging interviews, providing companies with pictures and qualifications of men interested in their-jobs. - After the war ended, we included engineering alumni who were looking for jobs again, mailing lists of current jobs to help them get back into industry.

I am presently (1988) employed by the Postal Service and it tickles me to see current issues of my old 1945 job opportunity lists still going through the mail!

In 1950 I married Richard James Nelson of Madison, Wisconsin, and three years later our first daughter was born. Within nine years we produced three more daughters and two sons. We had a good life, moved to a farm and accumulated pets of all kinds. We had ponies, horses, calves, pigs, lambs, cats, chickens, ducks, and a whole parade of snow white geese. Richard kept his Navy Chief Machinist Mate Rating, chalking up 32 years of Navy duty, regular and reserve, until his retirement in 1985. He has also retired from active work, and while we are not together anymore, he still has a farm, to the delight of our three grandchildren. Livestock consists of horses, cats, chickens, and the parade of geese!

We traveled quite a bit through the years, and still do. Richard enjoys fishing in Texas during the winter months, and I bought myself a motorhome and like nothing better than using it during my vacations from the US Post Office. I have been to both coasts, and my favorite trips include visits with my children and grandchildren.

Daughter Susan and her husband, Stu Thomas, have an eight year old, Mathias Joseph Thomas III and six year old Kara Sue Thomas. They live in Mesa, Arizona, and are currently building a home there.

Daughter Nancy and her husband Darryl Massey have one daughter, Malissa Louise, who is four years old. I have visited them when they lived in New York, but now they are in Germany, where Darryl is employed by Beechcraft Military Aircraft to work at an American Air Base. Nancy is also employed at the military base as a nursery school teacher. Two of my daughters, Holly JoAnne and Bonnie Marie currently live with me, and my two sons, Timothy John and Rodney George live in nearby towns. I am lucky instill having my ninety year old mother to share my family with. I have my own home with a dog and a cat, and after I retire from work I expect there will be lots of places to visit. I have always enjoyed fishing, hunting, reading, music of all kinds, and I don't expect to ever become bored!

David $^8$ Ray Peckham

David Ray $^8$ Peckham was born in Deansville, Wisconsin. It was apparently the custom of the men in the family to use their middle names and so he was known as Ray, just as his older brother, James Victor was known as Victor and his younger brother James Oakley was known as Oakley. Like his father, he became an expert stone mason, bricklayer and plasterer. Before moving to Madison, Wisconsin, he built many buildings around Dane county and as far away as Escanaba and Iron Mountain, Michigan where he constructed buildings for the Ford Motor Company.

Ray Peckham subdivided North Gardens and built the first modern buildings there around the junction of North Street and Commercial Avenue. The depression forced him to sell in 1929.

Ray formed Peckham and Sons with Adelbert Erwin and Harold Ray, a successful business which, in later years, became Peckham Brothers.

Retrospect

When I was a youngster on my fathers' farm, working the soil with a team of mules or horses, and walking behind a plow, harrow or cultivator, I used to wander about—and among them—family manes—how they came about –the name Peckham—its significance and origin—when it came to America. I had been informed by my father that our name was of English origin. A lot of research has been done of the family in recent years, and these records and our family tradition must be kept, and handed down to our posterity.

The age of heraldry is past, but the continued stimulus to the descendants of those who bore arms, should remain with us and imbue us with a desire and ambition to keep our family traditions. But the age of chivalry is not departed, and in the march of time and progress let us uphold our legacies of the centuries past, and may we let the motto which has thrilled the lives of our ancestors past, sink deeply into our hearts.

Sir Henry Burke once profoundly remarked that a man who is not proud of his ancestry will never leave after him anything for which his posterity will be proud.

We are proud of our ancestry and of our heritage, and it is up to us to keep our family traditions that have been kept so long for us, and we will hand them down to our posterity, so that our legacies will not be lost in the rapid flight of time.

Benjamin[9] Miller and Ann Faherty Peckham

Benjamin[9] Miller Peckham, Professor and Chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, University of Wisconsin Medical School and Hospitals, had held this office for 28 years, the longest of any Chairman of Obstetrics and Gynecology in the United States, at the time he retired in 1984 and, subsequently, began work on this genealogy.

Born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, at St. Mary's Hospital, he was the third of three sons of Mary8 Peckham and John William Gross who subsequently had two daughters, one of whom was adopted at the age of four.

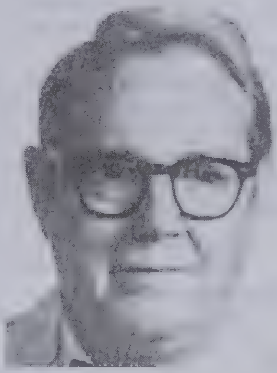
Dr. Peckham's life was heavily influenced by his scholarly mother and grandmother. Both were graduates of Vassar College, the later with a Masters Degree, an unusual accomplishment for the time. His maternal grandfather, Professor George Williams[7] Peckham, who had died two years before he was born, was a graduate of medicine and law. A distinguished figure in education, the University of Wisconsin conferred upon him an Honorary Doctor of Laws degree (LL.D) in 1895. For Ben Peckham, he became a role model through the considerable influence of Elizabeth Peckham, George Williams Peckham's wife. "Ganna" lived with the Gross family after her husband's death in 1914 until she died in 1940 with her remarkable intellect intact at the age of 95.

During the primary and secondary school years Dr. Peckham's major interest was in music. He played the violin from the age of five becoming the assistant concert master in an 80 piece high school orchestra and winning the Milwaukee Civic Music Medal in 1933. While working for his B.S. degree at the University of Wisconsin, his grandmother suggested that, as his goals were in medicine, he might like to assume the Peckham name as she otherwise would become the last of the Peckham line. After a short family conference it was decided that the five Gross children would become four and Benjamin Gross would legally become Benjamin Peckham. The change was accomplished on August 13, 1938.

Dr. Peckham received his B.S. with honors at Wisconsin and, after two years of medicine there and two at Northwestern, his B.M. and M.D. degrees at Northwestern in 1941-42. After his internship at St.

Luke's Hospital in Cleveland, Ohio, he entered the US Navy Medical Corps Reserve. Shortly after his induction into the Navy he was introduced by his mother's cousin, Dr. Sanford R. Gifford, to Ann Faherty with marriage in mind! They were married on August 26, 1943, in her family home in Chicago.

In January 1944 he began a tour of combat duty in the Pacific with the 4th Marine Division which landed on the islands of Roi and Namur in the Marshall Islands, Saipan and Tinian in the Marianas, and on Iwo Jima, 758 miles from Tokyo. The war ended on V-J day in 1945 as the Division prepared for a landing on the Japanese home islands. He was awarded the Purple Heart and Bronze Star Medals and ended his service with the rank of Lt. Commander.



Reunited with Ann they returned to Chicago in the fall of 1945, he to enter graduate school, do research, and to teach Physiology at Northwestern University, and she to begin raising their family. Mary10 Eliza was born in August of 1946 and Roger[10] Sanford in August 1948. In that year, having finished his thesis for the Masters degree, Dr. Peckham began residency training in Obstetrics and Gynecology while continuing to work part time on research towards his Ph.D. in Physiology. He completed the Residency and received the Ph.D. simultaneously in mid 1950. He then became a part time faculty member in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Northwestern University where he continued his research in endocrinology and gynecologic pathology and taught in the Medical school while engaging in private practice.

In 1953 Gardner[10] Greene was born, just after the family moved to the Chicago suburb of Evanston, Illinois. Here, an hour by car from his office, the hospital, and his laboratory in down-town Chicago, he pursued his solo practice, delivering 15 to 20 babies each month and spending as much as three to four hours driving back and forth both by day and night. It was enough to produce ulcers, which it did.

Fortunately, in 1956 he was selected Professor and Chairman at the University of Wisconsin in Madison where he moved with his wife and family in 1956. Their home was just 10 minutes from his office and the hospital!

In the next twenty-eight years he led a department that grew from just three full time faculty with nine resident physicians in training, which had to send its residents to Chicago for part of their training, to a Department of four Divisions with 11 to 12 full time faculty and a part time faculty of 12 to 15 specialists in private practice. The Departments 20 residents in training were based in three of the four hospitals in Madison. The full time faculty was heavily involved in clinical and laboratory research with facilities in the Medical School, the University and, Madison General Hospitals.

Dr. Peckham served on both the Study Section and the Council of the Institute of Child Health and Human Development of The National Institutes of Health and served as an Examiner for The American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology for more than 20 years. He was elected to the Presidency of the American Gynecological Society and the Association of Professors of Gynecology and Obstetrics. During this time he published 64 scientific papers and acted as co-author and co-editor of a text on differential diagnosis.

Over these years Ann Peckham, in addition to managing the family's primary and secondary school years, became widely known in state and local politics as a leader in Republican affairs. Active at the national, state, and county levels, she served as Vice Chairman of the State Republican Party. In the 1980 Republican Presidential Primary, she ran John Anderson's bid for the Presidency in the State of Wisconsin.

She has served and continues to serve as a member of the Board of Directors of many organizations including the Madison Board of the Children's Service Society of Wisconsin, The Wisconsin Academy of Sciences, Arts, and Letters, and The Republican Women of Dane Co.

Her skills in the direction and participation in volunteer and social affairs in the Department, the Health Sciences Center, and University Hospital and in the community, did much for the solidarity and success of these ventures and of her husband's administrative efforts.

In retirement Dr. Peckham has turned to genealogy and computer preparation of this volume, lapidary work and the design and construction of fine jewelry. Both like to travel, particularly by means of the family motor home.

Dr. Ben M. Peckham, who served for 27 years as the chair of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, died Tuesday of complications following heart surgery.

Dr. Dolores Buckler, a professor in obstetrics and gynecology, said Dr. Peckham, 78, was "a creative man with a lot of foresight."

Dr. Peckham was a former chief of obstetrics and gynecology at University Hospital and Clinics

Coretta Thomas, an administrator in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, worked for Peckham from 1966 until he retired in 1983. "He was a pretty important researcher but his forte was his teaching," Thomas said today. "He received a number of awards."

Dr. Peckham was a man with red hair and at times a fiery temper, she said. But he was someone who would always listen.

"He was marvelous to work for and a caring person," Thomas said.

He was also known for his support of Planned Parenthood and for being an accomplished jewelry designer.

He received his undergraduate degree from the U.W. in 1939, and his training as a doctor from Northwestern University.

Charles Henry Peckham

Written by Nancy Prottsman

Charles Henry Peckham was born August 6th, 1881 at Palmyra, Nebraska. He was the son of Gustavus and Rebecca Jane (Pearl) Peckham. Charles married Sarah Naomi Hart, daughter of James Phillip and Nancy Leona (Robinson) Hart on February 26th, 1913 at Lincoln, Nebraska. All of their children were born near Palmyra and Eagle, NE. The family moved to western Nebraska to the Champion, NE area around 1925. Charles Henry died September 28, 1933 and he is buried at the Crete Cemetery near Champion, NE.

Shortly after moving to western Nebraska Charles's wife, Sarah was thrown from a horse and received a compound fracture of the right leg. She was taken to the Imperial hospital and transported on to a hospital in Omaha. During Sarah's hospitalization the family was prepared for the worst, as it was not thought she would recover from such an injury. Amputation of Sarah's leg was necessary. A neighbor of the family, Lizzie Sprague, told me that five dresses were sown for the little girls to wear to a probable funeral. Sarah being of strong religious faith said" I will recovr and return to raise my children". Sarah did recover and after using a very cumbersome wooden leg for a time she eventually went to just using a crutch. She did return home and raised her children.

The third daughter, Alice died in April 1930 of pneumonia at the age of twelve. Through out my entire life I have no other memories other than my mother, uncle and aunts remembering her in conversation in a very loving way.

The family moved south of the highway near Champion, NE. Along with my mother, Shirley Marie (Peckham) Fisher we visit the old home place in the mid 1970's. The house is still standing. It was a brick one-room house (back then rooms were divided by blankets). The house was located on top of a hill with a creek just down below the house. As mother walked the grounds she spoke of the fruit trees which her father had planted along the south west side of the creek. Mother said they got their water from a spring just down the hill from the house. The trip to the old home place brought back many happy memories and many sad ones as well. A story mother always told was when she was a little girl and having black hair and dark eyes her mother, Sarah would always hide her when rumors hit the neighborhood that the gypsies were in the area. Her mother feared the gypsies would kidnap her. The gypsies traveled in wagons and would camp along the creeks in the area. Needless to say mother was never kidnapped by the gypsies but loved to tell the story.

Interviewing Bonnie (Peckham) Holtzman in 2002 she recalled memories of her father, Charles Henry. She remembered him as a very kind and gentle man. He never disciplined the children. Discipline was left to mother, Sarah, which she did quite well with her one good leg and her crutch. Bonnie said when she was very young she loved for her father to brush her hair. He was so gentle and it hurt when mother combed her hair.

After Charles Henry passed away September 28th, 1933 times were quite hard for the family. Sarah Naoma remarried to Charlie Brubaker in 1940 and they lived most of their lives in Simi and Hemet, California.

Eben, the youngest son of Charles and Sarah Naoma Peckham graduate from Imperial High school in 1940. In 1941, he entered the military from Holyoke, Phillips County, Colorado. It was at the home of Francis and Shirley Fisher that Eben changed from his pinned stripped suit into his army uniform as he left to serve his country. This pen stripped suit coat hung in mother's closet most all the years she was alive. It was when mother moved that we ran across the suit coat and mother told the story of how long it had been in her closet. Eben was killed in action April 15, 1945 while serving in Italy. His body is interrened in a Military Cemetery at Florence, Italy. Eben was married to Betty while in the military but they had no children. After his death she moved from Holyoke to Moorpark, California to stay with her parents. A copy of the death notification letter to Eben's wife, Betty dated May 18, 1945 is included in this information.

In November, 1991 after Shirley's grandson, Rick Prottsman returned to Seattle after being home on leave from the Navy she told why she always left our home before he left. She said, "I just cannot watch him leave" She always made a point of leaving before he did and it was then that I knew why. She always shed tears when she left. Mother was remembering another loved one (brother, Eben) who left and never returned. Grandson Rick Prottsman served four years from 1989 to 1992 in the Navy on the combat supply ship the "USS CAMDEN" which included duty in the Persian Gulf War. As a parent of a service man during the Gulf War a telephone number was available to call for updates on where the ship was during that time. Although I'm certain there was a time delay of events we were told the exact day and time the USS CAMDEN entered the Persian Gulf. The 1990's were a new age in news coverage. Twenty-four hour news coverage via live feed could be seen on CNN.

Looking back to 1945 and World War II when Eben was stationed in Italy time must have seemed forever waiting for a letter from loved ones. A few of Shirley's letters to and from Eben N. Peckham are being shared in this family history. Eben lost his life in combat on April 15th, 1945.

Rolland $^9$ Elton Peckham

by John $^{10}$ Peckham

Dad was born in Richland County, Wisconsin, of pioneer stock. The Peckhams came to the new world before the Revolutionary War and this branch ended up in Wisconsin via Rhode Island, Ohio, and Indiana. They were a deeply religious group and Dad had many near relatives serve in the ministry. His uncle was an ordained minister and his father, John B.8 Peckham was a lay minister.

His father died when he was 15 years old, of a heart attack, suffered on the way home from his father's funeral. The oldest of four children, the responsibility of the household became Dad's. The obituary will tell you that he was, by profession, a farmer. I want to point out the difference between that designation as it applied to him, and the understanding of the term today.

When Dad attempted to wrench a living for himself, his mother and three brothers from the sandy soil of Juneau County, he was concerned with survival. With the very minimum of resources there had to be accumulated enough vegetables and root crops that could be preserved to last through the winter, along with sufficient fodder to keep the farm animals producing until the grass got green in the spring. After he married and the children began arriving, the only thing that changed was the location of the marginal farms on which he toiled (the Town of Lemonweir, Wisconsin). When he gambled on improving his lot by purchasing 80 acres of cut-over land in Hannibal in Taylor County, Wisconsin in 1920, he had a wife and four children, six cows and a team of horses. He cut tamarack logs from the back forty and built a minimal dwelling. He grubbed out enough stumps to plant a garden and threw together a shelter for the animals. He hand dug a well. He would never succeed in improving these buildings very much, though he did eventually buy and install a pump.

Farm: Every acre he brought under cultivation was blasted clear of stumps and picked free of rocks. He got his hay wherever it became available, most of it cut by scythe, hand raked and stored in outdoor stacks on the scene, Winter weekends, no matter the weather, were spent hauling hay to the cattle and horses by bob-sled, usually a journey of several miles. Because of the short growing season, grain seldom ripened so that necessity, along with food for the family, was purchased "on time". To cover the cost he worked in the woods. Six days a week he set out before dawn (but after morning chores) with team and sled to salvage what the lumbering interests had left when they cut the pine from the surrounding countryside. He bought "stumpage rights", and, if he had a good year, the ties, saw logs, pulp wood and kiln wood that he hauled to the railroad siding brought in enough cash to pay his bill at the store. When accidents befell him, as was not unusual, he came up short. After eight years he acknowledged defeat, sold everything he had accumulated and took a job in a paper mill in a town, Nekoosa, Wisconsin, that had the high school missing from the earlier location.

With no skills to offer, he got the most menial of positions—shoveling lime from the box cars in which it was shipped to the mill. To his death he bore the scars of the alkaline attack on his legs and feet. When even that kind of employment was denied him by the depression, his natural leadership qualities brought him to the job of managing a crew of men installing curb and gutter, sidewalks and sewer lines on WPA (the Works Progress Administration).

When World War II erupted, the mills were deprived of their usual supply of young men. Dad, then in his middle fifties, applied for work and requested the hardest physical labor, the job of roll plugger on the paper machine. This demanding labor was usually reserved for the strong and ambitious youngster willing to serve this apprenticeship the hard way in order to qualify for the better paying jobs as he worked his way up the ladder to machine tender. Dad took it because the supply of men physically capable of performing the work was hard to find among those of his age. His physical and mental toughness made him a more than adequate replacement for the younger men. When peace brought the ex-soldiers back to their jobs, he worked where ever he found employment. His last job was that of maintenance person at a boy's residence school in Illinois He could, and did perform many of the jobs that needed doing. Besides the carpenter work and plumbing, he worked on, and finally managed, the farm connected with the institution and even substituted for house mother when the high turn over of personnel left a cottage vacant of supervision. These were problem children, mostly from Chicago, and remuneration was minimal, but, because of the boys he stayed on until he was in his seventies. He lived with a widowed brother for a couple of years before coming to Port Washington, Wisconsin.

Dad was fortunate to have a robust health that caused him to question at times his "early retirement". He outlived a daughter and son, both victims of cancer.

Despite his lack of formal education, Dad was well read. He had decided opinions on most things, especially religion. It was, perhaps, unfortunate that he a persistently inquiring mind. In religious matters, it is much more comforting to accept things on faith. This Dad was never able to do and it resulted in schisms with whatever religious leader that he ever encountered. But he could not evade the family religious orientation and spent his entire life trying to find some organized branch with which he could feel comfortable. He never succeeded. Dad was a man with many skills, all of them self taught. He was a consummate woodsman. He was an artist with axe and saw and could, until the last few years, out saw and out chop men much younger than himself. He could work hour after hour with a scythe, laying hay in neat windrows. He could blacksmith (his father's profession) carpenter and do masonry work. He could lay a mortar less stone wall, and almost extinct art in this day and age. Dad was not just "Grampus", although his rapport with children may have been his most endearing quality.

Even if this is in the nature of a eulogy, it would not provide a balanced picture if I did not acknowledge that Dad was not an easy man to live with. His marriage to my mother was a stormy one and ended in divorce when the children were raised. He loved an argument, and it was not easy to always avoid controversy with him. My grandmother said he was always that way and I can testify that he never changed. To the last his eyes flashed that old familiar fire, as he resisted every effort to make him comfortable in a hated environment in his last days. But that was dad.

Note: This detailed description of Rollanc19 Peckham's life was written as a eulogy by his son when Rolland died in 1980 at age 93. John 10 Peckham wanted his children to become acquainted with their grandfather as "whole person," not just an "elderly gentleman who had a way with children." It is reproduced here in it's entirety for it makes touchingly clear how rigorous life could be, even in the first fifty years of the Twentieth Century if one lived and farmed in Wisconsin's rocky, cutover, sand country.

Ellen Pearson Lindbergh Peckham from the Notes of Mary Ann$^{11}$ Peckham

The Peckham descendants of Rolland owe much to Ellen Pearson Lindbergh Peckham, Ellen was 33, eight years older than Rolland$^{9}$ Peckham when she married, bringing with her two children by a previous marriage. In the next nine years Ellen must have led a hard and busy life raising her two, and the four younger children that she bore Rolland on their sandy farm in Juneau County.

Then, in 1920 they accepted the gamble, 80 acres of cut-over land in Taylor County. Ellen was 42 with her first two children grown, and with the youngest of her new family only three. Faced with this new and more primitive life, with no doctors or undertakers in the area, Ellen, a nurse, delivered babies and laid out the dead to supplement what family income Rolland's hard work brought. The eight years that they struggled together to make their homestead work must have been as hard or harder than those of many pioneers who settled the Midwestern states in the 19th Century.

Ellen continued to raise her children even through the depression of the '30s and must have been in here late '50s when they were grown and she and Rolland separated. To her must go much of the credit for the successes of their children and grandchildren.

Isabelle Carmack Peckham

Isabelle Carmack Peckham was born on March 11, 1897 in Harvard, Illinois, the middle child of Lafayette and Helene Carmack. She had an older brother, Herbert, and a younger brother, Charles.

After her father left for Chicago to find work, her mother was unable to maintain the household and placed Isabelle and Charles in the Lake Bluff Orphanage. In 1908, the Samuel Davis' from Bloom City brought Isabelle and Charles to their home on Spangler Ridge in Richland County.

Isabelle graduated from the Carter Elementary School and remained on the Davis farm until Leo Peckham returned from World War I. The couple had become acquainted through the Bloom City Methodist Church and the Peckham-Davis family connection. Leo and Isabelle were married on April 28, 1920 and moved to the farm which Leo, his father, Luther, and brother-in-law, Paul Meyers, had bought from Alexander Wallace, Leo's uncle.

Five children were born to the Peckham's. Margaret Evelyn McIntosh, who was the mother of two daughters and a son. Charles Wesley, who is the father of two daughters and two sons. Samuel Luther, who provided a home for Isabelle after Leo died in 1959, Caroline Irene Marshall who has two daughters and two sons, and Nellie Marie Leaf with two sons and a daughter. Isabelle has 14 Grandchildren, 19 Great-grandchildren, and 2 Great-great-grandchildren. Besides caring for her family, Isabelle enjoyed gardening, canning, cooking and baking. She prided herself on preparing a substantial store of food for winter.

Isabelle enjoyed her friends and relatives and was able to name all their children and recall the birth dates of each. She used the telephone regularly to keep in contact with those who lived locally as well as across the nation.

Isabelle loved the Lord and was a strong supporter of the West Lima United Methodist Church. She worked in her younger years in Ladies Aid, taught children and adults and made sacrificial financial contributions to Christ and the church over the years.

Isabelle took personally and seriously Jesus' summation of the gospel that one should love God with all ones heart and ones neighbor as ones self. With a positive, hopeful faith, she lived out her 94 years with devotion to God, and love for family and friends.

Ten days ago she sang a hymn to family members and declared that she was ready to be transferred to her heavenly home. On March 20, 1991, Isabelle made her final journey. So we celebrate the life of Isabelle Carmack Peckham as we say goodbye to her earthly presence.

God bless each of our personal memories of her and her faith.

O Death where is your sting?
O Death where is your victory?
Thanks be to God!
He gives us victory through
Our Lord, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Leo and Isabelle Peckham

By Samuel Luther Peckham

My father, Leo E. Peckham, served in the 331st field artillery, battery E, in the first World War. During this war the soldiers traveled on foot, horseback and railroad boxcars on the land. He received his basic training in camp Grant Illinois and Camp Robinson, near Sparta, Wisconsin. Their journey from Camp Grant to Camp Robinson, took two weeks to travel 225 miles. This battery E of the 331st field artillery traveled by steam ship from U.S. to England on ship named Lapland and then across the English Channel to France on smaller boats. My father was in France helping to lay telephone lines underground when the Amnesty was signed on November 11, 1918, This army unit returned to the U.S. during January and February 1919 on an Italian ship. The ocean was wavy and rough and many soldiers became sea sick. My father did not like military life due to the evil environment that prevailed smoking, strong drink, gambling, swearing, etc. And he did not like unreasonable orders of the officers. Our heritage has no desire to willfully harm or kill other people.

My father chose dairy farming as his vocation. He purchased a farm here, southeast of the village of West Lima from his uncle, Alexander Wallace (Sandy) in 1913. This purchase was in partnership with his father, Luther E. Peckham and his sister Vera, and her husband, Paul Meyers. This three-way partnership did not last very long as Paul wanted out so he could do carpenter work. He stayed until after my father returned from his military duty.

My father was determined to stay on the farm during those depression years when taxes and interest were very burdensome. We did not live in luxury during those depression years. My father served on the West Lima Grade School Board for more than 20 years. He was a Sunday school superintendent and Sunday school teacher until he suffered a stroke in July 1946. This paralyzing stroke brought an abrupt halt to his farming career and his participation in community affairs and duties. Following a partial recovery he was able to walk and do light work. In September 1956 he suffered another stroke and became dependent upon other people to care for his daily needs.

My mother was loyal to her husband and having given birth to four children in a span of 6 years and 2 days time she stayed home and took good care of us during those depression years. She raised a garden and canned many quarts of fruits and vegetables. She baked bread, pie, cake, cinnamon rolls. She cooked many meals for the family, pastors, evangelists, for men (neighbors) who came to do exchange farm work for threshing oats and silo filling with corn. She heated water on the stove for washing clothes. She had only a wood burning cook stove to use.

My mother was tender hearted and a liberal giver to the local church and to poor people in the community. She taught Sunday school class part time after we had grown a little older.

Autobiographical Sketch

by Samuel Luther Peckham

Samuel Luther Peckham was born October 3, 1925, in the village of West Lima, Richland County, Wisconsin. My parents were Leo E. Peckham and Isabelle Carmack Peckham. My father, Leo E. Peckham was born on August 11, 1894, in the village of Newton, Vernon County, Wisconsin. Isabelle Carmack was born March 11, 1897, in McHenry County near Harvard, Illinois.

My parents were married on April 28, 1920, probably in Mother's foster home on Spangler Ridge, town of Bloom.

We five children were born here in the village of West Lima, Richland County, Wisconsin. My father, Leo E. Peckham, was deceased on September 2, 1959. My sister Margaret was deceased on May 20, 1984. My mother was deceased on March 20, 1991.

I chose to write about some of my experiences in my youth. I was a timid and bashful little boy. We had a few families in the village with children, but I did not go to the neighbor's children to quarrel with them. I stayed at home. My middle sister was close to me and she had similar desires. My oldest sister, Margaret, would do her work first—clean house and her clothes and then she would go with a boy friend or other friends. My brother, Charles W., and my sister, Nellie, had a firm desire for adventure and like to travel and as of this writing are miles away from their native home.

At the age of ten years I took my little red wagon to the wood shed and loaded it up with wood and pulled it up to the house for my mother's wood burning cook stove. And I pumped water from the cistern to help water the cows, with a small pitcher pump. At the age of eleven I started milking cows. We milked the cows with our hands in the good old days. In June of 1937 the little boy ran out to the field where his father was cultivating corn with a team of horses acid he said, Dad, we have electric lights. The man came and put the meter in.

I started to school in September 1931 when Herbert Hoover was President of these United States. We four older brothers and sisters walked only two to three blocks to school during all twelve years that we attended the West Lima grade and high school, all in different rooms in the same building. Nellie had to walk a little over one-half mile to school as we moved to the farm south of West Lima in 1948 for her four years in high school. 1 drove a vehicle to school for her to ride home, part time.

My chosen subjects in school wore Math, English, Agriculture, and American History. My teachers included Miss Becker, Myrtle Cooper, Benice Leonner, and Catherine Marshall in the eight grades. My High School teachers included Curtiss Chitwood, Lila Becktold, Elaine Balsrude, Ray Gilertson, Mr. Scheafer, Maud Anderson, Arthur Leahu, and Theodore Kitzke.

My Lord gave me a plan for my life when I was six years old. I did not know at that time that it was a plan. Secrets are secrets. As you know my marital state is single. I am a human being and desire a companion. Why has my current status continued so long? I do not know. As some of you know I had courtship with two young ladies. After having a few months of courtship with the first one my Lord gave me a negative feeling that He did not plan for me to marry that young lady and I did not continue going with her. A little more than a year and a half later I met Mary Jane Richard. I went to visit her and she refused to have a date with me. She was a clean virtuous young lady. She was a talented lady and started teaching school in a one room rural school at Middle Bear at the age of eighteen. She was self willed but pleasant, lovable and delighted in adding humor to her words.

My Lord led me to her in a quiet peaceful way but the sign changed to a burdensome experience in the fear of God. The Holy Spirit drove me to visit her several times when she did not want to see me during the months of February and March 1947. I was under a heavy load of Spiritual Burdens during this experience in the Fear of God and the Lord demands humility, reverence and absolute obedience, when the Holy Spirit is present by his will of Authority. This experience was two-fold—for a dear companion and to bear a curse for a greater gift of Fruit Bearing Faith to win Precious Souls. Mary was deceased on August 1, 1948.

During these years of time my Lord has helped me through a dark valley of testing and Spiritual chastening. This negative experience began with number eight but I do not know why it lingered so long. These Spiritual burdens have been eased in recent years. Eight of the Ten Commandments are negative laws. Two are positive.

My Lord has led me by Spiritual laws. One law is positive, one law negative, one law is a combination, positive and negative, and one law is repeated.

Memories, Plans, Experiences At Random

The farm one-half mile south of West Lima was purchased March 1, 1944. The buildings were old and no longer usable for dairy farming. In the winter of 1946–1947 logs were cut and skid and a saw mill moved in to saw logs for a barn which was built in the spring and early summer of 1947. My brother, Charles W., helped with the construction of the barn with a few other helpers. In March of 1948 we moved part of the herd of Holstein cows from the barn at West Lima and started to milk these cows at the new location. In May of 1948 we moved household furniture and miscellaneous to the small house and lived in it for two years. During the winter of 1949–1950 more logs were cut and skid and trucked to a saw mill to be sawed for lumber to build a house which was built in 1950. Charles W. helped to build the house with a few other helpers. After my father died September 2, 1959, I took possession of this farm February 1, 1960. My mother lived with me for more than 30 years until she died in March 20, 1991. It was steady employment on the dairy farm working for 50 cents an hour many days. I liked my cows and spent many hours of meditation learning my Lord's plan for my daily duties while milking cows.

Two sheds were built in 1949, a small chicken house in 1956. A barn cleaner was installed in 1959. One pole shed was built in 1960. One silo 18' x 50' was built in 1962. One pole shed was built in 1970. A ten-foot extension was built on top of the 18' x 50' silo in 1970; an addition of 32' was built on the barn in 1965. An 18'x60' silo was built in 1972. A pipeline milker was installed in 1976.

I had only a small herd of cows 25–30 head and 20–25 head of calves and heifers. Alfalfa hay and mixed variety of hay was the principle crop raised on the farm. Corn was planted on a limited acreage of 12–15 acres and usually followed by raising oats and sowing grass seed the next year. I had 100 acres of tillable land. We spent many days building fence, picking rough flint, and some sand rock. After the bigger silos were built between one-half and two-thirds of the first crop of hay was chopped and stored in silos. The remainder was baled in large round bales or small square bales. Most of the second crop of hay was baled in small square bales and stored in the barn for cows. Electric power is necessary for operating a dairy farm.

Jasper$^9$ Levi Peckham

Jasper was born at the Berkie and Grant (Levi "Grant") Peckham home on January 24, 1911. He was an ambitious little fellow, often asking, "Papa, what are we going to do tomorrow?" At the age of seven he was proud to milk seven cows, by hand of course. He remembers the fun of races at the local school and saying the multiplication tables. Also the noon-hour fun, and sliding downhill in the winter at Spring Hill; there was just time for one trip down, each noon.

Jasper loved farming, and in 1930 he had saved enough money to attend the University of Wisconsin Agricultural School Short Course, in Madison, Wisconsin. This was serious and exciting learning. Putting it into action on the home farm was even better, especially growing the new alfalfa.

In 1938 a new school teacher came to the local school. They were attracted to each other, and married. They bought a farm in 1943, reared two lovely daughters, and now are enjoying a special granddaughter.

Jasper served on the neighborhood school and church boards, and the Commission on Aging. In 1960 he served as janitor of the Sextonville School, and later as maintenance supervisor at the Schmitt Woodland Hills Home.

Soon there will be a fiftieth wedding anniversary to celebrate.

Jasper Levi Peckham's Obituary

RICHLAND CENTER - Jasper Levi Peckham, age 83, died peacefully with his family at his side at the Richland Hospital on Thursday, January 5, 1995, after a short illness caused by lung cancer. He was born on January 24, 1911. on Siring Hill in rural Richland County. His parents were Levi Grant and Berkie (Marshall) Peckham. He married the local schoolteacher, Ruth Schoonover, on January 1, 1941,—to start the year out right. Jasper attended the Spring Hill School and later, the University of Wisconsin Short Course program. Jack applied his knowledge to farming, first by raising an astonishingly abundant hay crop on his father's farm, and later by operating a successful dairy and hog farm near Sextonville. In addition to farming, Jack worked at the Schmitt Woodland, Hills for eight years caring for the facilities and assisting the residents. More recently, he and his wife, Ruth, enjoyed retirement with their friends and family. Jack was known throughout the Southwestern Wisconsin area for his integrity, kind nature, quick wit and dry sense of humor. He was a master story teller, teaching others how to be: understanding and kind to others—human and animal; a good, fair and shrewd business person; and wise in the ways they used resources. Hunting, fishing, camping, antique cars, farm machinery, and horses were his hobbies. And, when not joking or enjoying music, he was cutting wood to enjoy in the fireplace and keep his home toasty. He also raised big gardens and harvested large quantities of berries each year. Jack was always concerned about others and willing to lend a hand. He was an active member of the Willow Valley United Methodist Church and its board of trustees. Jasper is survived by his wife, Ruth (Schoonover) Peckham of Sextonville. His children and their immediate families are Lillian Zemlicka, her husband, Kenneth, and daughter, Lauren of Shorewood, Wisconsin, and Carolyn Peckham and her husband, Gerald Kluge of rural Brooklyn, Wisconsin. His surviving brothers are L. Clark Peckham and his wife, Maxine (Van Winter) of Madison, and another brother, Leslie Peckham and wife, Edith (Rigsby) of Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin. He enjoyed a strong and loving relationship with sisters and brothers-in-law and their families, including Betty (Schoonover) and Norbert Nelson of Plain, George and Verna (Long) Schoonover, Byron and Joan (Klingaman) Schoonover, and Stanley and Beverly (Ghastin) Schoonover of Belevidere, Illinois. He is also survived by 15 nieces and nephews. One niece, Joyce (Peckham) Altman was very special because she lived with Jack and Ruth for awhile. Those living closest and enriching his daily life are Nancy (Nelson) and Tom Clary of Bear Valley, Margie (Nelson and Art Simpson of Onalaska, David and Rita (Liska) Nelson of Plain, Larry and Sherry (Huffman) Nelson of Ithaca, and Barbara (Nelson) and Frank Mayfield of Plain. He also enjoyed 15 great-nieces and great-nephews. Preceding him in death were a brother, Harve Marshall Peckham and his wife, Helen (Schuckhart) of Madison; a sister, Evelyn (Peckham) Fink and her husband Ellis of Brooklyn; and his half-sister, Helen (Truesdale) Gilligham and her husband Theron Gilligham. Jasper has been blessed with many wonderful friends and family members who enriched his life. His memory will bring us peace and joy. Services will be held at the Pratt Memorial Chapel in Richland Center on Saturday, January 7, 1995 at 1:00 p.m. with Rev. David Fuller and Rev. Marty Nolet officiating. Burial will be in the Richland Center Cemetery.

Autobiography of Evelyn$^9$ Peckham Fink

"Peckham" originally spelled "Peac Ham" meaning the folks who lived on the hill, describes our family well. My four brothers, a half-sister and I grew upon our scenic-ridge farm in Richland County, Wisconsin. Our grandparents Levi and Mary Clark Peckham carved it out of the wilderness in the early 1850s. In March, 1865 grandfather was conscripted to serve in the Union Army during the Civil War. He was assigned to serve as a scribe for the soldiers, writing letters for those who could not. In May he died of small-pox at Camp Randall, Madison, Wisconsin.

My father, Levi (known as Grant) was only eleven days old when his mother was widowed. She was the mother of a daughter and six sons --the oldest being twelve years old. Their housing was a rude log cabin, which my father replaced with a frame house in 1888, and then enlarged and remodeled when I was born in 1914.

Through the years father kept adding to the original land until he owned quite a large acreage. We have many pleasant memories of our growing-up years there. There was usually something going on. We had cows, horses, sheep, hogs and chickens on our farm. I think the sheep were my father's favorite. On Sunday mornings he would go out into the pastures and call the sheep so he could check on them. He was an astute wheeler-dealer; although he had very little education because he preferred working in the woods to school. (True freedom of choice!) He became highly regarded as a man of integrity and ability by his family, friends and neighbors.

I liked to watch the sheep being shorn of their winter wool in the spring of the year, and the wool made into neat professional bales for the market. Making maple syrup was an exciting time to be in the sugar camp gathering sap and stoking the big open furnace. In late summer the huge steam threshing machine would be with us for a couple of days. Mother had to feed the large crews of twenty-five or thirty hungry men while they were there. They liked her chicken-pies which she often fixed for them. In the spring we picked wildflowers and searched the woods for mushrooms; in June there were wild strawberries and later wild berries of various kinds. In the fall we picked nuts, and gathered apples from orchards scattered throughout the farm. On Memorial Day we took flowers to decorate our ancestor's graves in several local cemeteries. We learned a lot about our family roots that way.

We were rather isolated on our hill-top, but although there were no radios or television and few automobiles, we did have quite a lot of outside contacts through the church, community activities, school, and books which we would beg or borrow. We took music lessons, and most of us could play some instrument.

Except for a few acres the farm passed out of the Peckham family after more than a century of ownership. The new owners seem to appreciate having this particular farm, something for which we are grateful.

About World War 1, one of my earliest memories, it was explained to me that "the side killing the most men won!" I was horrified and remember thinking "what a stupid way to settle an argument!" We were very glad, though to learn that this was "the war to end all wars!" and that it would "make the world safe for democracy!" I remember, too, my mother voting for the first time and thinking, "how strange that women had never been allowed to vote when men could all along."

We received our first eight grades of education at the nearby one-room rural school. Looking back, we remember those days as almost idyllic. What freedom we had! Although we had a new teacher every year or two, we must have received a good basic education, for we had little difficulty in integrating with the city trained youngsters when we attended Richland Center High School. That, too, is recalled as a wonderful period of time. We had a school of about 400 students, excellent teachers, a good building and facilities. There were many extra-curricular activities offered. Good sports programs were available to both sexes, we had the finest band in the state, and were great boosters of our football team, which usually played on Saturday afternoons. There were no night games then.

When our class graduated in 1931, we had a rude awakening. The Big Depression was in full bloom. Banks closed, taking their depositors savings (including mine), and in our cautious, conservative community most were fearful of what tomorrow might bring. We were not informed about scholarship programs, nor were there any government programs at that time so college seemed out of the question for me. I attended the local County Normal and received my teaching certificate, but no new, young teachers were needed. I moved to Madison, attended a private secretarial school for a summer and worked in several offices along with college graduates for $60 per month. We worked a hard 48 hour week, but even so those were pleasant days and I still have friends dating from those years. As the depression eased a bit I was fortunate to become employed by the University of Wisconsin, Madison, in the Agricultural Engineering Department, a position I hated to resign at the end of my leave of absence in 1944.

My fiancé, Ellis E. Fink, a native of Nebraska, and I were married in Dubuque, Iowa, September 2, 1939. The weather was torrid and cars were not air-conditioned. When we found a lovely air-conditioned room in a good hotel in downtown Omaha we were delighted ($3.50 per day). There was much excitement in the air and we decided to explore the source. We found newsreels set up in the street, showing pictures and giving commentary on a very important happening (which we had been expecting). Hitler's armored tanks were rolling into Poland and World War II had begun! In time, Uncle Sam asked for apiece of our lives, along with many others, including two of my brothers. Rationing began and we learned "to use it up, make it do, or go without". Of course we'd had much training in that during the depression!

Our older daughter, Cindy, was born while her father was in the service. I resigned my job, to become a full-time mother. Baby sitters were not available, for the women who worked were making huge wages in the war plants and factories. It was a time of prosperity for those not serving in the armed forces.

When I realize how many of the generations have been impacted by wars, I'd like to live to see the day when "our swords are beat into plowshares". Now (1990) it appears that this is a possibility. How wonderful it would be to be able to use our resources to benefit instead of annihilating mankind.

After the war we purchased a small town drug store in the nearby village of Brooklyn. Our second daughter, Victoria, was born soon after. Because of the shortage of housing we could not move to Brooklyn until we built our home there in 1952, where we still live today. Our store had the usual soda fountain, and my husband's reputation for his malts and sodas was known for miles around. When he sold the store in 1973 the fountain was discontinued. Even today people tell us how much they miss the old fountain and the services he provided for the community. For several years he operated a number of bus routes for the Oregon School District before his retirement in 1977.

I retired in 1979 after 19 years with the Madison Board of Education as an administrative clerk in several elementary schools. They were very enjoyable years, but I was ready for retirement when the time came.

Due to the grace of God and the expertise of modern medicine my husband and I were privileged to celebrate our 50th wedding anniversary last year (1989) with a few friends and relatives at our lake cottage in northern Wisconsin, where we have spent as many of our summer days as possible for the past thirteen years.

Our daughter, Cindy, makes her home with her husband in Madison. She has been employed for a number of years as office manager of the Geriatrics Department at the Veterans Administration Hospital. Her husband, Gary Sheldon, served in the U. S. Navy during the Vietnam War, and is now employed by the State of Wisconsin in the Department of Weights and Measures. Her son, Robert Richardson, recently finished serving four years with the U. S. Army in Germany, and now expects to continue his education. They are very supportive of us and we are glad to have them nearby.

Our younger daughter, Victoria, has made her home in Santa Fe, New Mexico, for several years. She has lived many places but is especially fond of life there. The mountains, the high desert, and the artistic climate suit her well and she is becoming established as an artist, working chiefly in stained-glass. In spite of the distance she keeps in close touch with us.

My interests are mainly my family, friends, and home. I have never been much of a "joiner" but served in the community on committees when necessary. When my daughters were young I was active in local Girl Scout affairs. I served a term on the Blackhawk Council and successfully promoted day camping for our area. I have been a member of the Presbyterian Church in Oregon for many years and am now an inactive elder there, having served a term as a ruling elder.

I have been privileged to work with Dr. Ben Peckham in preparing this book. How indebted we are to him and others of the past, who have given so generously of their time, money, and talents to make available to us knowledge of our Peckham history. Although we know little about our colonial grandmother, Mary Clarke, personally, we do have a great deal of information about her illustrious family (both in New England and England) for the family is well documented and goes far back in history. We would like to compile these findings and make them available to those interested. Perhaps one day we shall. Tentanda Via Est!

Floyd Stanley[9] Peckham

Floyd farmed most of his life on the farm where he grew up which was located near Woodstock, Wisconsin. He also worked for 10 years at "Barber-Colman" Company in Loves Park, Illinois. Later they bought 8 acres on Little Willow where they lived several years before moving to Richland Center, Wisconsin. Floyd and his wife Leona were married 64 years before she passed away.

Biography of Floyd Stanley[9] Peckham by Mable[10] Huffman

Floyd S.[9] Peckham was born on January 6, 1902 on a farm between Rockbridge and Woodstock, Wisconsin. He attended the Woodstock school. His father died when Floyd was 9 years old. His mother lived to be 81 years old. Floyd had brothers Clem, Foster and Leonard and a sister, Beulah. Floyd bought the old Peckham farm in Syresville, Wisconsin. He married Leona Cooper from Bloom City. They planned to be married in Richland Center, but because of a very bad flood on February 22, 1922, they had to turn back and were married in Bloom City, Wis. As they started back to Bloom City, going past the old Johnny Everhart farm, they could not travel on the regular road as it was flooded over. So Floyd took down the fence going up over the near by hill, where,

Floyd says, he laid out the road on the first day of his marriage. He is now 86 and lives at Pine Valley Manor Nursing home in Richland Center. Floyd loved to race his ponies with anyone who wanted to race and he nearly always won.

Floyd and Leona had four children. Their second child, Sterling, died in a boating accident in Indiana at the age of 29. He left a young wife, Maxine, and two sons, Terry and Brent. This was a terrible tragedy for the family.

The other children married and had children, but tragedy seemed to strike each family. Mabel Jean's oldest son, Randy, was killed in an auto accident on Jan. 24, 1967 at the age of 16. Jannette's youngest son, Sterling Smith died on Oct. 26, 1975 after being hit by a car. On June 12, 1980, Sterling Peckham's son Brent drowned. Farrel's first baby, Dove, died at the age of three days on Dec. 30,1972. Floyd and Leona's first grandchild, Kimberly Huffman, daughter of Greg Huffman, died at the age of three days on May 19,1969.

Floyd's dear wife went to heaven on July 9, 1986. They had been married 64 years. They were both Christians, and brought their children up to know the Lord, too. They had 10 grandchildren and 13 great grandchildren.

Recollections: Things that my Father, Charles[9] H. Peckham, Jr. said about his Father, Charles[8] H. Peckham, Sr.

Charles[8] Peckham, Sr. died in 1907, when my father was nine years old, so the things that he remembered were the memories of a young man only. The family home was the farm in No. Scituate, R.I. and was evidently still a working farm, with crops, animals, etc. One of the things that was important was the horses that were raised, and shown at various fairs. (I think that the terminology of today would say that the senior Mr. Peckham was a "gentleman farmer" as his other jobs and political career from the above description would not indicate much spare time.) The farm was, from other records, called Elm Cliff Farm and was one hundred and sixteen acres in size at the turn of the century. My Dad used to mention that his father went to work at the state capitol in Providence in a horse drawn trolley car.

The provisions of the senior Peckham's will (listed in the Will Section in full) divided the farm equally between Charles9 and his mother, Abbie May Peckham. Evidently managing the farm without outside income was too much for my grandmother (Abbie May Peckham), as she petitioned the Probate Court Mar 14, 1912, to sell the 1/2 interest owned by my father (the provisions of the will divided the farm equally between my Grandmother and my Father), the purpose stated to improve the income derived from the investment represented. This request was approved by the Court, and the farm sold sometime after that. Abbie went to work as an administrator in a hospital for mental patients, and evidently had quarters in the building. My Father spent much of his time as a young man with "Aunt Myra" (Myra May Peckham, Abbie's sister) Uncle George and Aurfi Myra had a small farm, ten acres or so, that had been part of the larger family farm, and raised chickens.

I don't think that my Father remembered his childhood as an altogether good time; losing his father when he was so young, living away from his mother a good part of the time in a boarding home. One positive thing that came out of this time; the man in charge of the mental hospital where my grandmother worked was a doctor, and I guess sort of a father figure to my Dad. He always said that this man, whose name I can't recall, was instrumental in his decision to become a doctor. It was a career that he enjoyed immensely, and I think he was very good at it. He was a good man; kind, loving, generous and respected by all who knew him.

Charles $^{10}$H. Peckham III

A footnote added by my wife, Stuart Hooper Peckham: My Mother described him as "a man of devastating charm". He would have relished that. Modestly.

Charles$^9$ Addison Peckham

Charles$^9$ Addison Peckham was born in Sun Prairie, Wisconsin April 14, 1920. There he attended primary school and graduated from the Madison Central High School. He entered the University of Wisconsin and spent two years in Physical Medicine and later graduated from the Madison Area Technical College with a major in Accounting and Office Management and a minor in Data Processing.

His father, an expert stone mason and bricklayer, had founded a successful business and was in great demand by such architects and builders as the famous Frank Lloyd Wright Firm. Charles learned the art but did not join his father in business, as some of his brothers did, though he did join the Bricklayers' Union. Charles joined the U. S. Army in World War II and became a Technical Sergeant in the Medical Corps. As a volunteer for detached duty he was transferred from the Army Air Corps to serve with the paratroopers and special forces. He was engaged in battles in North Africa, Sicily, Anzio, Salerno, Omaha Beach and the Battle of the Bulge.

After discharge from the Army as a Disabled War Veteran for service connected disabilities, he held a variety of accounting positions. He was Alderman of the 17th Ward, City of Madison from 1953 to '55 and a Justice of the Peace; he was Foreman for the Badger Ordinance Works and in 1953 and then became General Foreman for the Joliet Arsenal in Joliet, Illinois. As a member of the Bricklayers' Union (AF L - CIO) he served as secretary for their Arbitration Committee and later (1976) became President of Local #60 of the Madison Municipal Workers Union.

In 1969 he was certified by the International Business Machines Corporation as a Computer Programmer and has worked as Auditor for the State Medical Society of Wisconsin and as a Senior Auditor for Olin Industries' Badger Ordinance Works.

In 1976, while working as a custodian of East High School in Madison, Wisconsin he was found to have a spreading cancer involving the liver and other organs and was declared to be terminal. However, after three years of radiation, chemotherapy, and, as he says "spiritual faith and a positive attitude" he is without signs of the disease. As a result of this experience he helped found state chapters Living With Cancer, which is for persons with treatable cancer and their families, and Hospice, which fosters dignity of persons dying of cancer.

In the years from 1980 to 1984 he became a Registered Master Gardener through the University of Wisconsin Extension Division and embarked on a new career. Using these new skills, he became an enthusiastic volunteer. Jonathan Barry, the Dane County executive is quoted in the Sunday (October 10, 1982) Wisconsin State Journal as saying "Charlie volunteered to help out and he got into it heart and soul. He has coordinated an amazing volunteer effort." The article goes on to say that" Charles and about 70, volunteers have saved the county a few thousand dollars by planting vegetable gardens and more than doubling orchard yields. More than 1,300 bushels of apples have been picked, with 150 bushels of low quality apples being sold to the zoo for animal feed and the rest for apple cider or for meals at the Hospital and Home, Jail and Huber (work release) Center. The County now has about $3,450 worth of apple cider!"

In that interview Charles said "Some people think I'm crazy for doing this for nothing, but I receive pay in far more substantial ways than in dollars and cents. I'm giving of myself and I'm getting even more back."

Charles A. Peckham has for years been a serious genealogist. A past Associate Member of the National Archives in Washington, D. C., he has put his expert efforts into the study of his Peckham ancestors stemming from John' through Prince4, and the Peckham family relationships to historical figures in the history of the United States of America from George Washington on down through Theodore and Franklin DeLano Roosevelt, all of whom can be shown to be our (Peckham) cousins.

The compiler of this volume is deeply indebted to Charles for his instruction in these matters, given graciously despite his continuously busy schedule. In recent years he has held or holds a tongue twisting list of responsibilities: Commander of the Madison Chapter of Disabled American Veterans, brigadier of the U.S. Veterans Assembly, legislative director for the Wisconsin Veteran's Council and president of the Allied Veterans Council of Dane County.

Charles lives alone now. He and his wife are divorced and the children are living their own lives. It is spring now (March, 1990). His circle of friends and the flowers in the large greenhouse that he manages on the top of his building keep him busy. This is to say nothing of his volunteers, and of course, the next project. He still must complete his two years in office of President of the Orchid Growers Guild, an organization for which he has just served two years as Treasurer!

Biography of Mary$^{10}$ Eliza Peckham Burney by Richard Burney M.D.

Mary$^{10}$ Eliza Peckham Burney began her career as a nurse, but went on to excel as a mother of three, a breeder and trainer of champion dogs, a master gardener and companion to her husband Richard, a professor of surgery at the University of Michigan School of Medicine.

Shortly after completing her nurses training at Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital (now Rush-Presbyterian) in Chicago, she moved to New Haven, Connecticut, where she became a staff nurse on a surgical floor of the Grace New Haven Hospital. During the following year, she pursued her life-long interest in travel by going on trips to Brazil and the Caribbean. This attracted the attention of one of the surgical interns, Dr. Richard Burney, and a few months later they were married at the Peckham home in Madison, Wisconsin.

Dr. Burney's career took them to Haiti for three months during his training, and they spent a month traveling through Europe by train in the early winter of 1973. She adopted an abandoned Afghan hound, whom she named Cleopatra, shortly before leaving New Haven for Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, where Captain Gurney, fulfilling his draft obligation, was stationed for two years. At Fort Leavenworth, she became active in dog obedience training, and acquired a second Afghan hound and a marvelous Doberman Pinscher, Rhoda. Cleopatra quickly won her obedience certificate, as did Rhoda, in dog shows up and down the Missouri River.

The Burneys moved to Ann Arbor in 1976, where Dr. Burney took a position at the University of Michigan. Mary founded a garden club in the community in which they lived, and completed her Master Gardener training with the Cooperative Extension Service. She also became active in the Faculty Women's Club, eventually becoming Chair of the Bylaws Committee. At the same time, she joined the Ann Arbor Kennel Club, and served as Editor of their newsletter for several years. While this was happening, Benjamin Richard was born in 1978, followed by Edith Ann in 1980. Her children became her full-time occupation.

Mary always felt constricted by the dark house and small lot that they first moved into when they moved to Ann Arbor. In 1983, they began to look for a new site on which to build a house they designed together. They purchased fifteen acres of farm field west of town that summer. Mary supervised the construction, and after they moved in the following year, made sure that they had a full-sized farm tractor and the other equipment that they would need to manage the urban farm. A kennel was built into the house that allowed her to expand her canine operations. EMBUR Kennels was born, and new breeds added, Springer Spaniels and Ibizan Hounds. Mary became a trainer for the Ann Arbor Training Club, and a member of the Ibizan Hound Club of the United States and the English Springer Spaniel Field Association. Her third child, Charles Peckham, was born in 1987.

Mary, a born naturalist, possessed an intuitive understanding of and natural affinity for all the plants and animals in her universe. She can name the trees and weeds and flowers, recognize the birds by sight and by call. She also excels in the domestic arts. She is an innovative chef and superb baker of breads. She designs and makes quilts, and belongs to a quilting group. She maintains an enormous garden, growing currants and raspberries for jelly prepared at home, tomatoes for catsup, chili sauce, and spaghetti sauces, green and root vegetables for freezing, and corn for cornmeal, ground fresh for cornbreads. She is an avid reader of fiction and history, psychology and anthropology. She is also a connoisseur of fine arts, and oriental rugs, and an enthusiastic frequenter of museums and zoos, particularly the Smithsonian in Washington, D.C., which she visits whenever possible. And, she's still at it all.

Roger Stanford$^{10}$ Peckham, M. S., M. D. (Benjamin Miller$^{9}$, Mary Gifford$^{8}$, George Williams$^{7}$, George Williams$^{6}$, Peleg$^{5}$, Benjamin$^{4}$, Benjamin$^{3}$, John$^{2}$, John$^{1}$) was born on August 4, 1948, in Chicago, Cook County, Illinois.

He married Marisol Nunez-Hoyo, M. D., on March 31, 1990, in San Juan, Puerto Rico. She was born on September 22, 1954, in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

They had the following child:

Roger$^{10}$ Sanford Peckham M.S., M.D.

Roger$^{10}$ Peckham was born at Chicago Wesley Memorial Hospital in Chicago, Illinois, while his father was a Northwestern University graduate student and resident physician, living on money from the GI Bill of Rights, just after World War II. The family was fortunate enough to be living in converted maids quarters in an elegant apartment building on Chicago's "Gold Coast" on North Lake Shore Drive in which Roger's maternal grandfather, Roger Faherty (for whom he was named) owned an apartment.

Roger, a happy child who seldom cried, spoke early. At age two, he was reciting poems. His vocabulary was remarkable, though he would occasionally include an example of war-time Marine terminology, to the considerable embarrassment of his veteran father.

Just four days before Christmas, at the age of 27 months, the families automobile was struck broad-side by a fast moving car, dashing Roger and his car-seat against a rear seat window. Roger sustained head injuries resulting in the permanent loss of vision in his right eye, with temporary loss of speech and paralysis of his left side. Roger's ability to compensate for the loss of vision has been remarkable. In later years he took up weight lifting, running, and became an agile, expert swordsman with the foil.

The family moved to Evanston, Illinois in 1952 and Roger, a serious reader from an early age, began school there, continuing in the Madison, Wisconsin schools when the family moved there in 1956. After graduation from Madison Central University High School in 1966 as salutatorian, Roger became an undergraduate at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York. Disinterested in engineering, he tried astronomy, but finished in Physics, graduating cum laude in 1970. He began graduate studies in physics at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, but switched to medicine after spending a summer vacation working for Dr. Delores Buchler, the Head of Gynecologic Oncology at the University of Wisconsin Hospitals in Madison, Wisconsin.

While attending medical school at the University of Wisconsin, Madison he completed his M.S. degree in Biophysics and received his M.D. degree in 1976.

He completed his residency in Internal Medicine at Harlem Hospital Center in 1979; a Fellowship in Endocrinology at the Brooklyn Veterans Hospital in 1981; and was selected for a National Institute of Health Research Fellowship at Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut which he completed in 1983.

Dr. Peckham began the practice of Internal Medicine and his sub-specialty of Endocrinology and Metabolism in 1983 with the Ohio Permanente Medical Group and became an elected share holder in 1985. Here he was thrown in professional contact with Dr. Marisol Nunez-Hoyo, who was working there as a Staff Physician in the Emergency Department.

Over a period of several years they found increasing pleasure in each other's company while enjoying Cleveland's many social and intellectual opportunities, to say nothing of skiing injuries sustained in the mountains of the West and in the French Alps.

On March 31, 1990, their relationship culminated in marriage in the Cathedral of San Juan, despite the fact that the bride has begun a Radiology Residency which will require them to commute between Cleveland, Ohio and Newark, New Jersey until 1992.

Marisol Nunez-Hoyo Peckham M.D.

Marisol Nunez-Hoyo was born in San Juan, Puerto Rico to Estaben Nunez and Emilia Hoyo. Her mother, a professional pharmacist and her father, a Professor of Pharmacology at the University of Puerto Rico in San Juan, brought her up in the traditionally Spanish, closely chaperoned manner in an intellectually stimulating atmosphere. After attending Sacred Heart Elementary School in San Juan, she spent the next four years in high school in Spain at the Sacred Heart School in Madrid. After graduation, she left Spain, returning to San Juan, where she attended the University of Puerto Rico, graduating cum Laude in 1975.

She then entered the Medical School at the University of Puerto Rico, graduating with an M. D. in 1979 and then went on to spend three years in a general surgical residency at the Cleveland Clinic Foundation in Cleveland, Ohio. During this period, she received Honorable Mention in the Ohio Chapter, American College of Surgeons, Resident Essay Contest.

In 1982 she became a Staff Physician in the Emergency Department of the Kaiser Foundation Hospital where she practiced until 1987.

It was during this period in her life that she met her future husband, Roger Peckham.

In 1987 she decided to leave emergency medicine for specialization in Radiology and has entered residency training in this specialty at the Newark Beth Israel Medical Center in Newark, New Jersey. She will complete the program in 1992.

Gardner Greene$^{10}$ Peckham (Benjamin Miller$^{9}$, Mary Gifford$^{8}$, George Williams$^{7}$, George Williams$^{6}$, Peleg$^{5}$, Benjamin$^{4}$, Benjamin$^{3}$, John$^{2}$, John$^{1}$) was born on February 14, 1953, in Chicago, Cook County, Illinois. They lived in Washington D. C. Gardner was listed in the Biography and Genealogy Master Index.

He married Mary Threse Gnezda, M. S., Ph. D. on September 8, 1984, in Delaware, Delaware County, Ohio. She was born on February 28, 1953, in Columbus, Franklin County, Ohio.

They had the following children:

Mary Elizabeth Peckham was born on September 26, 1986, in Washington, District of Columbia.

Madeleine Ann Peckham was born on December 14, 1989, in Washington, District of Columbia.

Gardner$^{10}$ Greene Peckham

Gardner$^{10}$ Greene Peckham was born at Wesley Memorial Hospital in Chicago where his father taught and practiced medicine. The family moved from Evanston, Illinois in 1956 to Shorewood Hills, a suburb of Madison, Wisconsin. There, at the age of six he was first involved in politics, canvassing door to door with his mother, a seasoned campaigner.

After graduating from West High School in Madison, Wisconsin, Gardner was admitted to Ohio Wesleyan University in Delaware, Ohio. There he and his future bride met for the first time, dated several times and became good friends.

After graduating from Ohio Wesleyan University with a B.A. Degree in Politics and Government in 1975, he entered a graduate studies program at the American University's School of International Service (76-78), working part time as a legislative aide for Congressman Goodloe Byron.

In 1978 he became the full time legislative assistant to-Congressman William Goodling. In 1981 he was engaged by the Subcommittee on Africa of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Traveling widely in Africa, he provided issue analysis, policy guidance and liaison between Congress, the Administration and nongovernmental groups. Later, as a Senior Staff Consultant for Republican Members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, he was responsible for all major legislation considered by the Committee.

On September 8, 1984, Gardner Peckham married Mary Therese Gnezda in Delaware, Ohio.

Gardner and Terry have two children and presently live in Chevy Chase, Maryland, a suburb of Washington, D.C. Gardner has just now (1990) been made Deputy Chief of Staff of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. A devoted father, fly fisherman and expert cabinet maker, he fights tenaciously against the heavy demands of his position to share in the pleasures and responsibilities that go with their growing family.

Mary Therese Gnezda Peckham M.S., Ph.D.

Mary Therese Gnezda, "Terry", was born on February 28, 1953, the second the three children born to Mary Antonia Merullo and Walter Frederick Gnezda in Columbus, Ohio. Her parents were both second or third generation Americans, she of Italian extraction and he of Slovenian (Yugoslavia) background. The early years of their family life were happy and uncomplicated. He was a successful engineer who worked for a time in aviation and then in construction. She had obtained her Bachelor of Arts Degree before her marriage and was prepared to devote her life to her family and children. However, when Terry was just four years old, it became clear that her father had developed multiple sclerosis. This development severely tested the strengths and character of the entire family over the next 26 years.

By the time Terry was ten (1963) her father was no longer able to work and from then on he was cared for at home until he died in 1980. Walter and Mary Gnezda had long since agreed that it was of paramount importance to maintain a normal family environment for the children. Now, with their father at home for them, their mother divided her time between home and a variety of part time positions. It was not until her older children were in high school that she entered the graduate school at Ohio State University in 1967 to pursue her career. In the next five years she completed her M.A. and Ph.D. Degrees in Guidance and Counseling and English Education. In 1973 she became Associate Director of Dental Education in the Dental School at Ohio State University. In 1976 she became Assistant Dean for Student Affairs, the first woman to hold such a position in the dental school at Ohio State University. At the same time she was appointed Associate Professor in the Colleges of Dentistry and Education at Ohio State University.

Terry entered Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio in 1971 where she met and became good friends with Gardner Peckham in her freshman year. By the time she graduated cum laude in 1975 with a B.A. in Human Development and Family Studies, she had spent a summer in Urban Studies at the Merrill-Palmer Institute in Detroit, Michigan. Her mother was working full time as a member of the faculty and in the Administration of the Dental School at Ohio State University. Terry went back to Columbus Ohio to help in the care of her father and to enter graduate school at Ohio State University.

In 1977 Terry completed her M.S. Degree in Family Relations and Human Development while working as a Teaching Associate. After working for two years as an assistant director of the Ohio State University Child Care Center, Terry returned to graduate school. In the next three years she continued work on her Ph.D. first as a teaching associate and then as a research associate at Ohio State. She served on several state and local task forces in the fields of public assistance, child abuse, day care and research on women. In 1981-82 she was the recipient of three awards from Ohio State University: the General Foods Fellowship, the Jennifer Sedgwick Research Award, and the Home Economics Alumni Research Award. In 1982-83 she was named Presidential Fellow by Ohio State University.

In November, 1982, while in Washington, D.C. to attend a conference of the National Association for the Education of Young Children, knowing that Gardner lived in Washington she gave him a call and he was at home! Over the next two days, captivated with each other, they spent as much or more time with each other than she spent at her meetings.

By the Spring of 1983 they were much in love, and both very busy. In June she was granted her Ph.D. in Family Relations and Human Development with a minor in Public Administration and Political Sociology. After spending the summer in Washington, she was appointed to a post doctoral fellowship at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan where she became a Congressional Fellow, sponsored by the Bush Program in Child Development and Social Policy. Gardner was traveling with congressional committees from country to country in Africa and on the Continent sending long stemmed roses and bringing her perfume from Paris. It was not until September 8, 1984 that they were married in Delaware, Ohio, the home of Ohio Wesleyan University where they had first met.

This resume is best completed in her own words. "After not having seen each other for seven years, and then having dinner one night and falling in love, one might ask "Was it fate?" "An act of God?" or "Luck" that brought us back to each other. Whatever it was, I'm awfully glad that Gardner was at home on that November morning in 1982 when I boldly called him!"

Terry's mother is happily married again as well. She was married to Chester Winter M.D., a specialist in Urology in 1983.

Terry is applying her skills at home now (1990) raising their two daughters, Mary Elizabeth and Madeleine Ann. In what time remains she works on her computer as an Independent Consultant for Child and Family Policy. She is presently employed by The National Academy of Sciences. Prior employers include Columbia University in New York, The National Association of State Boards of Education, and The National Education Association (NEA).

Biography of Alice$^{10}$ Peckham Scully by her son, Mike Scully

Alice was the oldest child of Rolland$^{9}$ (Rollie) Peckham, a farmer, and Ellen Pearson Lindberg, a nurse who was born in Sweden. Alice was an outstanding student at Alexander High School in Nekossa, Wisconsin, where she was valedictorian of her class. After high school, she moved to Chicago, Illinois and married Philip Scully. In 1948 the family moved to Burbank, California, where she lived until her death.

Alice had seven children, five boys and two girls. She encouraged them to study, with the result that four graduated from college, two earned teaching credentials and one is a doctor. She was also active in obtaining an education and employment for her retarded son. Today her daughters live in Rudolph, Wisconsin and one has taken the Peckham name by marriage.

Alice was an energetic and hard-working person with an outgoing personality. When her husband became ill, she went to work to support the family. She worked six days a week until stricken with cancer. Once friends took her to a famous television show. She told of struggling to support her children, and was chosen to be Queen for a Day! Then, when the prizes were sent again, she returned them due to her honesty. Alice died at home after a long bout with cancer.

John Rolland$^{10}$ Peckham

John Rolland$^{10}$ was the second of four children of Rolland$^{9}$ Eton Peckham and Ellen Pearson (born Elin Alfrieda Perrson in Malmo, Sweden). He moved to Nekoosa, Wisconsin, and graduated salutatorian from Nekoosa High School in 1932. Because of the depression, he was unable to attend college to attain his dream of becoming a doctor, even though he was offered scholarships.

He was employed by the Nekoosa Edwards Paper Company in the Pulp and Paper Research Department.

During World War II he moved his family briefly to Portland, Oregon, to do defense work. He then was offered a position at the Institute of Paper Chemistry in Appleton, Wisconsin. He was manager of the pulp laboratory, doing research and teaching until the age of 65. Even then he continued as a consultant until his death.

He was very active in his professional and community activities. Because of his long continued work for the Appleton YMCA, a room was dedicated to his memory at the time of his death.

During his lifetime he enjoyed traveling immensely. He and Ilma saw and enjoyed most of the United States, the Scandinavian Countries, and all of Great Britain and Ireland. He had an enormous love of life and experience, and passed those passions on to his children and grandchildren. Most of all he was loved and respected by everyone he knew.

Carl Allen Peckham by Kenneth$^{11}$ Peckham

Carl was born in Mauston, Wisconsin but at an early age moved to a log cabin in Hannibel where the family farmed. In later years the family moved to Nekoosa where he graduated from high school and later worked for Nekoosa Edwards Paper Co.

Carl loved sports and a trick knee he acquired playing baseball kept him state side in the army during World War II.

Carl discovered direct sales after the war and it was his true avocation.

His friendly down to earth personality ingratiated him with all he met and won him several awards for his sales ability.

He was instrumental in starting several archery clubs and leagues in central Wisconsin and was an avid bow hunter, fisherman, golfer and Cubs fan.

Carl was the most honest man I ever knew. Once while gravely ill and in severe pain from the cancer which would later lead to his death, he drove fifty miles to return a logging chain to a farmer who had used it to pull him from the mud the years before and had forgotten it.

Above all Carl loved life, was a wonderful father and husband and a man that the Peckhams can claim with pride.

Margaret$^{10}$ Peckham-McIntosh-Ostrander

Margaret, the oldest of five children born to Leo and Isabelle Peckham, was born in West Lima, Wisconsin on March 21, 1921. She was graduated valedictorian of her high school class and was married to Fred McIntosh by her ministerial grandfather, "L.E." Peckham, on January 1, 1940 at his home in Sextonville, Wisconsin. Margaret and Fred started farming near Spring Green with twenty milk cows, some hogs and one hundred chickens. One of their early milk checks was for $30.00 for two weeks.

Fred and a hired man cut firewood to supplement their income that winter selling wood to customers in the town of Spring Green.

The hogs were sold that year for $2.00 per hundredweight. However, food costs were equally low with a large jar of peanut butter costing 18 cents, compared to the 1977 price of $1.41 for the same size jar.

Since a lot of the food was canned (600 quarts in 1942), the weekly grocery bill would range between two and three dollars.

Fred died in 1958 as the result of multiple sclerosis. A year later Margaret married Claude Ostrander who died ten year later of cancer. Following his death, Margaret sold her farm near Sauk City to her daughter, Doris and her husband, Mel Lohr and moved into Praire du Sac, Wisconsin.

Margaret was active in the United Methodist Church in Praire du Sac, Wisconsin.

Elaine and Duane, along with their four children, work together in processing 75,000 pounds or so of milk per day into cheese. Duane's work day starts at midnight. He received a trophy the Vernon County Fair for the best cheese displayed in 1975. They are active members of the Roman Catholic Church.

Fred McIntosh

Fred enjoyed athletics and was an outstanding basketball player as an eighth grader and freshman in high school. In his junior year he was a running back on the varsity football team at Sauk City.

In 1977 he was chosen as an alternate for the Badger Boys State. This opportunity was awarded him by the American Legion Auxiliary and Optimist Club. TI selection was based on character, leadership scholarship, activities and Americanism. Fred regularly attends the United Methodist Church of Prairie du Sac As a senior Fred was elected by his teammates as the most valuable player of their football team. Fred is in charge of a construction crew in Madison, Wisconsin. Karen works in a local Head Start program.

Charles Wesley Peckham

Born in the farm home at the south edge of West Lima, Wisconsin, Charles grew up receiving all twelve years of elementary and high school education at West Lima. In April of 1945 he was inducted into the Army and trained at Camp Fannin, near Tyler, Texas. Following his transfer to California he was assigned to duty in South Korea in October of 1945 and while there served as a chaplain's assistant.

In July 1946 his father suffered a stroke and Charles returned home and was discharged in October of that year. He assisted on the farm until enrolling in Indiana Central College (University of Indianapolis) in September 1947 where he earned the Bachelor of Arts degree in 1951. He entered United Theological Seminary in Dayton, Ohio, that fall, graduating with a Master of Divinity degree in June 1954.

While in Seminary he met and married Arline B. Beason. Their first pastoral assignment was in San Bernardino, California. Here the first two children were born, Deborah Lois and Charles Wesley Jr. The family moved to Kenosha, Wisconsin, in May 1956 (Salary, $3,200.00) and remained there until January 1958 when Charles was invited to join the staff at Dayton First Evangelical United Brethren Church (now the United Methodist Church). In May 1958 Mark Edgar was born, and four years later, Elizabeth Ann was born.

Charles returned to United Theological Seminary where he earned the Master of Sacred Theology degree in June 1962. While at First Church he taught a course at Payne Theological Seminary at Wilberforce, Ohio. He was active in Christian Education, including the Director's Section of the National Council of Churches where he served on the Executive Committee for three years, chairing the committee one year.

In 1966 he enrolled at the University of Cincinnati in the College of Education to pursue a Doctoral degree; and the family moved to Lebanon, Ohio, where Charles served as pastor of the Otterbein Home United Methodist Church. In August 1971 he was awarded the Doctorate of Education degree.

At Otterbein Home he changed roles to become Assistant Administrator for Program and Social Services. In 1971 he passed the State test to become a licensed administrator. Under his leadership dynamic programs were developed in social work, activities, and volunteer services. A Gerontology program was organized which offered training for persons working in long-term care in the tri-state area. In conjunction with Arline, four books were written for employees in the field of long-term care: Thank You for Shaking My Hand (for volunteers); I Can Still Pray (spiritual needs of elderly); Activities Keep Me Going (activity professionals); and You Made My Day (social services). The last two books are still being used nationally as training tools for long-term care professionals.

In addition to his work at Otterbein, Dr. Peckham has been vitally interested in work with and for the aging in the larger community. Since 1985 he has served as President of the Warren County Community Services; President of the Warren County Council on Aging from 1975-1984; President of SCOPE, a five county Community Action Board from 1977 to 1993; active in Warren County United Way Board, serving as President for two years. He has served as Executive Director of Resident Activity Personnel in Ohio, a board member of the National Association of Activity Professionals and National Certification Council for Activity Professionals; and as Chair of the Lebanon School Superintendent's Community Committee.

Among his many honors, he received the Ohio Commission on Aging "Community Service Award" in 1976; was the first recipient of the Charles Peckham Annual Award given by the Resident Activity Personnel in Ohio in 1984; inducted into Ohio Senior "Hall of Fame", 1985; received the Ohio Philanthropic Homes for Aging Distinguished Service Award for Education, Research and Communication, 1985; the Distinguished Service Award, 1987 from the National Association of Activity Professionals; was recognized by the establishment of the Charles Wesley Peckham Award for Humanitarian Leadership by SCOPE, 1992; the Association of Ohio Philanthropic Homes for Aging, Rock of Aging Award, 1993; and the University of Indianapolis Distinguished Service Award, 1994.

Arline Beatrice Beason

Arline lived for the first six years of her life on the homestead place in Prairie Elk, attending the Shade Creek country school through the first grade. When she was just three or four years of age McCone County health officials decided to hold a tonsillectomy clinic in the old school house in Circle. Three hundred and twenty children were brought in from all over the county to this make-shift clinic. Among them were the three Beason sisters. Once arriving at the school the girls decided they were not in favor of this forced operation and hid themselves in the school outhouse. However, they were discovered and the operation executed. No problems resulted, and the best part of the whole experience was that ice cream was one of the suggested foods on the menu for sore throats! Other memories of those years in the country included riding (three girls on one horse) to school and crossing the Shade Creek, which ran full in the spring, on a narrow wooden plank; Mrs. Mosley, one of the school teachers in the one room schoolhouse who also boarded with the Beasons, carrying her enema bag to the outhouse; Miss Lockhart, another school teacher who it seems taught every kid in the country; spending holidays with the Shannons, neighbors about 5 miles away, and riding in a sleigh over the snow, covered with a cowhide throw, or running beside the sleigh to keep feet from freezing; having parties with favorite dolls or enjoying the Shannon girls' hobby of cutting, with tin snips, horses from flattened tin cans; spending the 4th of July at the Weldon community picnic where homemade ice cream and lemonade were always on the menu; sleeping on the hard benches that surrounded the floor of the old country barn while their parents enjoyed the occasional barn dance. There were no luxuries on the ranch. No electricity, no telephone. Food was homegrown. A fire was always burning in the old cook stove, and mother made wonderful pies and bread in that oven. Harvesting or butchering time brought all the neighbors together to work and eat. Once or twice a year Dad would hitch the team to the wagon and head for Oswege to sell grain and buy the necessary groceries. Horehound candy or licorice were usually found in the grocery bags. There were no beauty shops so Dad also kept the girls' hair cut. How I hated the shingled back!

The arrival of company was always exciting since the family was so isolated—50 miles to the nearest town of any size. For a short time Grandmother and Grandfather Roberts, mother's parents, homesteaded nearby. Grandmother loved walking in the badlands and was usually accompanied by the three girls. Picking wild flowers was a favorite pastime. The Shannon girls also enjoyed the badlands, and horseback riding through that rough terrain was a choice activity when the girls got together.

When Arline was six her father was elected Deputy Sheriff for McCone County and the family moved to the county seat, Circle. It is interesting to note that Circle became the county seat in 1920 after a fierce debate in which Vida, Brockway, Weldon and Sand Creek were also in the race for the position. The 1919 election vote was so close with Circle gaining 665 votes and Vida 654 that the issue was on the ballot at the general election on November 2, 1929; the official vote at that time was Circle 1111, Vida 1072. Circle became a county seat on April 1, 1921.

Arline attended elementary and high school in Circle, graduating as salutatorian of her class in 1938. She attended college in Nebraska at York College, an institution of the United Brethren in Christ Church. She was active in college extra-curricular activities and in1942 was elected Homecoming Queen. She graduated in 1942 with a double major in English and Speech and received a teaching certificate.

For the year 1943–44 she was hired at the Silver Creek High School in Nebraska teaching typing and bookkeeping and serving as sponsor of the senior class. While in Silver Creek she attended the Methodist Church in that town. It was a farming community made up of a majority of Polish immigrants. At planting or harvesting time the farm work was viewed as more important than school by many families. As a result there was a lot of absenteeism.

During these years the Second World War was taking many young men (and women) away to serve their country. In an effort to make a contribution to the war effort, in 1944 she moved to California, took a drafting course at Pamona Junior College under the auspices of Douglas Aircraft Company and went to work for that aircraft company in the Material Release Department. Her work involved studying the blueprints and ordering the materials necessary to make the part. The work had to be letter perfect. Consequently, if an error in typing was made in the last sentence (or any other place) in an order to Wright Patterson Air Force Base, the letter had to be scrapped and retyped until no mistakes appeared. Erasers were not allowed!

In 1946 the program of Released Time for Christian Education was opening in Pamona. Arline knew the minister of the church in Pamona who was heading the search for qualified teachers for the 4th, 5th and 6th graders who were walked from the school to a nearby church for one hour of religious instruction each week. She applied for the job and was hired as the teacher-supervisor of the program, a position she held until 1950 when an invitation came from the denominational printing house in Dayton, Ohio, to join the editorial staff in the writing and editing of materials for children for the Evangelical United Brethren Church. (The United Brethren and Evangelical Churches had united in 1946.)

While working in Dayton, Arline Beason met Charles W. Peckham, a student at United Theological Seminary (then called Bonebrake). They were married in 1953 and upon his graduation from Seminary moved to California to assume the pastoral appointment at the San Bernardino Evangelical United Brethren Church. The invitation to come to California was received from the Bishop of the area, Bishop Ira D. Warner, a friend of Arline's since her youth. Bishop Warner had told Arline at one time that when she married he would like to perform the ceremony. He was the President of the Board of Bishops in 1953, and since Dayton was the location of the denominational headquarters, the Board held their regular meetings there. The wedding was set so that Bishop Warner would already be in Dayton for the Board meeting on July 3, 1953. The wedding was held at Euclid Avenue EUB Church, and among the guests were five other bishops of the church.

Charles and Arline Peckham

The California Conference at that time was very conservative, with a number of the ministers graduating from Fuller Seminary, an ultra-conservative theological institution. Charles was admitted to the Conference at the 1954 session with two negative votes based solely on the fact that he graduated from the Dayton seminary. Although many of the members of the San Bernardino Church were extremely accepting of his ministry, the climate in the California Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church continued to create problems; and after serving there for two years Charles, requested a transfer and was accepted by his home Conference in Wisconsin. He was appointed to the Kenosha Church, made up largely of second generation Italians, children of immigrants. While there the church grew and plans were made to build a new building. However, before it could be started, Dr. Paul Herrick, pastor of First Evangelical United Brethren Church in Dayton, Ohio, wrote to invite Charles to join his staff as Minister of Christian Education. The invitation was accepted and the family moved to Dayton in 1958.

During most of these years, Arline continued to write children's materials for the denominational publications. The family remained in Dayton until 1966 when Charles enrolled in the University of Cincinnati to work toward a Doctor's degree. He requested from the District Superintendent an appointment nearer the University and was assigned to the Otterbein Home Church, a home for the elderly located four miles west of Lebanon. The Home was established in 1912 as a home for orphans and old people. However, the childcare program was phased out in 1963 and in 1966 there was a population of 130 old persons. Arline was employed at Otterbein as Social Director and Volunteer Coordinator. Under her leadership the Geronteer* Program was organized. It developed over her 18 years of service into a group of 200 community volunteers.

In 1985 Charles was asked to become the administrator of Otterbein's Northwest Ministries. This assignment involved three new campuses, Otterbein St. Mary's, Otterbein Cridersville and Otterbein Leipsic. As the buildings were being built and occupied Charles became the Executive Director as administrators were employed at each site. He also led a team to build two other facilities and to remodel three other facilities. Charles finally retired in 1999.

Since retiring Charles spends a major amount of time volunteering on church, social and educational boards and committees.

During her years at Otterbein Arline helped to organize the Human Service Section of the United Methodist Association of Health and Welfare Ministries, serving as its chairperson in 1984-85, and was recognized for Distinguished Service to the Association in 1985. In 1986 she was recognized with the Human Service Director of the Year Award. She was given the Distinguished Service Award for Education, Research and Communication by the Association of Ohio Philanthropic Homes for Aging in 1985. She was recognized by the Resident Activity Personnel in Ohio in 1990 for helping to advance the activity programs in long-term care facilities.

Together with Charles four books in the field of aging were written: Thank You for Shaking My Hand, I Can Still Pray, You Made My Day and Activities Keep Me Going. The latter one continues to be used nationally by instructors teaching the basic and advanced courses in activities to the professionals in the field. In addition, Arline has written three other books: Faces of the Spirit (A history of Otterbein Home, 1912–1981); Camp St. Mary's – It's Life & Legend; and Unquenchable Dreams, the 50–year History of the Untied Methodist Association of Health and Welfare Ministries.

Charles and Arline have four children: Deborah Lois (m. Greg Holm) and Charles Wesley (m. Peggy Brodie) were born in California; Mark Edgar (m. Linda Roberts) and Elizabeth Ann (m. Russell Stearns) were born in Dayton. They have nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Autobiography of Lorna$^{11}$ Lee Strang Cary

I was born in Richland Center, Wisconsin to Norma and Loren Strang in a house which still stands. It was 1934, the tail-end of the depression, and I can recall that my father, who had been trained to be a teacher at the Normal School, did not have a teaching position, but held some kind of a regional job for the Milwaukee Journal. I was four years old at the time and this is my earliest recollection. My parents were divorced when I was six. Norma had another child about that time. We all lived with grandmother Goldie and grandfather (Bert) Leonard$^{9}$ and their family in Richland Center. Later we moved to Rockford, Illinois where World War II related jobs were plentiful.

When I was nine I was sent to live with my father Loren and his new wife Lorna. This was not a happy time for me. My relationship with my step-mother was strained and increasingly unhappy. My half brother Lanny and their daughter, Susan, born when I was fifteen years old, were my only siblings. I was allowed to write few letters I and was permitted fewer meetings with my mother, Norma.

When I graduated from high school I immediately left "home" for a joyful reunion with my mother. We became very close and enjoyed our new relationship immensely until her premature death in 1971.

John Cary and I were high school sweethearts. Married in 1953 we both worked long and hard to see him through his college years. During those years we had three lovely children. John received his degree with honors in 1962 from University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

John worked for the U S Forest Service-and we did move around. Milwaukee, Escanaba, Michigan, Park Falls, Wisconsin, Milwaukee, Louisiana, and then, to finish his career, we moved to Springfield, a suburb of Washington, D.C.

As I write this (1988), we are looking for a place back in the mid-west in which to retire. All our children have finished college and have settled into their careers. We are expecting our second grandchild thanks to our daughter Kitty and her husband. Life looks awfully nice right now!

Gordon$^{10}$ L. Peckham

Grodon was born on the "Si" Peckham homestead farm in Northern Richland County and attended rural schools for elementary schooling, and graduated from the Richland Center High School in 1935.

Deciding on no further formal education, he worked at several occupations-dairy related, sales, theater, museum, newspaper "stringer" etc. and at age twenty, management of a ballroom for three years. In 1940-41 he lived in Rockford, Illinois, working in commercial display. On December 5, 1941, he married Margie Kieser in Prairie du Chien. Early in 1942 he entered military service and was soon in England, where he served more than three years at Headquarters, Eighth Air Force.

In 1945 they lived in Chicago, where he studied photography, and in the following year they purchased a studio in Prairie du Chien, and worked in the commercial photography business for several years. During the late fifties he also worked in radio (News Director) and edited a weekly newspaper.

In 1960 he was named the founding Curator of the Museum of Medical Progress (original name) on the grounds of the Second Fort Crawford, at Prairie du Chien, operated jointly by the State Medical Society of Wisconsin and the State Historical Society. After twelve years, he left that employment in 1972.

In 1974 he became founding Curator again—this time of the Pearson Museum in Springfield, Illinois, a medical museum and teaching theater, part of the new Southern Illinois University School of Medicine. For several of the ten years they spent there, Margie was employed by the Psychiatric Department of the School of Medicine. He retired in 1984.

In retirement, at our Prairie du Chien home, they keep busy. He continues to do a limited amount of commercial art, and produces a goodly number of watercolors and oils. Woodcarving and sculpture, plus fishing the Mississippi backwaters rounds out his retirement.

Autobiography of Mabel$^{10}$ Jean Peckham Huffman

I am the oldest child of Floyd and Leona Peckham. My brother, Sterling, was four and a half years younger than I, my sister, Jannette was 13 years younger than I, and my youngest sister Farrel, was 20 years younger than I.

I went to Syresville grade school between Rockbridge and Woodstock for eight years, and Richland Center High School, graduating in 1940 at age 17. I went to the Richland County Normal School for one year (three terms), then quit and got a job in Richland Center. I met Maynard Huffman when he came home on furlough from the US Army and we were married on July 30, 1942.

I lived with him near his army camps until our oldest son was to be born when I came home and Randy La Vern Huff man was born on February 12, 1944. Again I and our baby son went to live with Maynard for a few months, but Maynard had to go over seas during World War II, so Randy and I came back to live on the farm with my parents while Maynard was over in Europe until the war ended.

When he came back we made our home in Richland Center. Our second son, Gregory Lane Huffman, was born on August 15, 1946.

In 1951 we all moved to Garland, Texas, because we were so tired of the cold winters. We lived there until 1953, but then moved back up north to Loves Park, Rockford, Illinois, where Maynard worked as a industrial engineer at Barber-Colman for 19 years. I, Mabel Jean, worked as a secretary in several plants, then later became a school secretary and later taught school as a Para-Professional in the public schools. Randy and Greg graduated from high school in Loves Park where we lived 21 years.

Randy went to Bob Jones University for two years majoring in Cinema, then transferred to the University of Illinois, where he majored in Journalism. The day after he graduated he was in a fatal auto accident on his way to Chicago to interview for a Job. He was engaged to be married to SaVonne Swanson the following June. He was a good Christian Boy so he is in heaven.

Greg went to Bob Jones University for one year, then transferred to the University of Illinois where he and Randy were room mates for one year. After Randy's death, Greg, who had again transferred to a Christian college, Tennessee Temple Schools, felt called into full time work for the Lord so he finished four years at Tennessee Temple with a B.A. Degree in Bible, and then stayed to get a Masters Degree m Religious Education from Temple Theological Seminary. Later he earned an other Masters Degree, this time in Christian from Liberty Baptist Seminary. He has now completed his class-work for his Doctorate of Ministries Degree from Bob Jones University, while serving as pastor in churches in Atlanta and Macon, Georgia. He married Lillie Ruth Du Pree Beasley on July 3, 1968. They had four children, one daughter, who died two days after birth, and three sons, Steven, Jonathon and David.

My dear husband, Maynard, went to be with the Lord on July 10, 1986, after surgery in the Veterans Affairs Hospital in Madison, Wisconsin. My mom, Leona Peckham, went to heaven the day before.

My life has been full and blessed by God. I am now living alone, and miss my husband so much, but I know I will see him some day in heaven. I am now 67 years old, retired, and have my 88 years old dad in a near-by nursing home. I go to see him very often, and also bring him out to stay overnight sometimes. Life goes on—but some day it will be worth it all. I love music, and am involved as a music co-coordinator in my church. I also supervise the nursing home ministries of my church here in Richland Center, Wisconsin, in this year of 1990, and so keep busy most of the time. (Mabel married Francis Dalberg on May 23, 1990 in Georgia.)

Gregory Lane[11] Huffman by Mabel Jean[10] Huffman

Gregory Lane Huffman graduated from high school in Loves Park, Rockford, Illinois. He attended Bob Jones University in Greenville, South Carolina, for one year, then transferred to the University of Illinois, where he attended his second year. After the death of his only brother, Randy, in a fatal car wreck, Greg felt called into full time work for the Lord, so he again transferred to another college, Tennessee Temple College, where he attended for two years, graduating with a B.A. in Bible. He continued his education at Temple Theological Seminary graduating with a Masters Degree in Religious Education. He later earned a second Masters Degree at Liberty Baptist Seminary in Christian Counseling. He has now completed his classroom requirements for his Doctorate of Ministries Degree from Bob Jones University.

Rev. Huffman moved from Richland Center, with his parents and brother to Garland, Texas in 1951. He moved with his family again in 1953 to Love Park, Rockford, Illinois.

He met his wife Ruth, whom he married the summer after his graduation from Tennessee Temple College. She also has a B.S. degree in Elementary Education. They had one daughter and three sons. The daughter died two days after birth.

Rev. Huffman served as Assistant Pastor of University Baptist Church in Gainsville, Florida from June 1970 to January 1972 where he was director of Christian Education, Bus, Visitation and Youth, as well as Christian School Bible Teacher. From March 1972 to July 1984 he founded and was pastor of Circle Baptist Church in Albany, Georgia. He began a Christian school, instituted satellite college classes in cooperation with Baptist University of America, and established The Open Door Baptist for the over 50,000 black people in the city. From August 1984 to August 1989 he was Pastor of Phillips Drive Baptist Church in Forest Park, Georgia and served as superintendent of the Forest Park Christian School. He is now the pastor of Gilead Baptist Church in Macon, Georgia, with an average attendance of 500, and where there is also a Christian School with 400 students. He is also president of the Georgia Baptist Association of Christian schools.

Two of his sons are students at Bob Jones University, Greenville, South Carolina and the other son is a student at Gilead Baptist Christian School.

Rev. Huffman is working on completing his thesis for his Doctorate degree in January 1990.

Rev. Huffman has always been musical. He plays the saxophone and has been singing since he was a small boy. Before the death of his brother, Randy, the whole family sang as a quartet. He has been a choir director in two of his churches.

Though he has spent most of his life in the South, he loves to return to Wisconsin, especially at Christmas to see the beautiful snow, and in the fall, to see the wonderful fall colors which they don't have in the South.

Autobiography by Geoffery[11] Marshall Peckham

I was raised, for the most part, in Madison, Wisconsin, though the Richland Center area occupies a special place in my heart that I call home. My fondest memories of growing up are of the times spent trout fishing with my father and grandfather on the streams near Richland Center. The old family farm on the hill near Gillingham is where I trace my roots to. The many hours spent there, walking the old sugar camp behind the sheep shed, which has long since been torn down, will last a lifetime in my memory.

I studied philosophy, art and literature at St. Olaf College in Minnesota, Cambridge University, England, and Oxford University, England. For the last 15 years I have been avidly pursuing a career in photography and have exhibited prints in numerous galleries and museums. In 1984 I was awarded a Minnesota State Arts Board grant to continue work on a series of photographs of county fairs and community celebrations.

This past year I have moved away from the "big city" life in Chicago to a beautiful town in Northern Michigan called Alpena. I work part-time at the local high school in a dropout and drug prevention program and work on my photography the rest of the time.

Autobiography of Irvin Wherry[11] Peckham

Having spent most of my life at a desk or in front of the blackboard, I remember my life through the schools I have attended or in which I have taught. My beginning was good--as a few others of my generation will understand: I had the privilege of graduating in eighth grade from a one-room school house, Brush Creek Elementary. I think I may have been the smartest kid in my class, although it would have been a close call. I'm sure the other fellow thought he was top banana, too.

From there I went to Richland Center High School, where I distinguished myself as a wrestler more than anything else—at least I think that if any non-family person remembers me in Richland Center that is the hook that they hang my name on. I was also student council president and a couple of other things that I would rather not be remembered by.

After high school I went to the University of Wisconsin, Madison where I was quickly subverted by the counter-culture movement of the sixties that metamorphosed me from a squeaky clean wrestler into a flower-eyed member of the new generation that tried to look at life through a different window.

While protesting the dirtying of America and the war in Vietnam, I earned my bachelors and masters in English, married a beautiful woman, Sarah Groves, and judiciously moved to Hamilton, Ontario when Uncle Sam repeatedly called my name. I had a fellowship at MacMaster University, where I had intended to complete my Ph.D., but I became a high school teacher after earning my B. Ed. at the University of Toronto. From there, I moved to California, which is where Sarah's family lived. I taught high school English for twelve years in Morgan Hill, lived on a small farm that I grew to love, had two children, a boy and a girl, who are as wonderful as everyone else's. During this time I also became a writer—that is, I became a person who writes. This is my most salient characteristic. I have published quite a few articles on teaching and entertained dozens of bored postal clerks with dozens of short stories and four novels. I am presently happily rewriting my fourth book with little expectation of publication, which I am sure is the only way to write. Having been offered a fellowship at the University of California, San Diego, I resigned from teaching and resumed my work on my Ph.D. in Literature, focusing this time on theory and research in composition. I will end by saying that I am a contented, forty-two-year-old graduate student, firmly married to my first and last wife, proud father of two children whom I adore, tolerant owner of two dogs and one very hairy, stupid cat.
